T-H ACT DEFENDED, NAM ASSAILED

Nation Is Undergoing "Healthy Disinflation," Dr. Nourse Says, But Cautions Against "Jitters"

Unemployment Rise No Cause For Worry, BLS Chief Asserts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Two high government officials said today they see no reason for alarm over the nation's economic outlook.

But one cautioned against "jitters;" the other acknowledged that the latest figure of nearly 3,000,000 jobless represents more than just seasonal unemployment.

These were the major developments in a day that saw government, business and labor leaders discussing the economic picture on many front:

1. Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, top economic adviser to President Truman, said the United States is going through a period of "healthy disinflation," but warned that any trend toward panic might lead to a recession.

2. Ewan Clague, the government's chief labor statistician, said that despite increases in unemployment, he couldn't see any cause for worry unless the number jumps to 5,000,000 jobless and stays there.

3. Several business leaders, testifying before the Senate-House Economic Committee, spoke out against President Truman's request for standby price-ration controls as an irritant to business.

CIO Applauds Steel Plan

4. But the CIO, applauded the administration's economic proposals, including Mr. Truman's request for authority to build steel plants if necessary to provide enough steel. The CIO said if industry is "unable or unwilling to do the job," the government must step in.

Commissioner Clague, of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, told newsmen that when March and April hirings begin to revive the construction business and Easter trade, "we'll be able to tell better just where we are going."

Clague said his "general conviction" is that employment will not dip abnormally in the coming spring.

The federal official noted there was a drop of 1,750,000 workers in nan-agricultural jobs between mid-December and Mid-January. Part of this was seasonal, he said, but the overall decline was greater than normal.

Robert G. Goodwin, director of the Bureau of Employment Security, reported meanwhile that the number of people receiving jobless benefits increased by 62,000 to a total of 1,784,000 during the week ended February 12. In the same week in February, 1948, there were 1,030,000 such claims.

Fewer New Claimants

However, the number of new claimants — those who had not previously registered for aid—dropped to 334,000 during the week. This was a decrease of about 81,000 from the peak of 415,000 during the week ended January 8.

Clague explained that new claim-

REPORTED LYNCHED — A United States investigating officer charged yesterday that Greek guerrillas lynched Lt. Col. Selden R. Edner (above), 30, San Jose, Calif., an unarmed American observer whose plane crash-landed behind guerrilla lines four weeks ago. Col. Edner's mutilated body was found recently in a ravine near Karpenisi.

Defense Witness Turns On "Sally" At Treason Trial

"She Threatened Us," Former GI Shouts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—A defense witness turned in sudden accusation against Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars at her treason trial today, shouting that she threatened American soldiers in a German prison camp in 1944.

Another witness testified that Miss Gillars "tried to quit" her broadcasting job for the Nazi wartime radio, but was "threatened" by a German official.

The surprise twist came when Gunnar Drangsholt, Chicago, an ex-GI, was called by the defense to answer a single question.

Dramatic Outburst

Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin asked Drangsholt if Miss Gillars had posed as a Red Cross worker when she came to make recorded interviews with American war prisoners at Stalag 2-B in Germany.

Drangsholt, now a student at Northwestern University, said she did not.

Then in a dramatic outburst, shouting over Laughlin's angry protests, the witness glared at Miss Gillars and told the jury:

"She threatened us as she left—that American citizen, that woman right there:"

Drangsholt had originally been subpoenaed as a government witness. The prosecution cut short its case, however, and he was not called.

Laughlin put Drangsholt on the stand to refute testimony by previous witnesses that Miss Gillars claimed she represented the Red Cross in getting GIs to let her interview them for the German radio.

Had "High Ideals"

"That's all," Laughlin said in dismissal, after Drangsholt answered the question.

But Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, Jr., jumped to his feet and asked Drangsholt to tell more about his conversation with Miss Gillars.

"She said she was an American citizen," the witness related, "and was doing the things she was doing out of loyalty and patriotism. She also said she was paid by the German government.

"I asked her if it wasn't strange that if she was an American she could go floating around Germany while us Americans were locked up behind barbed wire. She said she had high ideals."

Huddle Fails To Produce Pact Accord

Acheson, Senators Confer Three Hours

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP) — An important huddle between Secretary of State Acheson and senators failed today to produce immediate agreement on the wording of a proposed North Atlantic defense pact to strengthen the West against Communism.

But another meeting will be held soon to continue the hunt for acceptable language. The thorniest problem is how far the United States shall go in promising aid to nations which might suffer aggression.

The meeting between Acheson and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee lasted for three hours. Afterward Chairman Connally (D-Tex) told newsmen:

"You can't even say any tentative agreement was reached."

Pledged To Secrecy

While committee members were pledged to secrecy, there were strong hints that there is no disagreement a security pact is necessary. The only question seems to be the form it will take.

Connally announced "it will be some little time yet before it is ready to be made public."

"Several suggestions were made on a phrase here and a word there," he said.

Connally and Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich) have said flatly they will not agree to a treaty which commits this country in advance to go to war in case any of the signatories is attacked.

Connally says his objection does not extend to measures short of war. But he argues that only Congress has the constitutional right to plunge the United States into armed conflict.

Some of the negotiators for Western European nations have been urging the United States to make the strongest possible commitment to act in case of war.

Ticklish Task For State Dept.

Thus the State Department is faced with the ticklish task of trying to arrive at wording which will be acceptable to the Senate, yet provide the Western Europeans with a sense of security.

Connally and other committee members gave out very little information about what went on behind the closed doors.

Connally said the committee and Acheson, bu mutual consent, discussed the proposed pact in its "present form." He added this form was "substantially what it will be finally, I presume."

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) said there was a "general discussion of the philosophy of the agreement." Hickenlooper himself favors a pact which would commit this country to go to the immediate aid of any member attacked.

Student Cancels Proposed Eating Contest With Hog

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 18 (AP)—An eating contest in which a University of Michigan student was to have been pitted against a hog was called off tonight — by the student.

With national magazines, radio networks and newsreel cameramen prepared to cover the epoch-making gastronomical bout, Engineering Student Paul H. Smith said "no."

Smith said he was "perturbed by the publicity" which might reflect on himself and his fraternity. He is a Monroe, Mich., resident.

His proposed opponent was Broadview Perfect Lad, a four-months-old boar.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP) —The yacht Spindrift, a participant in the Miami-Nassau sailing race, was overdue and being sought by air-sea rescue forces today.

Koehler Sworn In

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—John T. Koehler, 43, Maryland attorney, was sworn in today as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Held As Suspects In Looting Case

Walkout Called By Rome's Reds Proves Fizzle

ROME, Feb. 18 (AP) — Rome's Communist-led Chamber of Labor called a two-hour general strike today, but many persons who had not seen newspaper headlines were unaware such a walkout was staged.

Streetcars and buses ran as usual. Merchants kept their stores open and did not bother to pull down iron shutters.

A rally at the Colosseum drew only 6,000 to 8,000 persons and half that crowd drifted away before the rally ended. Strong contingents of mobile police, equipped with tommy guns, stood by, but there were no incidents. A year ago such rallies drew crowds of about 30,000.

Czechs Block U.S. Attempts To Gain Release Of Three

Two Army Recruits, Civilian Arrested

By A. I. GOLDBERG

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 18 (AP)—American officials disclosed today they have been blocked thus far in attempts to win the release of two United States Army soldiers and a civilian held by Czechoslovak authorities.

Recruits George R. Jones, Owensboro, Ky., and Clarence Hill, Jackson, Miss., have been detained more than two months. The civilian, Roland Goodale, Houston, Tex., was arrested January 5. He is described as a student tourist.

A statement issued in Washington and Prague said the United States government now is "considering what further steps" to take in the case of Jones and Hill. Formal protests concerning their detention already have been made to officials of Communist-dominated Czechoslovakia.

There were indications that a protest dealing with Goodale's case will be delivered to the Czechoslovak Foreign Office next week. The Foreign Office has not yet answered other protests about the stripping and searching of United States Embassy personnel leaving Czechoslovakia late last year.

Czechoslovak police arrested Goodale at Karlsbad (Karlovy Vary) on a charge of engaging in an illegal money transaction and have held him at the health resort.

American consular officials have not been allowed to talk with him. A letter with a request for an answer was sent to Goodale. Czechoslovak authorities said the letter was delivered, but no answer has been received.

A similar situation prevails in the case of the two soldiers. Despite steps taken by United States Ambassador Joseph E. Jacobs, no member of the embassy staff has been permitted to talk with Jones and Hill, the American statement said. It gave this account of the case:

Jones and Hill are members of the Sixth Armored Cavalry Regiment of the United States Constabulary. They have been reported absent without leave from their unit since December 1.

They are believed to have been picked up in Pilsen after wandering across the German-Czechoslovak border the night of December 10. Efforts to obtain their release through normal channels met with delays and evasions.

Czechoslovak officials were said to have contended that a police investigation, still in progress, showed that the soldiers went into Czechoslovakia on a "special mission." This was denied by the embassy.

Industry Group Called 'Enemy Of Democracy'

Sen. Pepper, Mosher Exchange Heated Words At Hearing

By MAX HALL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—In a table-thumping session today a leader of the National Association of Manufacturers defended the Taft-Hartley Act and Democratic senators replied with an angry attack on the NAM.

Sen. Pepper (D-Fla) called the organization an "enemy of democracy." He said it is "the spearhead and symbol of reactionary business forces in this country which can't see beyond the end of their noses."

Ira Mosher, a director and former president of NAM, was testifying before the Senate Labor Committee in a crowded little room at the Capitol.

At one point Pepper shouted:

"It was the workers' sons who died on the battlefields while the sons of manufacturers stayed home and got rich!"

Mosher leaned forward and snapped: "Just a minute. I'm losing my temper."

Pepper said: "Well, lose it."

Mosher said: "I lost three in my family during the war."

That didn't stop Pepper's rush of words.

"Better Balance" Urged

Later a spokesman for the United States Chamber of Commerce, Herman W. Steinkraus, Bridgeport, Conn., pleaded with the committee for "better balance" in considering labor legislation.

He said: "Keep what's good in that Taft-Hartley Act. Change what needs changing. But I think it can't be done on a political scrap basis, the way I've seen in this committee. It's got to be done on a basis of economic analysis. . . . If you get too much of this negative around here that industry stinks, you're going to be in trouble."

Sens. Murray (D-Mont) and Humphrey (D-Minn) joined Pepper in saying the NAM has never supported any "liberal legislation." Pepper complained that management is making the biggest profits in history, yet is "coming down here and making a crusade against labor."

Mosher said he is willing to stand on NAM's record concerning legislation. Then he added:

"But when you talk about management not contributing their share in the war, I think that is just pure abuse of the witness, and I resent it very much."

Point by point, Mosher defended the Taft-Hartley law which the administration wishes to repeal. In addition, he argued for federal regulation of industry-wide bargaining, a restriction favored by the NAM for years.

Cites "Union Monopolies"

In industry-wide bargaining a big union bargains with a whole group of employers instead of with each company separately. Mosher blamed this practice for "national emergency" strikes in vital industries.

He said the only real solution to such critical strikes is to regulate industry-wide bargaining which he said "always leads to union monopolies."

If Congress doesn't favor such regulation, Mosher suggested broadening the government's current power (granted by the Taft-Hartley Act) to delay critical strikes by injunctions "so long as the public health and safety may require."

The Thomas bill, which is before the Senate committee, would remove this injunction provision.

Four Recent Deaths Blamed On Substitute For Table Salt

Government Orders "Dangerous Poison" Taken Off Market

CHICAGO, Feb. 18 (AP) — A common table salt substitute was blamed today by the American Medical Association for at least four recent deaths.

The United States Food and Drug Administration ordered it withdrawn from the market and asked all persons who have purchased it to "stop using this dangerous poison at once."

The substance was described by the AMA as lithium chloride. Common table salt is sodium chloride.

The AMA said three of the deaths occurred in Cleveland, Ohio, and one in Ann Arbor, Mich. It added that "there is one ca: in Baltimore that's suspicious." But F. A. Korff, Baltimore food control director, said he did not know of any illnesses there resulting from lithium chloride. Korff said the substance "is used quite frequently when ordinary salt is forbidden."

Victims Not Identified

In Cleveland, the physician reportedly handling the cases refused to identify the victims, saying that it would be difficult to be positive that lithium chloride caused their deaths because of other contributing factors.

The Ann Arbor city health officer, Dr. John A. Wessinger, said he did not know of any such death as the AMA reported in Ann Arbor.

Another Ann Arbor physician, Dr. A. M. Waldron, said "there has been some sickness in Ann Arbor as a result of using salt substitutes, but no deaths as far as I know." Dr. Waldron has made a study of salt substitutes and written several articles on them for medical journals.

The AMA said it would not have any comment on these statements.

More Cases Expected

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal, said "we do not know how widely the product has been distributed. x x x There must be many cases of poisoning that have not been reported. It is to be expected that many more cases will be reported within the next few weeks."

Dr. Fishbein said the substance "is highly poisonous if a person is on a salt-restricted diet. The lithium in such cases is retained in the body and causes the poisoning."

In Washington, Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, commissioner of food and drugs, said three firms manufacturing the lithium salts have withdrawn them from the market. He listed the products and the companies involved as:

Westsal, Westwood Pharmaceutical Division, Foster-Milburn Company, Buffalo, N. Y.; Foodsal, Foods Plus, Inc., New York City, and Saltisalt, Lueths Bakery, Kansas City, Mo.

Transport Union Rejects Appeal

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18 (AP) — CIO union leaders shouted an emphatic "no" today to Mayor Bernard Samuel's plea that they accept a seven-cent fourth round wage boost and halt Philadelphia's eight-day transit strike.

The 1,500 miles of subway, bus and trolley lines operated by the Philadelphia Transportation Company have been shut down since midnight February 10 when the 11,000 members of the CIO Transport Workers Union walked off their jobs in a wage fight.

By today the spread between the bottom demand and top offer had narrowed to six cents. The union asked 13, the company proposed seven. When the walkout began the union was demanding 25 cents, the PTC's offer was two.

Samuel said in a statement directed to the strikers that "an impasse has been reached which can only be removed by the acceptance of the company's terms."

Doctor Slashes Youth's Throat To Save His Life

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 18 (AP)—A doctor plunged a knife into the throat of a strangling University of Pittsburgh freshman and saved his life.

James B. Henry, 20, Penn Township, collapsed in a hospital emergency room yesterday after an extremely swollen throat had closed off his windpipe.

There was no time for an anesthetic. Dr. Lloyd Mayer seized a scapel and slashed through the boy's windpipe to get air to his lungs.

Doctors said the swelling was caused by an ellergy to sulfanilamide. Henry had been chewing "sulfa gum" to relieve a throat irritation.

Truman Congratulates Israel's President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP) — President Truman today sent "heartiest congratulations" to Dr. Chaim Weizmann upon his election as the first President of the Sate of Israel. The message released by the State Department said:

"I send you my heartiest congratulations upon your election as first president of Israel. You have my best wishes for a happy and successful administration."

Bookie Crackdown

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP) —Arrest of every bookmaker in Florida was ordered today by Gov. Fuller Warren who said the state is being robbed of millions in tax money on illegal racing bets.

More Shootings In East Berlin

BERLIN, Feb. 18 (AP) — Gunfire crackled on Berlin's tense dividing line today as trigger-happy German police in the Soviet sector wounded two persons a few hours after shooting and killing a drunken motorist. All of the victims were Germans.

The same Russian-controlled police force also engaged in sporadic fist fights with passengers on subway and elevated trains.

All of the incidents grew out of the blockade-within-a-blockade which the Russians now are imposing on the western sectors of the city. The Soviet move is being bolstered by roadblocks built of paving stones and iron stanchions.

Today's scrape occurred when a vegetable dealer ignored a command to halt as he drove his truck toward the American sector.

The Soviet-controlled police fired four shots at the truck. The bullets missed the driver, but struck two bystanders—a German man and a 14-year-old girl. The girl suffered a leg wound and the man was hit in one hand. The truck escaped into the American sector.

Charles C. Bond, American public safety official, said the slaying of the motorist last night "comes close to being murder."

Butcher Asks 11 Cents Per Pound For His 1937 Car

STURGEON BAY, Wis., Feb. 18 (AP)—Maybe it's cheaper by the pound.

Butcher Francis Ripp advertised his 1937 model automobile for sale. He asked 11 cents a pound.

Ripp said he'd had a lot of calls, but hadn't closed the sale yet.

Grandmother Held On Bad Check Charge

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18 (AP) — A gray-haired Burbank grandmother was arrested by police today and booked on suspicion of passing $35,000 in bad checks over a period of 13 years.

The woman, Mrs. Margaret Berman, 53, was quoted by Det. Sgt. J. R. Ferguson: "I did it for my old mother, who is ill with arthritis, and for my grandchildren. I wanted the children to have toys and a happy childhood."

Eight Believed Dead In Crash

BEUNOS AIRES, Feb. 18 (AP)—Search crews moved by jeep and muleback tonight into mountains of Northwest Argentina to check the wreckage of a United States Army C-47 transport which the American Embassy believes carried eight persons to death.

The transport was attached to the office of Brig. Gen. B. H. Hovey the embassy's air attache. Hovey said it disappeared yesterday on a flight from Panama.

A search plane directed by Col. R. D. Knapp, chief of the United States Air Force mission to Argentina, sighted the wreckage early today in the mountains about 900 miles northwest of Buenos Aires and 60 miles west of Salta.

The ground searchers, in setting out from Salta, planned to travel six hours by jeep and then take to mules.

Army Virtually Admits Blunder

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—The United States Army, under criticism for issuing its recent report on wartime Soviet espionage in Japan, virtually admitted today that it had blundered.

Col. George S. Eyster, deputy chief of the Army's Public Information Division, said among other things that the division had no proof at hand to back up the charge in the report that Miss Agnes Smedley, American writer on Far East affairs, was a Russian spy.

Miss Smedley has heatedly denied the accusation. A number of newspaper editorials and syndicated columns have taken the Army to task for the manner in which the report was made public last week.

The critics have contended the report was lurid in style, insufficiently documented, and of a character to arouse suspicion and fear.

The document told how the Russians were able to loot the Japanese Cabinet and the German Embassy in Tokyo of vital military information. It said the incredibly successful spy ring was headed by Richard Sorge, a German Communist later hanged by the Japanese.

Eyster said the form in which the report was issued was contrary to the usual public relations policy of the Army.

Protective Trade Pact Clause Is Demanded

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP) — Spokesmen for farm and foreign trade groups today urged a free hand for President Truman in making reciprocal trade agreements, as already voted by the House.

But Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) and Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee demanded "stop, look and listen" provisions to "protect American industry against harmful foreign competition."

Republican Sens. Millikin (Colo), Butler (Neb), Brewster (Me) and Martin (Pa) complained that unemployment and declining sales now threaten such domestic industries as textiles, glass and pottery, and watch-making.

Blast Reveals Plot To Dynamite Accident Commission Members

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP)—A shattering blast rocked a fashionable residential district today, and police said it blew open a plot to dynamite doctors and members of the Industrial Accident Commission.

Being booked on suspicion at the time of the blast was the man Police Chief C. H. Anderson identified as responsible. He had been picked up when a radio officer found him lighting a fuse outside the home of a commission doctor.

In custody in General Hospital, where he was taken after a diabetic attack, is William J. Ward, 51, former shipyard worker and prospector. Anderson said enough dynamite to "blow up half the town" was found in Ward's pickup truck.

Badly damaged by the explosion was the $75,000 home of H. D. Hover, owner of Ciro's Restaurant. It was the third address on a list of seven in Ward's pocket, the chief said. Hover and a Filipino houseboy asleep in the rear were uninjured, but windows were broken in nearby homes, including that of Symphony Conductor Burno Walter.

Anderson said Hover was a target apparently by mistake. His brother-in-law is Dr. David Weller, an industrial accident commission physician. Dr. Weller is a frequent visitor at the house.

At the first two addresses on Ward's list, bundles of dynamite sticks wired together were discovered later in the day. Both fuses had burned out. One, at the home of Milton H. Silverberg, attorney and commission referee, had burned all but two feet of its 60-foot length. The other unexploded package was at the home of Anthony Racine, a commission member.

Fourth address on the list was that of Dr. F. W. Ilfield, another commission physician. There, Patrolman W. J. Forbes reported, he found Ward, armed and incoherent, trying to light the fuse. He took him to the police station, started to book him when Hover's home blew up. Ward fainted and was removed to General Hospital in a diabetic coma.

Canadian Held For Cross-Country Series Of Jewel, Fur Burglaries

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—A startling story of a cross-country series of robberies of wealthy homes which allegedly netted a smooth-appearing Canadian $600,000 in jewels and furs was unfolded by Westchester County authorities today.

The suspect, 29-year-old Gerard Graham Dennis, was uncommunicative at his arraignment on first degree burglary and felonious assault charges here.

But detectives said Dennis talked freely in private questioning and that the only trouble was he had pulled so many burglaries he couldn't remember them all.

Authorities in Westchester County, California and elsewhere said Dennis had:

Taken valuables worth $250,000 in the Beverly Hills, Calif., area, $140,000 worth of loot from 16 Westchester homes, and $170,000 in robberies in Canada.

Secreted $120,000 in jewels and furs in his Beverly Hills apartment.

Carried $18,000 in unset diamonds and $1,400 in cash at the time of his arrest in Cleveland Wednesday.

Carried in his wallet names of 22 movie stars and their secret addresses as a "list of prospects."

Maintained a notebook in his California apartment which contained the names of many wealthy persons.

Dennis, who purportedly used society pages for tips on his forays, is a slender, darkly handsome man. He was dressed nattily at his arraignment in a brown sharkskin suit, brown knitted tie, brown hat and a covert topcoat. His shirt cuffs were fastened with striking, heavy gold links.

Detective Lt. Maurice Kelly, of New Rochelle, said the Hollywood notables on the list in Dennis' pocket included Jack Benny, Bette Davis, Eddie Cantor, Edgar Bergen, Dorothy Lamour, Harold Lloyd, Mary Pickford, William Powell, Kay Francis and "Olivia De—," presumably Olivia De Havilland.

Liner's Engines Ailing

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—The liner Mauretania radioed today that she had developed "engine irregularities" near Nassau in the Bahamas and that she was turning back to New York with 735 passengers who were taking an eight-day Caribbean cruise.

Sub-Zero Cold Front Hits Northern Plains

[By The Associated Press]

A snow-charged sub-zero cold front hit the Northern Plains Friday, toppling temperatures as much as 52 degrees.

Strong winds carried their bite across the snow-laden expanses of Montana, Wyoming, and North and South Dakota, including most of the area where emergency relief operations have been continuous for nearly a month.

Along the upper coastal lowlands of Washington and Oregon, local flooding of streams continued and residents worried about the greater flood prospects of warmer weather.

Nation Is Undergoing "Healthy Disinflation," Dr. Nourse Says, But Cautions Against "Jitters"

Unemployment Rise No Cause For Worry, BLS Chief Asserts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Two high government officials said today they see no reason for alarm over the nation's economic outlook.

But one cautioned against "jitters;" the other acknowledged that the latest figure of nearly 3,000,000 jobless represents more than just seasonal unemployment.

These were the major developments in a day that saw government, business and labor leaders discussing the economic picture on many front:

1. Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, top economic adviser to President Truman, said the United States is going through a period of "healthy disinflation," but warned that any trend toward panic might lead to a recession.

2. Ewan Clague, the government's chief labor statistician, said that despite increases in unemployment, he couldn't see any cause for worry unless the number jumps to 5,000,000 jobless and stays there.

4. But the CIO, applauded the administration's economic proposals, including Mr. Truman's request for authority to build steel plants if necessary to provide enough steel. The CIO said if industry is "unable or unwilling to do the job," the government must step in.

Commissioner Clague, of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, told newsmen that when March and April hirings begin to revive the construction business and Easter trade, "we'll be able to tell better just where we are going."

Defense Witness Turns On "Sally" At Treason Trial

"She Threatened Us," Former GI Shouts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—A defense witness turned in sudden accusation against Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars at her treason trial today, shouting that she threatened American soldiers in a German prison camp in 1944.

Another witness testified that Miss Gillars "tried to quit" her broadcasting job for the Nazi wartime radio, but was "threatened" by a German official.

The surprise twist came when Gunnar Drangsholt, Chicago, an ex-GI, was called by the defense to answer a single question.

Dramatic Outburst

Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin asked Drangsholt if Miss Gillars had posed as a Red Cross worker when she came to make recorded interviews with American war prisoners at Stalag 2-B in Germany.

Drangsholt, now a student at Northwestern University, said she did not.

Then in a dramatic outburst, shouting over Laughlin's angry protests, the witness glared at Miss Gillars and told the jury:

"She threatened us as she left—that American citizen, that woman right there:"

Drangsholt had originally been subpoenaed as a government witness. The prosecution cut short its case, however, and he was not called.

Laughlin put Drangsholt on the stand to refute testimony by previous witnesses that Miss Gillars claimed she represented the Red Cross in getting GIs to let her interview them for the German radio.

Had "High Ideals"

"That's all," Laughlin said in dismissal, after Drangsholt answered the question.

But Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, Jr., jumped to his feet and asked Drangsholt to tell more about his conversation with Miss Gillars.

"She said she was an American citizen," the witness related, "and was doing the things she was doing out of loyalty and patriotism. She also said she was paid by the German government.

"I asked her if it wasn't strange that if she was an American she could go floating around Germany while us Americans were locked up behind barbed wire. She said she had high ideals."

Army Virtually Admits Blunder

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—The United States Army, under criticism for issuing its recent report on wartime Soviet espionage in Japan, virtually admitted today that it had blundered.

Col. George S. Eyster, deputy chief of the Army's Public Information Division, said among other things that the division had no proof at hand to back up the charge in the report that Miss Agnes Smedley, American writer on Far East affairs, was a Russian spy.

Miss Smedley has heatedly denied the accusation. A number of newspaper editorials and syndicated columns have taken the Army to task for the manner in which the report was made public last week.

The critics have contended the report was lurid in style, insufficiently documented, and of a character to arouse suspicion and fear.

The document told how the Russians were able to loot the Japanese Cabinet and the German Embassy in Tokyo of vital military information. It said the incredibly successful spy ring was headed by Richard Sorge, a German Communist later hanged by the Japanese.

Eyster said the form in which the report was issued was contrary to the usual public relations policy of the Army.

Protective Trade Pact Clause Is Demanded

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP) — Spokesmen for farm and foreign trade groups today urged a free hand for President Truman in making reciprocal trade agreements, as already voted by the House.

But Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) and Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee demanded "stop, look and listen" provisions to "protect American industry against harmful foreign competition."

Republican Sens. Millikin (Colo), Butler (Neb), Brewster (Me) and Martin (Pa) complained that unemployment and declining sales now threaten such domestic industries as textiles, glass and pottery, and watch-making.

Huddle Fails To Produce Pact Accord

Acheson, Senators Confer Three Hours

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP) — An important huddle between Secretary of State Acheson and senators failed today to produce immediate agreement on the wording of a proposed North Atlantic defense pact to strengthen the West against Communism.

But another meeting will be held soon to continue the hunt for acceptable language. The thorniest problem is how far the United States shall go in promising aid to nations which might suffer aggression.

The meeting between Acheson and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee lasted for three hours. Afterward Chairman Connally (D-Tex) told newsmen:

"You can't even say any tentative agreement was reached."

Pledged To Secrecy

While committee members were pledged to secrecy, there were strong hints that there is no disagreement a security pact is necessary. The only question seems to be the form it will take.

Connally announced "it will be some little time yet before it is ready to be made public."

"Several suggestions were made on a phrase here and a word there," he said.

Connally and Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich) have said flatly they will not agree to a treaty which commits this country in advance to go to war in case any of the signatories is attacked.

Connally says his objection does not extend to measures short of war. But he argues that only Congress has the constitutional right to plunge the United States into armed conflict.

Some of the negotiators for Western European nations have been urging the United States to make the strongest possible commitment to act in case of war.

Ticklish Task For State Dept.

Thus the State Department is faced with the ticklish task of trying to arrive at wording which will be acceptable to the Senate, yet provide the Western Europeans with a sense of security.

Connally and other committee members gave out very little information about what went on behind the closed doors.

Connally said the committee and Acheson, bu mutual consent, discussed the proposed pact in its "present form." He added this form was "substantially what it will be finally, I presume."

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) said there was a "general discussion of the philosophy of the agreement." Hickenlooper himself favors a pact which would commit this country to go to the immediate aid of any member attacked.

Student Cancels Proposed Eating Contest With Hog

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 18 (AP)—An eating contest in which a University of Michigan student was to have been pitted against a hog was called off tonight — by the student.

With national magazines, radio networks and newsreel cameramen prepared to cover the epoch-making gastronomical bout, Engineering Student Paul H. Smith said "no."

Smith said he was "perturbed by the publicity" which might reflect on himself and his fraternity. He is a Monroe, Mich., resident.

His proposed opponent was Broadview Perfect Lad, a four-months-old boar.

Blast Reveals Plot To Dynamite Accident Commission Members

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP)—A shattering blast rocked a fashionable residential district today, and police said it blew open a plot to dynamite doctors and members of the Industrial Accident Commission.

Being booked on suspicion at the time of the blast was the man Police Chief C. H. Anderson identified as responsible. He had been picked up when a radio officer found him lighting a fuse outside the home of a commission doctor.

In custody in General Hospital, where he was taken after a diabetic attack, is William J. Ward, 51, former shipyard worker and prospector. Anderson said enough dynamite to "blow up half the town" was found in Ward's pickup truck.

Badly damaged by the explosion was the $75,000 home of H. D. Hover, owner of Ciro's Restaurant. It was the third address on a list of seven in Ward's pocket, the chief said. Hover and a Filipino houseboy asleep in the rear were uninjured, but windows were broken in nearby homes, including that of Symphony Conductor Burno Walter.

Anderson said Hover was a target apparently by mistake. His brother-in-law is Dr. David Weller, an industrial accident commission physician. Dr. Weller is a frequent visitor at the house.

At the first two addresses on Ward's list, bundles of dynamite sticks wired together were discovered later in the day. Both fuses had burned out. One, at the home of Milton H. Silverberg, attorney and commission referee, had burned all but two feet of its 60-foot length. The other unexploded package was at the home of Anthony Racine, a commission member.

Fourth address on the list was that of Dr. F. W. Ilfield, another commission physician. There, Patrolman W. J. Forbes reported, he found Ward, armed and incoherent, trying to light the fuse. He took him to the police station, started to book him when Hover's home blew up. Ward fainted and was removed to General Hospital in a diabetic coma.

Held As Suspects In Looting Case

Attractive Betty Ritchie (above), 24, is pictured in Beverly Hills, Calif., jail after she was booked on suspicion of burglary by police who found $120,000 in jewels and furs in an apartment she occupied. The arrest of Gerald Graham Dennis in a Cleveland, Ohio, jewelry store led police to the cache. Dennis is shown in the picture at the right being fingerprinted by Technician Victor Peterfreund at New Rochelle, N. Y., after being brought from Cleveland to face charges of looting wealthy Westchester County homes. The 29-year-old Canadian, hunted for two years, allegedly netted $600,000 from his cross-country series of robberies of wealthy homes. Police reported Dennis had in his wallet a list of 22 top movie stars and their secret addresses as a "list of prospects." Story at bottom of page).

Warning Issued

Government Orders "Dangerous Poison" Taken Off Market

CHICAGO, Feb. 18 (AP) — A common table salt substitute was blamed today by the American Medical Association for at least four recent deaths.

The United States Food and Drug Administration ordered it withdrawn from the market and asked all persons who have purchased it to "stop using this dangerous poison at once."

The substance was described by the AMA as lithium chloride. Common table salt is sodium chloride.

The AMA said three of the deaths occurred in Cleveland, Ohio, and one in Ann Arbor, Mich. It added that "there is one ca: in Baltimore that's suspicious." But F. A. Korff, Baltimore food control director, said he did not know of any illnesses there resulting from lithium chloride. Korff said the substance "is used quite frequently when ordinary salt is forbidden."

Victims Not Identified

In Cleveland, the physician reportedly handling the cases refused to identify the victims, saying that it would be difficult to be positive that lithium chloride caused their deaths because of other contributing factors.

The Ann Arbor city health officer, Dr. John A. Wessinger, said he did not know of any such death as the AMA reported in Ann Arbor.

Another Ann Arbor physician, Dr. A. M. Waldron, said "there has been some sickness in Ann Arbor as a result of using salt substitutes, but no deaths as far as I know." Dr. Waldron has made a study of salt substitutes and written several articles on them for medical journals.

The AMA said it would not have any comment on these statements.

More Cases Expected

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal, said "we do not know how widely the product has been distributed. x x x There must be many cases of poisoning that have not been reported. It is to be expected that many more cases will be reported within the next few weeks."

Dr. Fishbein said the substance "is highly poisonous if a person is on a salt-restricted diet. The lithium in such cases is retained in the body and causes the poisoning."

In Washington, Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, commissioner of food and drugs, said three firms manufacturing the lithium salts have withdrawn them from the market. He listed the products and the companies involved as:

Westsal, Westwood Pharmaceutical Division, Foster-Milburn Company, Buffalo, N. Y.; Foodsal, Foods Plus, Inc., New York City, and Saltisalt, Lueths Bakery, Kansas City, Mo.

Transport Union Rejects Appeal

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18 (AP) — CIO union leaders shouted an emphatic "no" today to Mayor Bernard Samuel's plea that they accept a seven-cent fourth round wage boost and halt Philadelphia's eight-day transit strike.

The 1,500 miles of subway, bus and trolley lines operated by the Philadelphia Transportation Company have been shut down since midnight February 10 when the 11,000 members of the CIO Transport Workers Union walked off their jobs in a wage fight.

By today the spread between the bottom demand and top offer had narrowed to six cents. The union asked 13, the company proposed seven. When the walkout began the union was demanding 25 cents, the PTC's offer was two.

Samuel said in a statement directed to the strikers that "an impasse has been reached which can only be removed by the acceptance of the company's terms."

Doctor Slashes Youth's Throat To Save His Life

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 18 (AP)—A doctor plunged a knife into the throat of a strangling University of Pittsburgh freshman and saved his life.

James B. Henry, 20, Penn Township, collapsed in a hospital emergency room yesterday after an extremely swollen throat had closed off his windpipe.

There was no time for an anesthetic. Dr. Lloyd Mayer seized a scapel and slashed through the boy's windpipe to get air to his lungs.

Doctors said the swelling was caused by an ellergy to sulfanilamide. Henry had been chewing "sulfa gum" to relieve a throat irritation.

Truman Congratulates Israel's President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP) — President Truman today sent "heartiest congratulations" to Dr. Chaim Weizmann upon his election as the first President of the Sate of Israel. The message released by the State Department said:

"I send you my heartiest congratulations upon your election as first president of Israel. You have my best wishes for a happy and successful administration."

More Shootings In East Berlin

BERLIN, Feb. 18 (AP) — Gunfire crackled on Berlin's tense dividing line today as trigger-happy German police in the Soviet sector wounded two persons a few hours after shooting and killing a drunken motorist. All of the victims were Germans.

The same Russian-controlled police force also engaged in sporadic fist fights with passengers on subway and elevated trains.

All of the incidents grew out of the blockade-within-a-blockade which the Russians now are imposing on the western sectors of the city. The Soviet move is being bolstered by roadblocks built of paving stones and iron stanchions.

Today's scrape occurred when a vegetable dealer ignored a command to halt as he drove his truck toward the American sector.

The Soviet-controlled police fired four shots at the truck. The bullets missed the driver, but struck two bystanders—a German man and a 14-year-old girl. The girl suffered a leg wound and the man was hit in one hand. The truck escaped into the American sector.

Charles C. Bond, American public safety official, said the slaying of the motorist last night "comes close to being murder."

Butcher Asks 11 Cents Per Pound For His 1937 Car

STURGEON BAY, Wis., Feb. 18 (AP)—Maybe it's cheaper by the pound.

Butcher Francis Ripp advertised his 1937 model automobile for sale. He asked 11 cents a pound.

Ripp said he'd had a lot of calls, but hadn't closed the sale yet.

Walkout Called By Rome's Reds Proves Fizzle

ROME, Feb. 18 (AP) — Rome's Communist-led Chamber of Labor called a two-hour general strike today, but many persons who had not seen newspaper headlines were unaware such a walkout was staged.

Streetcars and buses ran as usual. Merchants kept their stores open and did not bother to pull down iron shutters.

A rally at the Colosseum drew only 6,000 to 8,000 persons and half that crowd drifted away before the rally ended. Strong contingents of mobile police, equipped with tommy guns, stood by, but there were no incidents. A year ago such rallies drew crowds of about 30,000.

Czechs Block U.S. Attempts To Gain Release Of Three

Two Army Recruits, Civilian Arrested

By A. I. GOLDBERG

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 18 (AP)—American officials disclosed today they have been blocked thus far in attempts to win the release of two United States Army soldiers and a civilian held by Czechoslovak authorities.

Recruits George R. Jones, Owensboro, Ky., and Clarence Hill, Jackson, Miss., have been detained more than two months. The civilian, Roland Goodale, Houston, Tex., was arrested January 5. He is described as a student tourist.

A statement issued in Washington and Prague said the United States government now is "considering what further steps" to take in the case of Jones and Hill. Formal protests concerning their detention already have been made to officials of Communist-dominated Czechoslovakia.

There were indications that a protest dealing with Goodale's case will be delivered to the Czechoslovak Foreign Office next week. The Foreign Office has not yet answered other protests about the stripping and searching of United States Embassy personnel leaving Czechoslovakia late last year.

Czechoslovak police arrested Goodale at Karlsbad (Karlovy Vary) on a charge of engaging in an illegal money transaction and have held him at the health resort.

American consular officials have not been allowed to talk with him. A letter with a request for an answer was sent to Goodale. Czechoslovak authorities said the letter was delivered, but no answer has been received.

A similar situation prevails in the case of the two soldiers. Despite steps taken by United States Ambassador Joseph E. Jacobs, no member of the embassy staff has been permitted to talk with Jones and Hill, the American statement said. It gave this account of the case:

Jones and Hill are members of the Sixth Armored Cavalry Regiment of the United States Constabulary. They have been reported absent without leave from their unit since December 1.

They are believed to have been picked up in Pilsen after wandering across the German-Czechoslovak border the night of December 10. Efforts to obtain their release through normal channels met with delays and evasions.

Czechoslovak officials were said to have contended that a police investigation, still in progress, showed that the soldiers went into Czechoslovakia on a "special mission." This was denied by the embassy.

Grandmother Held On Bad Check Charge

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18 (AP) — A gray-haired Burbank grandmother was arrested by police today and booked on suspicion of passing $35,000 in bad checks over a period of 13 years.

The woman, Mrs. Margaret Berman, 53, was quoted by Det. Sgt. J. R. Ferguson: "I did it for my old mother, who is ill with arthritis, and for my grandchildren. I wanted the children to have toys and a happy childhood."

Canadian Held For Cross-Country Series Of Jewel, Fur Burglaries

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—A startling story of a cross-country series of robberies of wealthy homes which allegedly netted a smooth-appearing Canadian $600,000 in jewels and furs was unfolded by Westchester County authorities today.

The suspect, 29-year-old Gerard Graham Dennis, was uncommunicative at his arraignment on first degree burglary and felonious assault charges here.

But detectives said Dennis talked freely in private questioning and that the only trouble was he had pulled so many burglaries he couldn't remember them all.

Authorities in Westchester County, California and elsewhere said Dennis had:

Taken valuables worth $250,000 in the Beverly Hills, Calif., area, $140,000 worth of loot from 16 Westchester homes, and $170,000 in robberies in Canada.

Secreted $120,000 in jewels and furs in his Beverly Hills apartment.

Carried $18,000 in unset diamonds and $1,400 in cash at the time of his arrest in Cleveland Wednesday.

Carried in his wallet names of 22 movie stars and their secret addresses as a "list of prospects."

Maintained a notebook in his California apartment which contained the names of many wealthy persons.

Dennis, who purportedly used society pages for tips on his forays, is a slender, darkly handsome man. He was dressed nattily at his arraignment in a brown sharkskin suit, brown knitted tie, brown hat and a covert topcoat. His shirt cuffs were fastened with striking, heavy gold links.

Industry Group Called 'Enemy Of Democracy'

Sen. Pepper, Mosher Exchange Heated Words At Hearing

By MAX HALL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—In a table-thumping session today a leader of the National Association of Manufacturers defended the Taft-Hartley Act and Democratic senators replied with an angry attack on the NAM.

Sen. Pepper (D-Fla) called the organization an "enemy of democracy." He said it is "the spearhead and symbol of reactionary business forces in this country which can't see beyond the end of their noses."

Ira Mosher, a director and former president of NAM, was testifying before the Senate Labor Committee in a crowded little room at the Capitol.

At one point Pepper shouted:

"It was the workers' sons who died on the battlefields while the sons of manufacturers stayed home and got rich!"

Mosher leaned forward and snapped: "Just a minute. I'm losing my temper."

Pepper said: "Well, lose it."

Mosher said: "I lost three in my family during the war."

That didn't stop Pepper's rush of words.

"Better Balance" Urged

Later a spokesman for the United States Chamber of Commerce, Herman W. Steinkraus, Bridgeport, Conn., pleaded with the committee for "better balance" in considering labor legislation.

He said: "Keep what's good in that Taft-Hartley Act. Change what needs changing. But I think it can't be done on a political scrap basis, the way I've seen in this committee. It's got to be done on a basis of economic analysis. . . . If you get too much of this negative around here that industry stinks, you're going to be in trouble."

Sens. Murray (D-Mont) and Humphrey (D-Minn) joined Pepper in saying the NAM has never supported any "liberal legislation." Pepper complained that management is making the biggest profits in history, yet is "coming down here and making a crusade against labor."

Mosher said he is willing to stand on NAM's record concerning legislation. Then he added:

"But when you talk about management not contributing their share in the war, I think that is just pure abuse of the witness, and I resent it very much."

Point by point, Mosher defended the Taft-Hartley law which the administration wishes to repeal. In addition, he argued for federal regulation of industry-wide bargaining, a restriction favored by the NAM for years.

Cites "Union Monopolies"

In industry-wide bargaining a big union bargains with a whole group of employers instead of with each company separately. Mosher blamed this practice for "national emergency" strikes in vital industries.

He said the only real solution to such critical strikes is to regulate industry-wide bargaining which he said "always leads to union monopolies."

If Congress doesn't favor such regulation, Mosher suggested broadening the government's current power (granted by the Taft-Hartley Act) to delay critical strikes by injunctions "so long as the public health and safety may require."

The Thomas bill, which is before the Senate committee, would remove this injunction provision.

Eight Believed Dead In Crash

BEUNOS AIRES, Feb. 18 (AP)—Search crews moved by jeep and muleback tonight into mountains of Northwest Argentina to check the wreckage of a United States Army C-47 transport which the American Embassy believes carried eight persons to death.

The transport was attached to the office of Brig. Gen. B. H. Hovey the embassy's air attache. Hovey said it disappeared yesterday on a flight from Panama.

A search plane directed by Col. R. D. Knapp, chief of the United States Air Force mission to Argentina, sighted the wreckage early today in the mountains about 900 miles northwest of Buenos Aires and 60 miles west of Salta.

The ground searchers, in setting out from Salta, planned to travel six hours by jeep and then take to mules.

Sub-Zero Cold Front Hits Northern Plains

[By The Associated Press]

A snow-charged sub-zero cold front hit the Northern Plains Friday, toppling temperatures as much as 52 degrees.

Strong winds carried their bite across the snow-laden expanses of Montana, Wyoming, and North and South Dakota, including most of the area where emergency relief operations have been continuous for nearly a month.

Along the upper coastal lowlands of Washington and Oregon, local flooding of streams continued and residents worried about the greater flood prospects of warmer weather.

A Program For Better Medical Care In America

When the controversial labor bill is disposed of, Congress will take up the President's no less controversial scheme for universal and compulsory Federal sickness insurance.

The great majority of American physicians oppose this plan. Citing the experience of Britain, parts of Canada and of several countries on the European continent, they are convinced that this kind of "socialized medicine" would mean poorer service to the sick. At this time of serious shortage of physicians, hospitals and nurses, a Government "guarantee" of medical service to all, at public expense—meaning through taxation on every income—would inevitably mean neglect of the seriously ill for the sake of the mass of slightly ill and the malingerers. The result would be to cripple the best medical service on earth.

Those who oppose the Administration plan do not say that American medical service cannot be improved. The American Medical Association, representing 15,000 physicians, has just announced a timely program to bring "a wider and better distribution of medical care to the American people." This 12-point program calls for expansion of medical and dental teaching, and of facilities for treating the sick—especially the mentally ill and the aged.

The American Medical Association recommends a Federal Department of Science of Cabinet status, with a physician as secretary. It also urges the use of Federal money to promote medical research, sponsored by the Government but administered by a non-governmental board. Finally, it calls for expansion of voluntary hospital and medical care insurance, especially in the rural areas.

The last proposal is something of a departure for the American Medical Association. Many members of the group have felt that its head, Dr. Morris Fishbein, was "missing a bet" in not encouraging voluntary medical insurance, even as he rightly opposed compulsory Federal insurance. The great success of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans, which now cover 50,000,000 Americans, has shown what can be done by private insurance, which offers protection to the individual and his family and at the same time avoids all the dangers of "state medicine."

British biologist says man should live 200 years. At the same time it is predicted the food supply will be exhausted in 100 years. Apparently humanity is to end up in a tie.

Uncle Sam Is Found To Be "Bad Housekeeper"

There was "The Old Curiosity Shop" of Charles Dickens; there was also, and not long ago, the case of those elderly bachelors who crowded their house with junk from cellar to attic, and set a "booby trap" to protect it, in which the surviving brother unwittingly garroted himself.

What we are talking about? Of course, of neither, but of Uncle Sam, a "bad housekeeper" if ever there was one, according to the report of the Hoover Commission. The Government records, it says, "would fill six buildings the size of the collosal Pentagon." (Our own interpolation: Who ever looks at them?) Stocks on hand, it is added, would meet the needs of the agencies at present consumption rates for from one to fifty years. Government has a million motor vehicles worth "at least $2,000,000,000." In storage in various parts of the country are its military and civilian inventories, worth $27,000,000,000. Every year it spends $6,000,000,000 for new supplies, material and equipment.

Two pungent side remarks: (1) Half of these purchases are for $10 or less, and "since the cost of processing a purchase transaction is greatly in excess of $10, the overhead cost is more than the cost of the goods." (2) "Funds remaining near the end of a fiscal year are frequently expended for supplies and equipment, in order to avoid returning the money to the Treasury."

We go back to the incident of the brothers in the over-stuffed house, and the "booby trap" which closed their story. Couldn't that happen to an uncle also—to that inveterate pack rat, your Uncle Sam?

In Germany food is being taken to the people by airplane. In this country a haylift is saving starving livestock. How did the world ever get along without the Wright brothers' invention?

A Month In Every Year Of Waiting

Time drags its feet in February. The days are longer than in November, when the leaves have fallen but Winter defers its coming—longer than in August, that month when the Summer begins to die and the earth seems to spin more slowly on its axis. Sometimes it seems that February will never pass and late March bring the greening grass.

The Romans, who gave us our calendar, knew this same hunger for Spring at this time of year. Early in their history they counted only 10 months, leaving a gap of some 60 days between the end of one year and the beginning of the next. In time they added January and February, but they made February short. They gave all the other months 31 days, 30 or 29. They allotted only 28 days to Februarius.

Their calendar was imperfect still. It left them extra days to account for somehow, to make their year fit the unvarying habit of the sun, but apparently they wanted to avoid a longer February. Every second year they stopped the month at the 23rd, threw in the surplus days as a "monsis intercalaria" they called Mercedonius, and then started again with February 24.

Somehow, despite them, the month gained a day. It had 29 days when Julius Caesar reformed the calendar. He kept it there by ordering February 23 repeated once every four years. Then, when Augustus had to have a month as long as Julius', he took the needed day from February. Nobody minded so much then and nobody has cared much since, so February has 28 days three years out of four.

Perhaps the reason calendar reformers have not made much progress is that they want February to be the same length as other months. For thousands of years men have insisted on having this month of waiting kept shorter than the others. They may never be persuaded that it is not too long already.

There is a movement on foot to have each state adopt an official dog. But shouldn't the tree come first?

A Baby Cannot Be "Marked"

THERE are numerous misconceptions as to the origin of birthmarks and many individuals believe that they are caused by some unusual event occurring to the mother before the birth of the child. Even the term suggests the thought that an accident or a strain has left its "mark" on the developing baby. But such factors have nothing to do with the lesions and most of the stories are old wives' tales handed down through the generations.

Physicians frequently encounter cases which tend to show how such superstitions originate. Doctor Harry M. Hedge, for example, over a recent televised program, told of a little girl with a spider-shaped nevus on the forehead. Her mother insisted that it resulted from the shock received when she discovered a spider descending from the ceiling of the room. The blemish was not a perfect replica of a spider but, by using a little imagination, the outline was suggestive. At any rate, a story like this spreads like wildfire and is taken as the gospel truth.

The lurid possibilities change as the years roll by and, if fright were responsible, we should begin to see lesions that look like automobile wheels, airplane wings, or jet propulsion iron birds. Furthermore, birthmarks come in various sizes and shapes and the onlooker can make anything out of them that pleases his fancy. In this respect they resemble clouds, shadows, ink spots, and peculiar rock formations in which a man's nose, a woman's profile, or the head of a cat or dog can be visualized.

To the best of my knowledge the lesions are merely defects in development. Hedge quotes Dr. William Pusey, the eminent skin specialist, as saying the they are "just a part of the skin that was not built according to specifications." The majority are noticed at birth or shortly thereafter. They range in color from bright red to deep purple and in size from a pinhead to several feet in diameter. Some are flat and flush with the skin; others are elevated and protrude like tumors. They usually are made up of blood or lymph vessels and blanch is pressed upon or enlarge temporarily when crying or during excitement. Now and then they pulsate with each beat of the heart.

There are several ways in which birthmarks can be removed and the exact method depends upon their location and size. Some are excised via surgery; others burned with an electric cautery. The area is anesthetized first to make the procedure painless. Radium also may be used; this plan is relatively simple and the results are excellent. Carbon dioxide snow is another form of therapy. This substance is taken from a tank, molded into the shape of a pencil, and applied directly over the lesion. Destruction of the birthmark occurs by freezing the tissues. Now and then carbon dioxide snow is added to acetone to make a colder (165 degrees below zero) mixture. At any rate, there is no scarcity of treatments and if the work is done in infancy, a smaller scar remains.

LEG ULCERATION

E. R. writes: Would penicillin help a leg ulcer in an elderly person?

Reply

Yes, if the germs in the ulcer are of the type that are affected by the wonder drug. But this is only one part of the treatment of such lesions. Attention must be directer to the cause. For example, if the circulation is impaired, an attempt should be made to improve the flow of blood.

LOCAL TIC

Reply

Many of us are troubled occasionally by twitching in this area, The condition is due to a muscular contraction and the usual causes are eye strain, overfatigue, too much coffee or tobacco, and throat infections.

BIOPSY NEEDED

A. R. writes: Would X-ray of the throat reveal whether cancer is present?

Reply

No. Cancer of the throat is usually detected by looking at the lesion and removing a portion for laboratory study.

No. Your husband will notice the different but your infant won't.

Baering Down On The News

Republican minority in Congress is like the anchor-man on a bobsled team. He's the heavy fellow who throws his weight around and drags his feet.

It manged to brake a delay on Harry's labor bill and a couple of other codicils to the will of the majority. And a postponement to the GOP is like rain to the White Sox. Almost a victory.

It sort of keeps the two-party system glimmering as faintly as the tail-light of a sick lightning bug in a heavy summer fog. Now you see it and now you don't.

But no matter how bright it gets you will never light your pipe on it.

Riding Gratitude Train's Boxcars Revives World War I Memories; Horses Preferred to Men as Companions; They Kept Boxcar Warm

Says DREW PEARSON

ABOARD THE FRENCH GRATITUDE TRAIN, Feb. 18.—Here I am riding on freight trains again. Of course, these French freight cars are getting super-de luxe treatment, thanks to the courtesy and generosity of the American railroads. But anyway, riding with them brings back memories of the days when I rode in similar boxcars in the Balkans after World War I.

M. Charles d'Hagues, the French railway mechanic who is traveling with the Gratitude Train, describes these boxcars as "tres fatigue." Perhaps because they are "very tired," have been everywhere, seen everything, a world of sentiment of memories is tied up in them. These are the same type cars that France sent down to aid her ally, Serbia, during and after the first war, and they are the same cars that carried Friendship Train food through France and Italy just a little over a year ago.

For many months after World War I they were the only thing in which you could travel. And when it came to choosing between "forty men and eight horses," I personally preferred riding with the eight horses.

Reason was that the horses kept the car warm. And you have no idea how cold those cars could get on winter nights. If, however, you picked out a strain carrying cavalry, and slipped into a car with eight horses, you were reasonably sure of spending a warm night. The horses were always tied, their heads facing the door, so you could sleep on the hay in front of them with no danger from their heels. In the morning you woke up to find all the hay eaten out from under you, and perhaps some of your hair nibbled at—but at least it was warm.

Special Police Guard Boxcars

Today the American railroads are guarding these French boxcars with special police night and day, as if they were museum pieces—which, in effect they are. But in the Balkans, there was only one way to keep your boxcar from being rifled—sleep in it yourself.

And, as part of my job was to transport relief supplies from Belgrade south to the Jugoslav-Albanian border, boxcars were a sort of second home to me.

Sometimes we borrowed Jugoslav gendarmes from the government to guard supplies, but usually that meant about 10 per cent of your flour and sugar was sold along the way—by the gendarme.

Or sometimes when you didn't have supplies to guard you rode in the caboose—also unheated, except for a Standard Oil can, with holes punched in the sides and a couple of chunks of soft coal burning inside. What smoke belched forth from those cans! There was no chimney, so it was a toss-up whether to stay in the caboose and smother or go on the rear platform and freeze.

"American Ladies"

Then there were those post-war locomotives. Sometimes I rode in them, because they were warm. Usually, they barely crept along and sometimes they didn't go at all. Many of them were left behind by the American Army and had whistles reminiscent of the locomotives of our Western states. You could always recognize them by their whistle, and the Serbs, hearing them, would call them "Amerikana," meaning "American Lady."

One Amerikana behind which I rode got stalled on a cold January night in the mountain pass south of Nish, and I still recall as if it were yesterday lining up a dozen men between the locomotive and a creek to pass water in Standard Oil tins up to the boiler. The Serbs had expected the "American Lady" to make steam with her boiler dry!

Europe's Railroads Better Now

The railroads of Europe have improved a lot since then. Even the French and Italian roads, though suffering terrific punishment during the war, are now pretty well back on their feet. You still have to take along steamer rugs, heavy socks and long underwear to stay warm, and traveling through most of Europe in wintertime is something you don't do just for the fun of it.

All of which is by way of contrast with the way American railroads are run today, as evidenced by the operation of the Gratitude Train. American railroads are carrying these 49 boxcars 70,700 miles, or the equivalent of three times around the world. To plan this schedule traffic managers for about 17 roads sat down in Washington well before the French ship docked and figured out, almost to the last hour and minute, when each car would arrive at its destination, and how approximately eight sections of the train would fan out through the United States.

When the SS Magellan tied up at the Erie RR docks in Weehauken, 49 flatcars were set and waiting on the pier. And within 30 minutes after the ship was secured, the first French car was hoisted by crane into the waiting flatcar.

The last of the French cars are being delivered next week—a terrific job, executed without a slip-up.

Basic-Materials Demand Firm

President Truman is getting worried about heavy deflationary pressures on US economy. The White House has learned that unemployment benefits have increased for 10 straight weeks—also that various factories throughout the country have been shut down.

In discussing this with aides last week, Truman pointed out that the $64 question is not the softening in the commodities or luxury-goods lines but whether or not prices drop in basic materials — steel, aluminum, coal, electrical goods, autos and radios.

The demand in all these lines, with the exception of automobiles, remains heavy. Truman feels the large federal budget and the heavy war-preparedness program are guarantees against any serious slump.

North Atlantic Pact As It Confronts Congress Of U.S.

By MARK SULLIVAN

A conidtion that never faced Congress before confronts it in the debate about the North Atlantic Security Pact. It is this that accounts for the present agitation about the pact. The condition is at once starkly new in the world, and infinitely deep-reaching. It is at the same time imperative. We must look it in the face. And to look it in the fact, to make decisions about it, as we must, obliges us to give new thought to things we have taken for granted.

The facts are familiar enough. There is being written a pact of North Atlantic nations; it is for mutual defense. It embraces the United States, Canada, Britain, France, and other nations of Western Europe. The purpose, as everybody knows, is mutual military defense against attack by Russia. The pact provides that if any one of the member nations is attacked, the other member nations will go to its assistance. We want the pact for our own security. We would go to the defense of Western European nations for the purpose of preventing their territory from becoming, after subjugation by Russia, a basis of attack upon us.

Constitution Involved

Entrance by us into such a pact involves the Constitution. Under the Constitution, the United States can go to war only by declaration of war by Congress. Here begins the new condition that confronts us.

If we are to go to the defense of a number of the North Atlantic alliance, we must go quickly. Quickness is made imperative by the nearness of Russia to the European nations in the North Atlantic alliance.

One of the nations, Norway, is in direct contact with Russia. Norway could be attacked and overwhelmed by Russia in as short a space of time as would be consumed by the process of declaration of war by Congress—formal request for the declaration by the President, as much debate as might follow, and passage of the declaration. Russian bombs could be falling on all Norway in shorter time than a roll call in Congress would take. The other Western European nations in the North Atlantic alliance are only a matter of hours less exposed. A Russian blitz could be upon any of them within days, and it is blitz that the Russian action would be

If the North Atlantic Security Pact is to be of use to the nations of Western Europe, the defense by us which it provides must be quick. Unless it comes quickly it is no security at all. Unless the pact permits quickness, some Western European nations may be reluctant to join, the very possibility of a pact may be threatened, or at least the extent of it.

Runs Counter To Tradition

What quickness calls for is that the President, with his military heads, be able to act instantly. That runs counter to the constitutional power of Congress about declaring war, and counter to a cherished American tradition both about limitation of the power of the President and about war. The very idea of such a pact as the present one at all runs counter to the tradition, beginning with George Washington's admonition that we avoid involvement in the affairs of Europe. Almost we are called upon to change our very ways of thinking.

How adjustments may be made between constitutional limitations and the present pact will come up when the wording of the text of the pact is made public and the text as then known is discussed in Congress. Congress cherishes its powers, properly.

The new condition in the modern world bears heavily upon us. It is physical and inescapable. It is brought by invention and science—speed annihilation of distance, improvement of instruments of war, the atomic age. And the new condition bears more broadly than on the matter of war. It bears on all the economic and social fields into which government has spread.

This challenges the ability of legislative government, a Congress to act in any matter with the speed and detail and complexity which the new condition in the world demands. It calls for conferring flexibility and authority for speedy action on the executive branch of government. This in turn creates temptation to let government become totalitarian. Avoidance of that calls in turn for flexibility on the part of Congress.

The problem of the division of powers between Congress and the executive is basic in the present matter of the North Atlantic Securiy Pact. But it arises also, and increasingly, in many domestic matters. Congress, like any other institution, to survive in a changed and changing world, must achieve adaptability. It must combine firmness in safeguarding its powers and functions with adaptation in the exercise of them.

Government Holds Answer To Future Economic Trend

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—Well, maybe, as the Brookings Institution's economist says, it's only a "burp" and not a bellyache, and that nursery language describes the present economic situation, but there can be no doubt that business men have been worried about the outlook and that layoffs of workers are proceeding.

While A. D. H. Kaplan testified before the joint economic committee that the economic system had been taking milk too fast and just had to let up for a bit, there have also been some comments put into the record by other economists who think of the present period as one of serious readjustment.

Members of Congress are unquestionably puzzled by the reports of a rise in unemployment, and they are wary lest any mood of pessimism be developed which would retard economic operations that should not be in the least influenced by the changes that are going on.

The truth is that nobody really can have an accurate over-all picture of anything so large as a $225,000,000,000 economy. There are no charts by which to steer except, of course, the laws of supply and demand and the rules against overexpansion and miscalculation of demand.

Long-Range Plans Stymied

Busines men generally cannot make long-range plans primarily because they do not know what the government is going to do. The doctrine of government intervention has been preached on the campaign stump to such an extent that most people believe that the government can support their pay levels and that, if they are unemployed, the government can take care of them indefinitely.

At the moment checks for unemployment compensation are being sent out by federal and state agencies at an unprecedented rate for the post-war period. But this in itself need not be significant. Any readjustment of our national economy means temporary unemployment until the workers laid off can be employed again in some other line or in other companies in the same line.

The main reason why business forecasting has been difficult since V-J Day is that the economic curves of the past are not sufficient to form a pattern. What the government does changes the normal behavior of business trends. Thus, at the beginning of 1946 and 1947, respectively, there were statements made by economists warning that the first six months of the ensuing year would be good but the last six months wouldn't be. Yet 1946 turned out to be a good year, and so did 1947 and 1948.

Now the economists were right insofar as the facts available to them were concerned. They could not know in advance what artifical steps would be taken by government to keep business booming. In May 1947 the Marshall Plan was born and armament on a vast scale became a reality. By the end of the year the government had pledged itself to spend nearly $20,000,000,000 on international aid and defense.

Any such stimulus to the economic situation can be best understood when it is realized that in all the depression years, from 1930 to 1940, the government invested $23,000,000,000 over and above receipts from taxes to promote recovery through WPA and other government projects. When $20,000,000,000 a year is poured into the economic pump, something more than a simple priming has been accomplished.

Today the money being appropriated for armament and for international aid is enough to keep the present economic situation moving along without serious change. The danger of deflation lies in any sudden contraction of those items. Sooner or later the spending must cease and something more productive—private spending—must be put in its place. But for the next year there seems little prospect of such a change.

Supply Means Demand

Supply is catching up with demand in many commodities, but there are lots of projects which have been laid aside because of a fear of Truman administration policies. This is related to the plan to impose higher taxes on corporations and to penalize incentive among individuals. There is a possibility that a tax rise could actually result in smaller receipts, especially is business contracts.

Fear of work stoppages and strikes halts plans for construction. This is related to the kind of labor-management law that is enacted.

If business really starts downhill, the government may release some of the controls such as were imposed recently on installment buying. Further expenditures for public works might be undertaken. The government has power to soften the blow of a recession but it must consider also whether in the long run it may be producing another inflation which might cause a major depression four or five years later. The government holds the answer to what the economic trend will be for this year and other years to come.

It is an unsound situation, but realism requires that the use of artificial factors in a managed economy be appraised in any attempt to gauge the future.

These Days

Let's Drop A Curtain, Too

WE NOW know that Soviet Russia and Poland sent commercial and industrial spies to this country with the object of finding out how we do such wonderful jobs in production. Amtorg (Soviet trade agency), you may recall, bought up the publications of the patent office wholesale and during the years of brotherly love, our current enemies had the free run of our factories.

Now comes to this country Jan Uchytil from Czechoslovakia. I know nothing about Mr. Uchytil, I know nothing about his politics. Maybe he is like the dollar-a-year Republicans who went New Deal to save the country. But he wants to visit our factories, including those making aircraft. He is here to see how we do it and to translate those ideas into Czechoslovakian production, which is now bossed by Soviet Russia.

This is a sample letter sent to an industrial company by the aforesaid Uchytil:

"Jan Uchytil, Ing. Dr. Techn.,
Head of Quality Control Center of Czechoslovak Industries,
Central Federation of Czechoslovak Industry,
Prikopy 14, Praha 2, Czechoslovakia.

Chicago, January 31, 1949

"As a member (at large) of the American society for quality control I have mutual interest on the application of statistical methods to industrial quality control. I am very happy that my business trip to U.S.A. offered me an opportunity to become acquainted with the actual application of statistical Q. C. in your country, which is leading in this way. Please, excuse my troubling you with my polite request, but do you think it would be possible for me to visit some plants (which are not restricted in allowing visitors) in the area of California section and to look or at least to discuss their Q. C. program? Would you like to ask some members of your section about it? I am interested in Q. C. of all kinds of industry.

"Looking forward to your kind reply and perhaps to the meeting you,

"I remain
Yours very truly,
(Signed)
Uchytil"

The time has come for the United States to pull down the curtain on such visitations. Czechoslovakia, like Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria and North China, to say nothing of Rumania, is a member of a federation of nations who are bound together with the objective of doing harm to the United States. They prove that every day by their deeds. There is no reason why the United States should not treat them either as enemies or as unfriendly nations. There is no reason why their citizens should come to this country at all. There can be no reason why they should be permitted to inspect our methods of production. There is no reason why they should have the advantage of our know-how.

It has been American policy not to offend a so-called friendly nation. That is why the Russian spy, Adams, was permitted to leave this country with atomic secrets. The policy was always wrong. It was part of the glorious confusion of the years when Americans failed to recognize that even while Soviet Russia was fighting Nazi Germany, that country was never, in spirit or action, an ally of the United States. It was in business for itself. We gave that business a subsidy of $11,000,000,000 and are getting a swift kick for our pains.

There comes a time when mistakes must be corrected and when policies that are wrong must be righted. Now is the time for all American factories to be closed to enemies from behind the Iron Curtain.

And we might consider another matter: How do we know that Soviet Russia is not colonizing in the United States through our generosity toward displaced persons? I do not even suggest that we become more stringent in our attitude toward displaced persons who seek sanctuary in this country. I do raise the issue of screening. Before anyone is admitted to the United States, he ought to be screened so thoroughly that there is no possibility of his having been sent here as a Kremlin spy in the guise of a displaced person. Furthermore, all persons ordered out of the United States, whom the Russians cleverly refuse to accept, should be placed on an island in the Bering sea to study Karl Marx at their own expense.

A Program For Better Medical Care In America

When the controversial labor bill is disposed of, Congress will take up the President's no less controversial scheme for universal and compulsory Federal sickness insurance.

The great majority of American physicians oppose this plan. Citing the experience of Britain, parts of Canada and of several countries on the European continent, they are convinced that this kind of "socialized medicine" would mean poorer service to the sick. At this time of serious shortage of physicians, hospitals and nurses, a Government "guarantee" of medical service to all, at public expense—meaning through taxation on every income—would inevitably mean neglect of the seriously ill for the sake of the mass of slightly ill and the malingerers. The result would be to cripple the best medical service on earth.

Those who oppose the Administration plan do not say that American medical service cannot be improved. The American Medical Association, representing 15,000 physicians, has just announced a timely program to bring "a wider and better distribution of medical care to the American people." This 12-point program calls for expansion of medical and dental teaching, and of facilities for treating the sick—especially the mentally ill and the aged.

The American Medical Association recommends a Federal Department of Science of Cabinet status, with a physician as secretary. It also urges the use of Federal money to promote medical research, sponsored by the Government but administered by a non-governmental board. Finally, it calls for expansion of voluntary hospital and medical care insurance, especially in the rural areas.

The last proposal is something of a departure for the American Medical Association. Many members of the group have felt that its head, Dr. Morris Fishbein, was "missing a bet" in not encouraging voluntary medical insurance, even as he rightly opposed compulsory Federal insurance. The great success of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans, which now cover 50,000,000 Americans, has shown what can be done by private insurance, which offers protection to the individual and his family and at the same time avoids all the dangers of "state medicine."

British biologist says man should live 200 years. At the same time it is predicted the food supply will be exhausted in 100 years. Apparently humanity is to end up in a tie.

Uncle Sam Is Found To Be "Bad Housekeeper"

There was "The Old Curiosity Shop" of Charles Dickens; there was also, and not long ago, the case of those elderly bachelors who crowded their house with junk from cellar to attic, and set a "booby trap" to protect it, in which the surviving brother unwittingly garroted himself.

What we are talking about? Of course, of neither, but of Uncle Sam, a "bad housekeeper" if ever there was one, according to the report of the Hoover Commission. The Government records, it says, "would fill six buildings the size of the collosal Pentagon." (Our own interpolation: Who ever looks at them?) Stocks on hand, it is added, would meet the needs of the agencies at present consumption rates for from one to fifty years. Government has a million motor vehicles worth "at least $2,000,000,000." In storage in various parts of the country are its military and civilian inventories, worth $27,000,000,000. Every year it spends $6,000,000,000 for new supplies, material and equipment.

Two pungent side remarks: (1) Half of these purchases are for $10 or less, and "since the cost of processing a purchase transaction is greatly in excess of $10, the overhead cost is more than the cost of the goods." (2) "Funds remaining near the end of a fiscal year are frequently expended for supplies and equipment, in order to avoid returning the money to the Treasury."

We go back to the incident of the brothers in the over-stuffed house, and the "booby trap" which closed their story. Couldn't that happen to an uncle also—to that inveterate pack rat, your Uncle Sam?

In Germany food is being taken to the people by airplane. In this country a haylift is saving starving livestock. How did the world ever get along without the Wright brothers' invention?

A Month In Every Year Of Waiting

Time drags its feet in February. The days are longer than in November, when the leaves have fallen but Winter defers its coming—longer than in August, that month when the Summer begins to die and the earth seems to spin more slowly on its axis. Sometimes it seems that February will never pass and late March bring the greening grass.

The Romans, who gave us our calendar, knew this same hunger for Spring at this time of year. Early in their history they counted only 10 months, leaving a gap of some 60 days between the end of one year and the beginning of the next. In time they added January and February, but they made February short. They gave all the other months 31 days, 30 or 29. They allotted only 28 days to Februarius.

Their calendar was imperfect still. It left them extra days to account for somehow, to make their year fit the unvarying habit of the sun, but apparently they wanted to avoid a longer February. Every second year they stopped the month at the 23rd, threw in the surplus days as a "monsis intercalaria" they called Mercedonius, and then started again with February 24.

Somehow, despite them, the month gained a day. It had 29 days when Julius Caesar reformed the calendar. He kept it there by ordering February 23 repeated once every four years. Then, when Augustus had to have a month as long as Julius', he took the needed day from February. Nobody minded so much then and nobody has cared much since, so February has 28 days three years out of four.

Perhaps the reason calendar reformers have not made much progress is that they want February to be the same length as other months. For thousands of years men have insisted on having this month of waiting kept shorter than the others. They may never be persuaded that it is not too long already.

There is a movement on foot to have each state adopt an official dog. But shouldn't the tree come first?

A Baby Cannot Be "Marked"

THERE are numerous misconceptions as to the origin of birthmarks and many individuals believe that they are caused by some unusual event occurring to the mother before the birth of the child. Even the term suggests the thought that an accident or a strain has left its "mark" on the developing baby. But such factors have nothing to do with the lesions and most of the stories are old wives' tales handed down through the generations.

Physicians frequently encounter cases which tend to show how such superstitions originate. Doctor Harry M. Hedge, for example, over a recent televised program, told of a little girl with a spider-shaped nevus on the forehead. Her mother insisted that it resulted from the shock received when she discovered a spider descending from the ceiling of the room. The blemish was not a perfect replica of a spider but, by using a little imagination, the outline was suggestive. At any rate, a story like this spreads like wildfire and is taken as the gospel truth.

The lurid possibilities change as the years roll by and, if fright were responsible, we should begin to see lesions that look like automobile wheels, airplane wings, or jet propulsion iron birds. Furthermore, birthmarks come in various sizes and shapes and the onlooker can make anything out of them that pleases his fancy. In this respect they resemble clouds, shadows, ink spots, and peculiar rock formations in which a man's nose, a woman's profile, or the head of a cat or dog can be visualized.

To the best of my knowledge the lesions are merely defects in development. Hedge quotes Dr. William Pusey, the eminent skin specialist, as saying the they are "just a part of the skin that was not built according to specifications." The majority are noticed at birth or shortly thereafter. They range in color from bright red to deep purple and in size from a pinhead to several feet in diameter. Some are flat and flush with the skin; others are elevated and protrude like tumors. They usually are made up of blood or lymph vessels and blanch is pressed upon or enlarge temporarily when crying or during excitement. Now and then they pulsate with each beat of the heart.

There are several ways in which birthmarks can be removed and the exact method depends upon their location and size. Some are excised via surgery; others burned with an electric cautery. The area is anesthetized first to make the procedure painless. Radium also may be used; this plan is relatively simple and the results are excellent. Carbon dioxide snow is another form of therapy. This substance is taken from a tank, molded into the shape of a pencil, and applied directly over the lesion. Destruction of the birthmark occurs by freezing the tissues. Now and then carbon dioxide snow is added to acetone to make a colder (165 degrees below zero) mixture. At any rate, there is no scarcity of treatments and if the work is done in infancy, a smaller scar remains.

LEG ULCERATION

E. R. writes: Would penicillin help a leg ulcer in an elderly person?

Reply

Yes, if the germs in the ulcer are of the type that are affected by the wonder drug. But this is only one part of the treatment of such lesions. Attention must be directer to the cause. For example, if the circulation is impaired, an attempt should be made to improve the flow of blood.

Many of us are troubled occasionally by twitching in this area. The condition is due to a muscular contraction and the usual causes are eye strain, overfatigue, too much coffee or tobacco, and throat infections.

BIOPSY NEEDED

A. R. writes: Would X-ray of the throat reveal whether cancer is present?

No. Cancer of the throat is usually detected by looking at the lesion and removing a portion for laboratory study.

No. Your husband will notice the different but your infant won't.

Republican minority in Congress is like the anchor-man on a bobsled team. He's the heavy fellow who throws his weight around and drags his feet.

It manged to brake a delay on Harry's labor bill and a couple of other codicils to the will of the majority. And a postponement to the GOP is like rain to the White Sox. Almost a victory.

It sort of keeps the two-party system glimmering as faintly as the tail-light of a sick lightning bug in a heavy summer fog. Now you see it and now you don't.

Riding Gratitude Train's Boxcars Revives World War I Memories; Horses Preferred to Men as Companions; They Kept Boxcar Warm

Says DREW PEARSON

ABOARD THE FRENCH GRATITUDE TRAIN, Feb. 18.—Here I am riding on freight trains again. Of course, these French freight cars are getting super-de luxe treatment, thanks to the courtesy and generosity of the American railroads. But anyway, riding with them brings back memories of the days when I rode in similar boxcars in the Balkans after World War I.

M. Charles d'Hagues, the French railway mechanic who is traveling with the Gratitude Train, describes these boxcars as "tres fatigue." Perhaps because they are "very tired," have been everywhere, seen everything, a world of sentiment of memories is tied up in them. These are the same type cars that France sent down to aid her ally, Serbia, during and after the first war, and they are the same cars that carried Friendship Train food through France and Italy just a little over a year ago.

For many months after World War I they were the only thing in which you could travel. And when it came to choosing between "forty men and eight horses," I personally preferred riding with the eight horses.

Reason was that the horses kept the car warm. And you have no idea how cold those cars could get on winter nights. If, however, you picked out a strain carrying cavalry, and slipped into a car with eight horses, you were reasonably sure of spending a warm night. The horses were always tied, their heads facing the door, so you could sleep on the hay in front of them with no danger from their heels. In the morning you woke up to find all the hay eaten out from under you, and perhaps some of your hair nibbled at—but at least it was warm.

Special Police Guard Boxcars

Today the American railroads are guarding these French boxcars with special police night and day, as if they were museum pieces—which, in effect they are. But in the Balkans, there was only one way to keep your boxcar from being rifled—sleep in it yourself.

And, as part of my job was to transport relief supplies from Belgrade south to the Jugoslav-Albanian border, boxcars were a sort of second home to me.

Sometimes we borrowed Jugoslav gendarmes from the government to guard supplies, but usually that meant about 10 per cent of your flour and sugar was sold along the way—by the gendarme.

Or sometimes when you didn't have supplies to guard you rode in the caboose—also unheated, except for a Standard Oil can, with holes punched in the sides and a couple of chunks of soft coal burning inside. What smoke belched forth from those cans! There was no chimney, so it was a toss-up whether to stay in the caboose and smother or go on the rear platform and freeze.

"American Ladies"

Then there were those post-war locomotives. Sometimes I rode in them, because they were warm. Usually, they barely crept along and sometimes they didn't go at all. Many of them were left behind by the American Army and had whistles reminiscent of the locomotives of our Western states. You could always recognize them by their whistle, and the Serbs, hearing them, would call them "Amerikana," meaning "American Lady."

One Amerikana behind which I rode got stalled on a cold January night in the mountain pass south of Nish, and I still recall as if it were yesterday lining up a dozen men between the locomotive and a creek to pass water in Standard Oil tins up to the boiler. The Serbs had expected the "American Lady" to make steam with her boiler dry!

Europe's Railroads Better Now

The railroads of Europe have improved a lot since then. Even the French and Italian roads, though suffering terrific punishment during the war, are now pretty well back on their feet. You still have to take along steamer rugs, heavy socks and long underwear to stay warm, and traveling through most of Europe in wintertime is something you don't do just for the fun of it.

All of which is by way of contrast with the way American railroads are run today, as evidenced by the operation of the Gratitude Train. American railroads are carrying these 49 boxcars 70,700 miles, or the equivalent of three times around the world. To plan this schedule traffic managers for about 17 roads sat down in Washington well before the French ship docked and figured out, almost to the last hour and minute, when each car would arrive at its destination, and how approximately eight sections of the train would fan out through the United States.

When the SS Magellan tied up at the Erie RR docks in Weehauken, 49 flatcars were set and waiting on the pier. And within 30 minutes after the ship was secured, the first French car was hoisted by crane into the waiting flatcar.

The last of the French cars are being delivered next week—a terrific job, executed without a slip-up.

Basic-Materials Demand Firm

President Truman is getting worried about heavy deflationary pressures on US economy. The White House has learned that unemployment benefits have increased for 10 straight weeks—also that various factories throughout the country have been shut down.

In discussing this with aides last week, Truman pointed out that the $64 question is not the softening in the commodities or luxury-goods lines but whether or not prices drop in basic materials — steel, aluminum, coal, electrical goods, autos and radios.

The demand in all these lines, with the exception of automobiles, remains heavy. Truman feels the large federal budget and the heavy war-preparedness program are guarantees against any serious slump.

North Atlantic Pact As It Confronts Congress Of U.S.

By MARK SULLIVAN

A conidtion that never faced Congress before confronts it in the debate about the North Atlantic Security Pact. It is this that accounts for the present agitation about the pact. The condition is at once starkly new in the world, and infinitely deep-reaching. It is at the same time imperative. We must look it in the face. And to look it in the fact, to make decisions about it, as we must, obliges us to give new thought to things we have taken for granted.

The facts are familiar enough. There is being written a pact of North Atlantic nations; it is for mutual defense. It embraces the United States, Canada, Britain, France, and other nations of Western Europe. The purpose, as everybody knows, is mutual military defense against attack by Russia. The pact provides that if any one of the member nations is attacked, the other member nations will go to its assistance. We want the pact for our own security. We would go to the defense of Western European nations for the purpose of preventing their territory from becoming, after subjugation by Russia, a basis of attack upon us.

Constitution Involved

Entrance by us into such a pact involves the Constitution. Under the Constitution, the United States can go to war only by declaration of war by Congress. Here begins the new condition that confronts us.

If we are to go to the defense of a number of the North Atlantic alliance, we must go quickly. Quickness is made imperative by the nearness of Russia to the European nations in the North Atlantic alliance.

One of the nations, Norway, is in direct contact with Russia. Norway could be attacked and overwhelmed by Russia in as short a space of time as would be consumed by the process of declaration of war by Congress—formal request for the declaration by the President, as much debate as might follow, and passage of the declaration. Russian bombs could be falling on all Norway in shorter time than a roll call in Congress would take. The other Western European nations in the North Atlantic alliance are only a matter of hours less exposed. A Russian blitz could be upon any of them within days, and it is blitz that the Russian action would be

If the North Atlantic Security Pact is to be of use to the nations of Western Europe, the defense by us which it provides must be quick. Unless it comes quickly it is no security at all. Unless the pact permits quickness, some Western European nations may be reluctant to join, the very possibility of a pact may be threatened, or at least the extent of it.

Runs Counter To Tradition

What quickness calls for is that the President, with his military heads, be able to act instantly. That runs counter to the constitutional power of Congress about declaring war, and counter to a cherished American tradition both about limitation of the power of the President and about war. The very idea of such a pact as the present one at all runs counter to the tradition, beginning with George Washington's admonition that we avoid involvement in the affairs of Europe. Almost we are called upon to change our very ways of thinking.

How adjustments may be made between constitutional limitations and the present pact will come up when the wording of the text of the pact is made public and the text as then known is discussed in Congress. Congress cherishes its powers, properly.

The new condition in the modern world bears heavily upon us. It is physical and inescapable. It is brought by invention and science—speed annihilation of distance, improvement of instruments of war, the atomic age. And the new condition bears more broadly than on the matter of war. It bears on all the economic and social fields into which government has spread.

This challenges the ability of legislative government, a Congress to act in any matter with the speed and detail and complexity which the new condition in the world demands. It calls for conferring flexibility and authority for speedy action on the executive branch of government. This in turn creates temptation to let government become totalitarian. Avoidance of that calls in turn for flexibility on the part of Congress.

The problem of the division of powers between Congress and the executive is basic in the present matter of the North Atlantic Securiy Pact. But it arises also, and increasingly, in many domestic matters. Congress, like any other institution, to survive in a changed and changing world, must achieve adaptability. It must combine firmness in safeguarding its powers and functions with adaptation in the exercise of them.

Government Holds Answer To Future Economic Trend

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—Well, maybe, as the Brookings Institution's economist says, it's only a "burp" and not a bellyache, and that nursery language describes the present economic situation, but there can be no doubt that business men have been worried about the outlook and that layoffs of workers are proceeding.

While A. D. H. Kaplan testified before the joint economic committee that the economic system had been taking milk too fast and just had to let up for a bit, there have also been some comments put into the record by other economists who think of the present period as one of serious readjustment.

Members of Congress are unquestionably puzzled by the reports of a rise in unemployment, and they are wary lest any mood of pessimism be developed which would retard economic operations that should not be in the least influenced by the changes that are going on.

The truth is that nobody really can have an accurate over-all picture of anything so large as a $225,000,000,000 economy. There are no charts by which to steer except, of course, the laws of supply and demand and the rules against overexpansion and miscalculation of demand.

Long-Range Plans Stymied

Busines men generally cannot make long-range plans primarily because they do not know what the government is going to do. The doctrine of government intervention has been preached on the campaign stump to such an extent that most people believe that the government can support their pay levels and that, if they are unemployed, the government can take care of them indefinitely.

At the moment checks for unemployment compensation are being sent out by federal and state agencies at an unprecedented rate for the post-war period. But this in itself need not be significant. Any readjustment of our national economy means temporary unemployment until the workers laid off can be employed again in some other line or in other companies in the same line.

The main reason why business forecasting has been difficult since V-J Day is that the economic curves of the past are not sufficient to form a pattern. What the government does changes the normal behavior of business trends. Thus, at the beginning of 1946 and 1947, respectively, there were statements made by economists warning that the first six months of the ensuing year would be good but the last six months wouldn't be. Yet 1946 turned out to be a good year, and so did 1947 and 1948.

Now the economists were right insofar as the facts available to them were concerned. They could not know in advance what artifical steps would be taken by government to keep business booming. In May 1947 the Marshall Plan was born and armament on a vast scale became a reality. By the end of the year the government had pledged itself to spend nearly $20,000,000,000 on international aid and defense.

Any such stimulus to the economic situation can be best understood when it is realized that in all the depression years, from 1930 to 1940, the government invested $23,000,000,000 over and above receipts from taxes to promote recovery through WPA and other government projects. When $20,000,000,000 a year is poured into the economic pump, something more than a simple priming has been accomplished.

Today the money being appropriated for armament and for international aid is enough to keep the present economic situation moving along without serious change. The danger of deflation lies in any sudden contraction of those items. Sooner or later the spending must cease and something more productive—private spending—must be put in its place. But for the next year there seems little prospect of such a change.

Supply Means Demand

Supply is catching up with demand in many commodities, but there are lots of projects which have been laid aside because of a fear of Truman administration policies. This is related to the plan to impose higher taxes on corporations and to penalize incentive among individuals. There is a possibility that a tax rise could actually result in smaller receipts, especially is business contracts.

Fear of work stoppages and strikes halts plans for construction. This is related to the kind of labor-management law that is enacted.

If business really starts downhill, the government may release some of the controls such as were imposed recently on installment buying. Further expenditures for public works might be undertaken. The government has power to soften the blow of a recession but it must consider also whether in the long run it may be producing another inflation which might cause a major depression four or five years later. The government holds the answer to what the economic trend will be for this year and other years to come.

It is an unsound situation, but realism requires that the use of artificial factors in a managed economy be appraised in any attempt to gauge the future.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Let's Drop A Curtain, Too

WE NOW know that Soviet Russia and Poland sent commercial and industrial spies to this country with the object of finding out how we do such wonderful jobs in production. Amtorg (Soviet trade agency), you may recall, bought up the publications of the patent office wholesale and during the years of brotherly love, our current enemies had the free run of our factories.

Now comes to this country Jan Uchytil from Czechoslovakia. I know nothing about Mr. Uchytil. I know nothing about his politics. Maybe he is like the dollar a-year Republicans who went New Deal to save the country. But he wants to visit our factories, including those making aircraft. He is here to see how we do it and to translate those ideas into Czechoslovakian production, which is now bossed by Soviet Russia.

This is a sample letter sent to an industrial company by the aforesaid Uchytil:

"Jan Uchytil, Ing. Dr. Techn.,
Head of Quality Control Center of Czechoslovak Industries,
Central Federation of Czechoslovak Industry,
Prikopy 14, Praha 2, Czechoslovakia.

Chicago, January 31, 1949

"As a member (at large) of the American society for quality control I have mutual interest on the application of statistical methods to industrial quality control. I am very happy that my business trip to U.S.A. offered me an opportunity to become acquainted with the actual application of statistical Q. C. in your country, which is leading in this way. Please, excuse my troubling you with my polite request, but do you think it would be possible for me to visit some plants (which are not restricted in allowing visitors) in the area of California section and to look or at least to discuss their Q. C. program? Would you like to ask some members of your section about it? I am interested in Q. C. of all kinds of industry.

"Looking forward to your kind reply and perhaps to the meeting you,

"I remain
Yours very truly,
(Signed)
Uchytil"

The time has come for the United States to pull down the curtain on such visitations. Czechoslovakia, like Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria and North China, to say nothing of Rumania, is a member of a federation of nations who are bound together with the objective of doing harm to the United States. They prove that every day by their deeds. There is no reason why the United States should not treat them either as enemies or as unfriendly nations. There is no reason why their citizens should come to this country at all. There can be no reason why they should be permitted to inspect our methods of production. There is no reason why they should have the advantage of our know-how.

It has been American policy not to offend a so-called friendly nation. That is why the Russian spy, Adams, was permitted to leave this country with atomic secrets. The policy was always wrong. It was part of the glorious confusion of the years when Americans failed to recognize that even while Soviet Russia was fighting Nazi Germany, that country was never, in spirit or action, an ally of the United States. It was in business for itself. We gave that business a subsidy of $11,000,000,000 and are getting a swift kick for our pains.

There comes a time when mistakes must be corrected and when policies that are wrong must be righted. Now is the time for all American factories to be closed to enemies from behind the Iron Curtain.

And we might consider another matter: How do we know that Soviet Russia is not colonizing in the United States through our generosity toward displaced persons? I do not even suggest that we become more stringent in our attitude toward displaced persons who seek sanctuary in this country. I do raise the issue of screening. Before anyone is admitted to the United States, he ought to be screened so thoroughly that there is no possibility of his having been sent here as a Kremlin spy in the guise of a displaced person. Furthermore, all persons ordered out of the United States, whom the Russians cleverly refuse to accept, should be placed on an island in the Bering sea to study Karl Marx at their own expense.

Md. Senate Gets Set For Assault On Communism

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 18 (AP) — The Senate mobilized for a legislative attack on Maryland Communists today by gviing tentative support to a crackdown on subversive activity.

Without opposition, the Senate adopted a report of its Judiciary Committee approving the Ober Commission's anti-Communist bill.

One amendment, proposed by Attorney General Hall Hammond, was added.

This makes clear the right to appeal of a public employe discharged on suspicion of disloyalty. He could demand a jury trial and take his case all the way to the Court of Appeals.

Before backing the judiciary report, senators decisively voted down another amendment by which an attorney general could refuse to appoint a special assistant in charge of the law's enforcement.

Measure's Provisions

The measure, which must still win final approval in the Senate and go to the House — where a duplicate has been introduced, would do this:

Imprison and fine persons who promote overthrow of the government by force; require loyalty checks of public employes and school teachers; order constant grand jury investigations of communist activity.

The General Assembly concluded its seventh week with a minimum of bother.

The Senate swiftly approved a committee report favoring an increase in the way of judges. Five members opposed raising the salary of the chief judge of the Court of Appeals to $17,500 a year, but a majority concurred. Pay of circuit court judges would jump to $13,000.

Neither House nor Senate took final action on any bill.

New Bills Introduced

The House did adopt favorable reports on measures to speed up appeals when a driver's license is revoked, asked Congress to confirm state ownership of submerged lands and allow county commissioners to issue bonds to finance land drainage districts.

Delegate Sklar (D-Balto 4th) put in his bill to create the office of lieutenant governor in 1951. Voters would first have to approve a constitutional amendment to that effect next year.

Speaker Sybert (D-Howard) introduced a revision of the state police retirement system. It would liberalize benefits, increase compensation for death or disability in line of duty and set the retirement age at 64 years.

Peron Fires His Economic Czar

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18 (AP) — President Juan D. Peron is desperately trying to bolster Argentina's shaky economic structure.

After more than three years of high living on the credit accumulated during the war, the President a month ago realized the nation is losing its world trading position and rapidly exhausting its resources.

Beron fired his economic czar, Miguel Miranda, who had been under bitter attack from conservative elements for months. In his place the President called a new team made up mostly of youthful diplomats and economists, to reorganize the National Economic Council.

The council quickly analyzed Argentina's foreign trade in order to take a look at the situation and assemble enough statistics to decide what could be done. It found Argentina had spent more than a billion dollars of its accumulated foreign exchange, which amounted to $1,722,000,000 in all currencies at the end of the war in 1945. Of the $700,000,000 now remaining, much is ited up in frozen sterling and reserve backing the currency.

The economic council, moving rapidly, decided to abandon, or at least to postpone, Peron's prized five-year plan to industrialize Argentina. This halts all projects not too far along.

Sen. Tydings Revises Reference To New Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Sen. Tydings (D-Md) said today the Air Force has a plane that could carry a 10,000-pound bomb load from Maine to Moscow in five hours. Later he identified the ship as the 600-mile and hour XB-47 jet bomber.

In his original remarks to department commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the plane he had in mind also could fly to Moscow, return to Maine and then go back to Moscow.

Air Force experts said they knew of no such plane.

Tydings reached later at his office, told a reporter he was referring to the experimental jet bomber which recently broke speed records with a cross-country west to east coast hop at an average of 607 miles per hour.

'Father" Of Second Spanish Republic Dies

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18 (AP)—Niceto Alcala Zamora, 71, exiled "father" of Spain's second republic, was found dead in bed here today. He left a letter to the Spanish people calling for unity.

The grey-haired, grey-mustached "Don Niceto" had lived in Buenos Aires seven years, contributing to newspapers and magazines.

The political responsibilities tribunal of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government sentenced him in 1941 to 15 years. In exile, loss of Spanish citizenship and confiscation of his property, valued at $4,500,000. Alcala Zamora had already fled the country. He was living in the French Riviera at the time.

Alcala Zamora, a middle-of-the-roader and a devout Catholic, served as provisional president of the regime which overthrew King Alfonso XIII April 14, 1931. He was elected president of the Second Republic (the first lasted from 1873 to 1875) for a six-year term December 19, 1931. He helped get the King and his family out of the country.

Court Action Hit By Reds' Counsel

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina today suddenly shut off cross-examination of a prosecution witness by counsel for 11 indicted top United States Communists.

Defense counsel immediately termed the court's action "a violation of due process of law."

The witness was Joseph F. McKenzie, federal jury clerk, who is the first person called by the government to refute defense claims of discrimination in the way federal juries are picked here.

Because of this alleged discrimination, the defense argues, the indictment against the 11 members of the Communist Party's national committee should be voided.

They are charged with conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the United States government.

McKenzie was called to the stand last Monday and his cross-examination began later that day.

But during the morning session today, Medina announced that the cross-examination would cease promptly at 3 p. m. (EST). When the court reconvened after lunch at 2:30 p. m., the defense resumed its questioning of McKenzie.

Then at 3:05 p. m., Medina said: "The cross examination is over. It is 3:05 p. m."

He said he would allow defense lawyers to present argument against his rulings.

Truman Again Links Vets' Bonus To Future Of Country's Economy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP) — President Truman told the nation's veterans today that "this United States is theirs," but he said in considering veterans' welfare it must be understood there are "certain limits."

And those limits, he said, "cannot be stretched."

Thus indirectly, for the second time in 24 hours, Mr. Truman linked the question of a multi-billion-dollar veterans pension plan with the future of the country's economy.

The President has previously let it be known that there is no place for veterans pension in his budget at this time.

He did not refer specifically today, however, to a bill by Chairman Rankin (D-Miss), of the House Veterans Committee, which would give $90-a-month pensions to all veterans of World War I and World War II when they reach the age of 65.

Chatting informally with top officials of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Mr. Truman called attention to the fact that there are between 17,000,000 and 18,000,000 veterans in the United States.

He said it is necessary for these veterans to help maintain the government and to see that the government "maintains the solvency that is necessary for its continuance."

Himself a veteran of the First World War, Mr. Truman told the VFW officials:

"I hope you can continue your constructive program. I hope it will be possible for you to help me to help the veterans of this country understand that this United States is theirs. They fought to maintain it."

But to maintain it, he went on, "we must understand that it has certain limitations.

"It is your government x x x and there are certain limits to which its financial welfare cannot be stretched. I want you to bear that in mind very carefully when you are considering the welfare of the veteran."

Materials Available For Housing Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP) — Men with hammers and saws and concrete mixers are ready to start building houses at the rate of 1,500,000 a year as soon as Congress gives the word, a construction union president said today.

Materials as well as skilled construction men again are available in good quantities, Richard J. Gray, president of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL, told a Senate Banking Committee concluding its study of a sheaf of housing bills.

"The serious shortage of building materials which limited construction during the early postward period is now largely a thing of the past," he said.

Negro Is Saved From Chair For 15th Time

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 18 (AP) —Saved from the electric chair for the 15th time, a "proud" young negro started out calmly today on another guessing game with death.

Twenty-two-year old Samuel Taylor, Mobile, Ala., received the latest in a long series of reprieves last night just two hours before he was to have been electrocuted for raping a 14-year old white girl.

Gov. James E. Folsom stepped in to spare the negro's life, just as he had 14 times before. Taylor was first sentenced to die on Friday, June 13, 1947.

At the White House and on Capitol Hill, experts in taking the country's economic pulse were busy trying to diagnose the recent decline in prices and spell out what it portends for the immediate future.

Emerging from a conference with Mr. Truman, Dr. Nourse told newsmen that everything will be all right if people will avoid "getting jittery" over what he termed a "healthy" falling off in prices.

"I'm not alarmed over price declines unless people get jittery and get out of the market," he said.

As he spoke, reports from Wall Street noted "indecision" in the New York stock market, with supply and demand closely matched and business skimpy. Prices went a bit lower this afternoon.

Traders were reported keeping a sharp eye on Washington events, watching for straws in the wind as to how Congress may act on President Truman's tax, labor and anti-inflation proposals.

Md. Senate Gets Set For Assault On Communism

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 18 (AP) — The Senate mobilized for a legislative attack on Maryland Communists today by giving tentative support to a crackdown on subversive activity.

Without opposition, the Senate adopted a report of its Judiciary Committee approving the Ober Commission's anti-Communist bill.

One amendment, proposed by Attorney General Hall Hammond, was added.

This makes clear the right to appeal of a public employe discharged on suspicion of disloyalty. He could demand a jury trial and take his case all the way to the Court of Appeals.

Before backing the judiciary report, senators decisively voted down another amendment by which an attorney general could refuse to appoint a special assistant in charge of the law's enforcement.

Measure's Provisions

The measure, which must still win final approval in the Senate and go to the House — where a duplicate has been introduced, would do this:

Imprison and fine persons who promote overthrow of the government by force; require loyalty checks of public employes and school teachers; order constant grand jury investigations of communist activity.

The General Assembly concluded its seventh week with a minimum of bother.

The Senate swiftly approved a committee report favoring an increase in the way of judges. Five members opposed raising the salary of the chief judge of the Court of Appeals to $17,500 a year, but a majority concurred. Pay of circuit court judges would jump to $13,000.

Neither House nor Senate took final action on any bill.

New Bills Introduced

The House did adopt favorable reports on measures to speed up appeals when a driver's license is revoked, asked Congress to confirm state ownership of submerged lands and allow county commissioners to issue bonds to finance land drainage districts.

Delegate Sklar (D-Balto 4th) put in his bill to create the office of lieutenant governor in 1951. Voters would first have to approve a constitutional amendment to that effect next year.

Speaker Sybert (D-Howard) introduced a revision of the state police retirement system. It would liberalize benefits, increase compensation for death or disability in line of duty and set the retirement age at 64 years.

Peron Fires His Economic Czar

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18 (AP) — President Juan D. Peron is desperately trying to bolster Argentina's shaky economic structure.

After more than three years of high living on the credit accumulated during the war, the President a month ago realized the nation is losing its world trading position and rapidly exhausting its resources.

Peron fired his economic czar, Miguel Miranda, who had been under bitter attack from conservative elements for months. In his place the President called a new team made up mostly of youthful diplomats and economists, to reorganize the National Economic Council.

The council quickly analyzed Argentina's foreign trade in order to take a look at the situation and assemble enough statistics to decide what could be done. It found Argentina had spent more than a billion dollars of its accumulated foreign exchange, which amounted to $1,722,000,000 in all currencies at the end of the war in 1945. Of the $700,000,000 now remaining, much is tied up in frozen sterling and reserve backing the currency.

The economic council, moving rapidly, decided to abandon, or at least to postpone, Peron's prized five-year plan to industrialize Argentina. This halts all projects not too far along.

Sen. Tydings Revises Reference To New Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Sen. Tydings (D-Md) said today the Air Force has a plane that could carry a 10,000-pound bomb load from Maine to Moscow in five hours. Later he identified the ship as the 600-mile and hour XB-47 jet bomber.

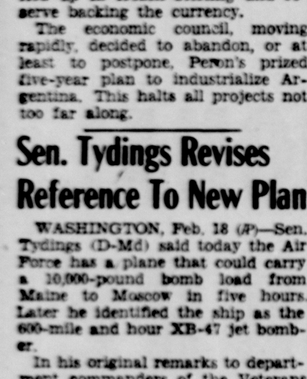

In his original remarks to department commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the plane he had in mind also could fly to Moscow, return to Maine and then go back to Moscow.

Air Force experts said they knew of no such plane.

Tydings reached later at his office, told a reporter he was referring to the experimental jet bomber which recently broke speed records with a cross-country west to east coast hop at an average of 607 miles per hour.

Md. Section Makes Gift To Library

Among the scientific books owned by the Cumberland Free Public Library is a group of important ones presented to the library by the Western Maryland Section of the American Chemical Society, Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, said yesterday.

This gift includes "The Chemical Formulary" a comprehensive set of seven volumes edited by Harry Bennett. This is a condensed collection of timely, practical formulae for making thousands of products in all fields of industry, Miss Walsh said.

Others are "Chemical Engineering Fundamentals" a 1947 publication written by C. H. Kirkbride; "Chemical Engineering Handbook," prepared by a staff of experts and edited by John Howard Perry. Many sections of this reference work were re-written for this new edition; "Fundamentals of Biochemistry" by Benjamin C. Harrow, a basic text on this subject; "Organic Chemistry," by Frank C. Whitmore, a new edition; and "Outlines of Physical Chemistry" by F. H. Getman, the seventh edition revised and brought up to date by Farrington Daniels.

JUST BETWEEN US TEEN-AGERS

By NANCY MOTTRAM

Give Opponents Work On Committee To Stop Jealousy

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I have just been elected president of my class, and though it's a great honor, I seem to have run into some trouble. Several other girls also ran, and now that it's all over and I've won, there's a definite coolness between us. It creeps out in the meetings, and they never miss a chance to throw sarcastic cracks my way. Naturally, I want to do my best in this job, but I can't help feeling uncomfortable when they act up during the meetings and snub me personally. How can I fight this? Can you give me any suggestions?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) It's pure jealousy, and you'll have to treat it as such. They've been defeated, and they won't forget it. You're likely to have more trouble with them too, unless you realize what you're up against and try to smooth things over. Since your class projects and plans depend on their support as members, you might start by making them a definite part of it. Begin by appointing them to your various committees, and in that way, giving them responsibility. They won't fail, as they can't admit they're not qualified for the work since they ran for president. It would be a good policy to ask their advice on certain matters, too. Once they feel that they're an important part of the organization, they'll gradually forget their resentment, and cooperate.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I dated a certain fellow very steadily all last summer, and when he went away to college, we wrote often. He came home at Christmas and everything seemed fine at first, but after about a week he stopped calling me, and went back without saying goodbye. I've waited for a letter, but it hasn't come, and I guess that, as far as he's concerned, it's all over. I still have his fraternity pin, and I don't know what to do about it. Can you help me?"

(A) His actions seem to prove that this romance has definitely hit bottom, so you'd better send the pin back and put him out of your mind. Write a short letter, telling him that his pin is on the way, and add some friendly note, such as wishing him good luck at college. You may hear from him after that, and find out why things turned out as they did; but for now, it would be better to consider the case closed.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I'm going to a formal very soon, and I'd like to ask a few questions so I won't make any glaring mistakes. When the boy brings the corsage, do you put it on then, or wait until you get to the dance? And if there are dance books given out, should he put his name after the dances he wants or should you? What shall I do about the other fellows who want dances?"

(A) When your escort hands you the florist's box, it's a nice gesture to open it and thank him. Although you can put the flowers on then, most girls wait until they arrive at the dance so as not to crush them under their coasts. As for the cards, there's no rigid rule. You might hand yours to your date, so that he may write his name for certain dances. Then, when another boy asks you, you can tell him which dances are taken, and either write his name down yourself or let him do it.

Nancy will answer as many questions as possible in her column. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Give Opponents Work On Committee To Stop Jealousy

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I have just been elected president of my class, and though it's a great honor, I seem to have run into some trouble. Several other girls also ran, and now that it's all over and I've won, there's a definite coolness between us. It creeps out in the meetings, and they never miss a chance to throw sarcastic cracks my way. Naturally, I want to do my best in this job, but I can't help feeling uncomfortable when they act up during the meetings and snub me personally. How can I fight this? Can you give me any suggestions?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) It's pure jealousy, and you'll have to treat it as such. They've been defeated, and they won't forget it. You're likely to have more trouble with them too, unless you realize what you're up against and try to smooth things over. Since your class projects and plans depend on their support as members, you might start by making them a definite part of it. Begin by appointing them to your various committees, and in that way, giving them responsibility. They won't fail, as they can't admit they're not qualified for the work since they ran for president. It would be a good policy to ask their advice on certain matters, too. Once they feel that they're an important part of the organization, they'll gradually forget their resentment, and cooperate.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I dated a certain fellow very steadily all last summer, and when he went away to college, we wrote often. He came home at Christmas and everything seemed fine at first, but after about a week he stopped calling me, and went back without saying goodbye. I've waited for a letter, but it hasn't come, and I guess that, as far as he's concerned, it's all over. I still have his fraternity pin, and I don't know what to do about it. Can you help me?"

(A) His actions seem to prove that this romance has definitely hit bottom, so you'd better send the pin back and put him out of your mind. Write a short letter, telling him that his pin is on the way, and add some friendly note, such as wishing him good luck at college. You may hear from him after that, and find out why things turned out as they did; but for now, it would be better to consider the case closed.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I'm going to a formal very soon, and I'd like to ask a few questions so I won't make any glaring mistakes. When the boy brings the corsage, do you put it on then, or wait until you get to the dance? And if there are dance books given out, should he put his name after the dances he wants or should you? What shall I do about the other fellows who want dances?"

(A) When your escort hands you the florist's box, it's a nice gesture to open it and thank him. Although you can put the flowers on then, most girls wait until they arrive at the dance so as not to crush them under their coasts. As for the cards, there's no rigid rule. You might hand yours to your date, so that he may write his name for certain dances. Then, when another boy asks you, you can tell him which dances are taken, and either write his name down yourself or let him do it.

Nancy will answer as many questions as possible in her column. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Go To Church This Sunday, Your Church, Any Church, But Go!

It was Cain who asked defiantly, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Cain was a murderer, you know!

Ruthless men, seeking their own aims without thought for the worth or welfare of their fellows, have always asked that question.

But in America, our forefathers made the principle of Christian brotherhood a cornerstone of national life.

And they gave us religious freedom; for in the free and unlimited practice of our religion, brotherhood becomes an everyday reality.

You see, the Statue of Liberty cannot guarantee real brotherhood . . . nor can the Constitution. But YOU, and the man next door, and that other man across town . . . You become real brothers by worshipping the same FATHER.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Go To Church This Sunday, Your Church, Any Church, But Go!

It was Cain who asked defiantly, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Cain was a murderer, you know!

Ruthless men, seeking their own aims without thought for the worth or welfare of their fellows, have always asked that question.

But in America, our forefathers made the principle of Christian brotherhood a cornerstone of national life.

And they gave us religious freedom; for in the free and unlimited practice of our religion, brotherhood becomes an everyday reality.

You see, the Statue of Liberty cannot guarantee real brotherhood . . . nor can the Constitution. But YOU, and the man next door, and that other man across town . . . You become real brothers by worshipping the same FATHER.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Sentinels Cop Class "A" Title, AHS Girls Stop Fort Hill

Fort Hill Boys Beat Allegany By 38-33 Score

Cavanaugh's Passers Sweep City Series, 1,000 Witness Tilt

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

A 14-point rally in the final period, featured by John Alderton's dead-eye goaling, gave the Fort Hill High School Sentinels a thrilling 38-33 victory over the Allegany High Campers last night before over 1,000 fans on the Fort Hill court.

The triumph, 18 in 19 starts for Fort Hill, gave the WMI League champions a clean sweep of the three-cornered city series and also earned the Hilltoppers the right to represent this district in the state Class "A" championship tournament.

Switches Lineups

Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers' switched his lineup around a little and for three periods the Campobello crew looked as if they could pull an upset, but when the pressure was on in the final eight minutes they blew higher than a kite.

The fray was a thriller all the way with the score tied no less than six time at 2, 4, 11, 13, 15 and 27 and the count changed hands at least seven times before Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's tossers pulled ahead to stay.

The Bowersmen trailed 9-8 at the quarter but held a 20-17 edge at intermission and were still on top at 25-24 at the close of the third period.

Big Charley Lattimer put Fort Hill ahead with a layup as the final stanza opened and Jimmy Eckard potted a singleton after being fouled by Bob Lookabaugh with 7:30 to go in the game. The personal was Lookabaugh's fifth and he was taken out of the game.

Lewis Ties Score

Little Herman Lewis slipped through Fort Hill's defenses for a layup and knotted the count for the last time at 27-27 for Allegany but after Johnny Vernall missed a foul that would have given the lead to the Campers Lattimer again dumped in a twin-pointer and Fort Hill was off to the races.

Eckard's charity toss and the first of three baskets by Alderton in the closing minutes put Fort Hill in front 32-27. Vernall converted two free tosses on Glen Burke's personal but Alderton tipped in a rebound to retain Fort Hill's five-point edge, the biggest margin the Cavanaughmen enjoyed during the entire contest.

After the automatic timeout Alderton and Frank Phares traded closeups and Eddie Landefeld pulled the Alco five within three points with 1:15 to go with a long set shot at 36-33.

Sentinels Freeze Ball

However Roy Manges slipped behind the Alco defense for a layup that iced the game for Fort Hill with 45 seconds remaining and moments later Lattimer recovered a rebound off the Allegany basket and Fort Hill froze the ball to the end of the game.

Referees Joe Costa of Windber, Pa., and Bill Masterson of Bedford, Pa., officiated a nice game during the first half but let the game get a little out of hand during the final two periods.

Allegany looked the better of the two teams in the first two periods working the ball in nicely for several closeup shots and generally outplaying the favored Sentinels but the inability of hit on close tries in the second half cost them the game.

Herman Lewis proved the sparkplug for the Campers with his stellar play, the diminutive forward scoring five points and generally setting up Alco scoring plays, but Lookabaugh, Vernall, Landefeld and Ned Clopton, the Campers' scoring aces, were unable to connect consistently and the game was lost.

Foul Shooting Helps

Superior foul shooting in the third stanza kept Fort Hill in the game when Allegany threatened to break away, the Sentinels converting five of seven chances to stay right on the Campers' heels. Altogether the Cavanaughmen connected for 10 of 19 free throws with 7 of 11 coming in the second half. AHS made 7 of 17 tries good.

Lattimer and Alderton were the whole show for Fort Hill, the high scoring pivot man and husky forward each tallying 13 points. Alderton got six and Lattimer five during the fourth period spurt by the Scarlet and White cagers.

As Allegany began to press in the final stages of the game after losing their lead—the Campers once were ahead by six points at 24-18 in the third period—it was Lattimer and Alderton who broke up the Alco scoring plays and controlled the rebounds to assure a Sentinel victory.

In addition to Lewis, Vernall and Phares were Allegany's best bets with the latter two the top scorers for the Campobello team, with seven and eight points respectively.

The two officials called a total of 28 personals on the two teams, 12 on Fort Hill and 16 on Allegany, but Lookabaugh was the only player ejected. The lineups:

Fusari Defeats Castellani In 10-Round Bout

New Jersey Slugger Captures Unanimous Decision At Garden

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—Charlie Fusari, blond Irvington, N. J., slugger, upset favored Rocky Castellani, boxing's 1948 rookie of the year, to win a unanimous 10-round decision tonight in a close, furious battle at Madison Square Garden.

Fusari scraped himself off the floor after taking a three-count knockdown in the first round, to grab the duke over the pride of the hard coal regions by the closest of margins.

Referee Ruby Goldstein had it 5-3 in favor of Fusari with 2 even. Judge Harold Barnes had it 6-3-1 and Judge Jack Gordon saw it 5-4-1. The AP card had it even tighter with 5 rounds for each, but with Fusari the winner on points.

Castellani who came in unusually light at 151¼ to preserve a $1,500 forfeit, seemed to tire in the middle rounds under the furious body punching of Fusari who scaled 147½. Rocky's manager, Tommy Ryan, agreed to make 152 pounds, give or take a pound, although Castellani, normally fights in the middleweight division at about 155 or 156.

Perhaps that was the deciding factor for at times Rocky fought with his arms dangling at his sides and was an easy target for Fusari's jarring right hand punches.

Rushing out in the opening round, Castellani shot for a first-round knockout as he caught Fusari cold. The Luzerne, Pa., native dropped Charlie with a right hand shot to the head and he took three before he got up. He had been staggered by the first punch, a strong right hand by Rocky, in a wild first-minute. However, Fusari recovered and was punching the 5 to 8 favorite at the bell.

The crowd of 10,194 which paid $36,159 was roaring with the threat of an early end, but Fusari took command in the second. Time after time he beat Rocky to the punch, landing his right to the head while catching Castellani's lunging attack on his gloves.

Sentinels Cop Class "A" Title, AHS Girls Stop Fort Hill

Fort Hill Boys Beat Allegany By 38-33 Score

Cavanaugh's Passers Sweep City Series, 1,000 Witness Tilt

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

A 14-point rally in the final period, featured by John Alderton's dead-eye goaling, gave the Fort Hill High School Sentinels a thrilling 38-33 victory over the Allegany High Campers last night before over 1,000 fans on the Fort Hill court.

The triumph, 18 in 19 starts for Fort Hill, gave the WMI League champions a clean sweep of the three-cornered city series and also earned the Hilltoppers the right to represent this district in the state Class "A" championship tournament.

Switches Lineups

Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers' switched his lineup around a little and for three periods the Campobello crew looked as if they could pull an upset, but when the pressure was on in the final eight minutes they blew higher than a kite.

The fray was a thriller all the way with the score tied no less than six time at 2, 4, 11, 13, 15 and 27 and the count changed hands at least seven times before Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's tossers pulled ahead to stay.

The Bowersmen trailed 9-8 at the quarter but held a 20-17 edge at intermission and were still on top at 25-24 at the close of the third period.

Big Charley Lattimer put Fort Hill ahead with a layup as the final stanza opened and Jimmy Eckard potted a singleton after being fouled by Bob Lookabaugh with 7:30 to go in the game. The personal was Lookabaugh's fifth and he was taken out of the game.

Lewis Ties Score

Little Herman Lewis slipped through Fort Hill's defenses for a layup and knotted the count for the last time at 27-27 for Allegany but after Johnny Vernall missed a foul that would have given the lead to the Campers Lattimer again dumped in a twin-pointer and Fort Hill was off to the races.

Eckard's charity toss and the first of three baskets by Alderton in the closing minutes put Fort Hill in front 32-27. Vernall converted two free tosses on Glen Burke's personal but Alderton tipped in a rebound to retain Fort Hill's five-point edge, the biggest margin the Cavanaughmen enjoyed during the entire contest.

After the automatic timeout Alderton and Frank Phares traded closeups and Eddie Landefeld pulled the Alco five within three points with 1:15 to go with a long set shot at 36-33.

Sentinels Freeze Ball

However Roy Manges slipped behind the Alco defense for a layup that iced the game for Fort Hill with 45 seconds remaining and moments later Lattimer recovered a rebound off the Allegany basket and Fort Hill froze the ball to the end of the game.

Referees Joe Costa of Windber, Pa., and Bill Masterson of Bedford, Pa., officiated a nice game during the first half but let the game get a little out of hand during the final two periods.

Allegany looked the better of the two teams in the first two periods working the ball in nicely for several closeup shots and generally outplaying the favored Sentinels but the inability of hit on close tries in the second half cost them the game.

Herman Lewis proved the sparkplug for the Campers with his stellar play, the diminutive forward scoring five points and generally setting up Alco scoring plays, but Lookabaugh, Vernall, Landefeld and Ned Clopton, the Campers' scoring aces, were unable to connect consistently and the game was lost.

Foul Shooting Helps

Superior foul shooting in the third stanza kept Fort Hill in the game when Allegany threatened to break away, the Sentinels converting five of seven chances to stay right on the Campers' heels. Altogether the Cavanaughmen connected for 10 of 19 free throws with 7 of 11 coming in the second half. AHS made 7 of 17 tries good.

Lattimer and Alderton were the whole show for Fort Hill, the high scoring pivot man and husky forward each tallying 13 points. Alderton got six and Lattimer five during the fourth period spurt by the Scarlet and White cagers.

As Allegany began to press in the final stages of the game after losing their lead—the Campers once were ahead by six points at 24-18 in the third period—it was Lattimer and Alderton who broke up the Alco scoring plays and controlled the rebounds to assure a Sentinel victory.

In addition to Lewis, Vernall and Phares were Allegany's best bets with the latter two the top scorers for the Campobello team, with seven and eight points respectively.

The two officials called a total of 28 personals on the two teams, 12 on Fort Hill and 16 on Allegany, but Lookabaugh was the only player ejected. The lineups:

Fusari Defeats Castellani In 10-Round Bout

New Jersey Slugger Captures Unanimous Decision At Garden

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—Charlie Fusari, blond Irvington, N. J., slugger, upset favored Rocky Castellani, boxing's 1948 rookie of the year, to win a unanimous 10-round decision tonight in a close, furious battle at Madison Square Garden.

Fusari scraped himself off the floor after taking a three-count knockdown in the first round, to grab the duke over the pride of the hard coal regions by the closest of margins.

Referee Ruby Goldstein had it 5-3 in favor of Fusari with 2 even. Judge Harold Barnes had it 6-3-1 and Judge Jack Gordon saw it 5-4-1. The AP card had it even tighter with 5 rounds for each, but with Fusari the winner on points.

Castellani who came in unusually light at 151¼ to preserve a $1,500 forfeit, seemed to tire in the middle rounds under the furious body punching of Fusari who scaled 147½. Rocky's manager, Tommy Ryan, agreed to make 152 pounds, give or take a pound, although Castellani, normally fights in the middleweight division at about 155 or 156.

Perhaps that was the deciding factor for at times Rocky fought with his arms dangling at his sides and was an easy target for Fusari's jarring right hand punches.

Rushing out in the opening round, Castellani shot for a first-round knockout as he caught Fusari cold. The Luzerne, Pa., native dropped Charlie with a right hand shot to the head and he took three before he got up. He had been staggered by the first punch, a strong right hand by Rocky, in a wild first-minute. However, Fusari recovered and was punching the 5 to 8 favorite at the bell.

The crowd of 10,194 which paid $36,159 was roaring with the threat of an early end, but Fusari took command in the second. Time after time he beat Rocky to the punch, landing his right to the head while catching Castellani's lunging attack on his gloves.

Werwolf Scores At Hialeah Park

Wins By Two Lengths Earns $9,575 Purse

By FRED HAYDEN

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP) — Werwolf today became champion of the Florida-foaled juveniles when he easily captured the $10,000 added Florida Breeders' Stakes for his second triumph in as many starts.

Flying the San Francisco-owned silks of Mrs. J. G. Smyth, Werwolf finished the straight three furlong dash two lengths in advance of Tilyou Christopher's Jolirab. A length and a half farther away, Carl G. Rose's Fan Lady was third in the field of 14.

Werwolf ran as an entry with Dalpark and the duo went postward a strong choice at $3.10 for two. The time was :34 flat. The event grossed $13,300 and netted the victor $9,575.

This was the second running of the stake, and the added value was doubled over the 1948 edition, which was won by Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Rablim. An estimated 16,000 fans saw today's renewal.

HE'LL BE AT TRIBE'S CAMP

HERE'S a new picture of Artie Wilson, manager and shortstop of the Mayaguez, P. R., baseball team, who was signed by the Cleveland Indians after Prexy Bill Veeck made an air trip to Puerto Rico to nab him right from under the nose of the Yankees, who had been dickering with him. Wilson will report to the Tribe's camp at Tucson, Ariz., next week. (International)

14 Colts May Start In $100,000 Derby

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP)—Explosive Olympia and his stablemate, Ocean Drive, hold dominating roles in the twelfth edition of Santa Anita's $100,000 Derby tomorrow.

Fourteen colts—there isn't a filly in the crowd—were named today to battle over the mile and one-eighth route for a purse that will gross $141,800 and bring a net reward to the winner amounting to $94,700—both record sums for the Santa Anita Derby.

Here's the lineup, in post position order, and take your choice:

1. Old Rockport, 2. Ocean Drive; 3. Bolero; 4. Hayseed; 5. So La Ci; 6. Stone Age; 7. Black Fox II; 8. Admiral Lea; 9. Count Victor; 10. Pedigree; 11. Audacious Man; 12. Duplicator; 13. Olympia; 14. Swap Out.

Coupled as twin-threats are Olympic and Ocean Drive, owned by Fred W. Hooper, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., and Mrs. John D. Hertz' Count Victor and So La Ci.

A fast track and clear weather, with a turnout of some 60,000 hopeful patrons, are predicted for derby day.

Werwolf Scores At Hialeah Park

Wins By Two Lengths Earns $9,575 Purse

By FRED HAYDEN

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP) — Werwolf today became champion of the Florida-foaled juveniles when he easily captured the $10,000 added Florida Breeders' Stakes for his second triumph in as many starts.

Flying the San Francisco-owned silks of Mrs. J. G. Smyth, Werwolf finished the straight three furlong dash two lengths in advance of Tilyou Christopher's Jolirab. A length and a half farther away, Carl G. Rose's Fan Lady was third in the field of 14.

Werwolf ran as an entry with Dalpark and the duo went postward a strong choice at $3.10 for two. The time was :34 flat. The event grossed $13,300 and netted the victor $9,575.

This was the second running of the stake, and the added value was doubled over the 1948 edition, which was won by Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Rablim. An estimated 16,000 fans saw today's renewal.

Wilson will report to the Tribe's camp at Tucson, Ariz., next week. (International)

14 Colts May Start In $100,000 Derby

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP)—Explosive Olympia and his stablemate, Ocean Drive, hold dominating roles in the twelfth edition of Santa Anita's $100,000 Derby tomorrow.

Fourteen colts—there isn't a filly in the crowd—were named today to battle over the mile and one-eighth route for a purse that will gross $141,800 and bring a net reward to the winner amounting to $94,700—both record sums for the Santa Anita Derby.

Here's the lineup, in post position order, and take your choice:

1. Old Rockport, 2. Ocean Drive; 3. Bolero; 4. Hayseed; 5. So La Ci; 6. Stone Age; 7. Black Fox II; 8. Admiral Lea; 9. Count Victor; 10. Pedigree; 11. Audacious Man; 12. Duplicator; 13. Olympia; 14. Swap Out.

Coupled as twin-threats are Olympic and Ocean Drive, owned by Fred W. Hooper, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., and Mrs. John D. Hertz Count Victor and So La Ci.

A fast track and clear weather, with a turnout of some 60,000 hopeful patrons, are predicted for derby day.

Russia Building Fear, Dr. Jessup Says; Backs Pact

DES MOINES, Feb. 18 (AP)—Dr. Philip C. Jessup, the new American ambassador-at-large, said tonight Russia is manufacturing fear behind the iron curtain while 52 other United Nations are openly building peace.

He defended the proposed North Atlantic pact as a device that would not conflict in any way with the aims of the United Nations or the letter of the United Nations Charter provisions for regional alliances.

These points were made in a speech prepared for delivery to the 11th annual National Farm Institute. It was devoted to discussion of the first and third points in President Truman's inaugural address: Support of the United Nations and strengthening of freedom-loving nations against dangers of aggression.

Jessup said Soviet tactics and refusal to cooperate with majorities in the United Nations had "neither poisoned our policy" nor succeeded in wrecking the United Nations.

"At the same time," he said, "I do not hesitate to say that the attitude of the Soviet Union is making it more difficult for the United Nations to do its job. x x x Behind its iron curtain it is manufacturing fear. Out in the open we along with 51 other countries are building peace."

Jessup was named by President Truman last week to sit in for the State Department on international conferences.

Jessup said any idea that the Atlantic pact would be inconsistent with American policy supporting the United Nations was incorrect. It does not by-pass, substitute for or weaken the United Nations, he said.

The ambassador-at-large said "great strides" are being made toward a European union and that the Atlantic links, rather than separates, America and Europe.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18—(INS)—My old friend, Hunt Stromberg, is the first to hit three entertainment mediums—movies, radio and television—with a single story.

Susan Hayward

When Hunt starts "Prowl Car" for United Artists release he will also shoot it television-on-film, plus launching it on the radio as a chiller-diller serial. As you can probably guess from the title, "Prowl Car," by Ray Buffam, is about the motor police who drive the dark and lonely streets at night.

I must say television is becoming a controversial subject in Hollywood. Louis B. Mayer, a few days ago, said that MGM would not let its stars appear in television until the company knew how they would look.

Deny it or not, the girl who at this writing has the best chance to star in "Born Yesterday" is Susan Hayward. With Walter Wanger at Columbia, there's every reason to believe that Susan will be signed before long. If Susan gets the role, it will be her greatest break. With Charles Vidor directing her, she will be on her way to becoming another Rita Hayworth.

•—•—•

Joan Fontaine, who was at dinner the other night at Joan Bennett's and Walter Wanger's house, told me she expects to accept Jesse Lasky's offer to star in "Trilby," which, she says, will be made in England.

While Joan was talking to me, she and Errol Flynn discussed "The King's General," which Joan was supposed to do.

"It's all off now," Joan said.

"That's too bad," said Errol, "because I would like to do it with you." They talked at length about what a good picture it might make. But, apparently, Alex Korda has decided against making it.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mrs. Jimmy Duggan, Jr. gave birth to an eight-pound baby boy at Las Vegas. The baby's grandfather was the late Jimmy Duggan, an MGM director.

Cara Williams, red hair and all, at Ciro's with Jimmy Smith, here in Hollywood to settle the estate of his father, Thomas Smith, head of Star Electrical company.

Peggy Cummins, back from Europe, is in New York, Elizabeth Taylor, ditto. After a brief stay in the big town they will return to Hollywood.

I had a long talk with Errol Flynn at the dinner Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger gave for the Gardner Cowles. Errol seems to be going out more these days. His friend, Stephen Raphael, promised to give me first news on Freddie McEvoy's marriage, if any, to Claude Stephane.

Both men admired Arlene Dahl, who is one of Hollywood's beauties. She is in Walter's picture, "Reign Of Terror." It was her tests for that, that gave her the chance to play the femme lead in Van Johnson's current movie at MGM.

Arthur Hornblow came with bubbles, who is in Palm Springs for a brief visit. He is going to Rome early in the summer, or maybe sooner, for "Quo Vadis."

I so seldom get a chance to go to a luncheon, that I thoroughly enjoyed the shower Mrs. Darryl Zanuck gave for Mrs. Reginald Gardiner in the Rodeo room of the Beverly Hills hotel.

Virginia thoughtfully provided gifts for Kay Williams Spreckles, Mrs. Sam Engel, and Mrs. Peter Godfrey, all expectant mothers.

Nadia received so many gifts (fortunately few of them were duplicated) that it took a truck to take them home. Reggie, who came to pick her up, wasn't neglected. He was given an apron, a present from Jack Bolton, to wear the night the baby arrives. There was a place for aspirin, cigarets, etc.

Gloria Romanoff said, "You know, I think I'll tell Mike we ought to have a bigger room for private luncheons." The more I see Gloria, the better I like her. She and Mike were also at the Walter Wanger dinner. When I complimented him on his bride, he said, "I never knew marriage could be so pleasant."

That's all today.

Nearly 8,000 persons are employed in lumbering in Idaho.

FOUR WAY BIRTHDAYS—This Denver, Colo. family has something of a birthday record. Mrs. Earl Fox, (left) has had four children in five years and all four were born on February 16. She is shown with her infant son and Nurse Helen Pritchard. Holding the home fort are, left to right, Ann 4; Tommy, 2; Pappa Fox and Paul 3. Mrs. Fox formerly was a nurse in the maternity ward of the hospital where her four youngsters were born.

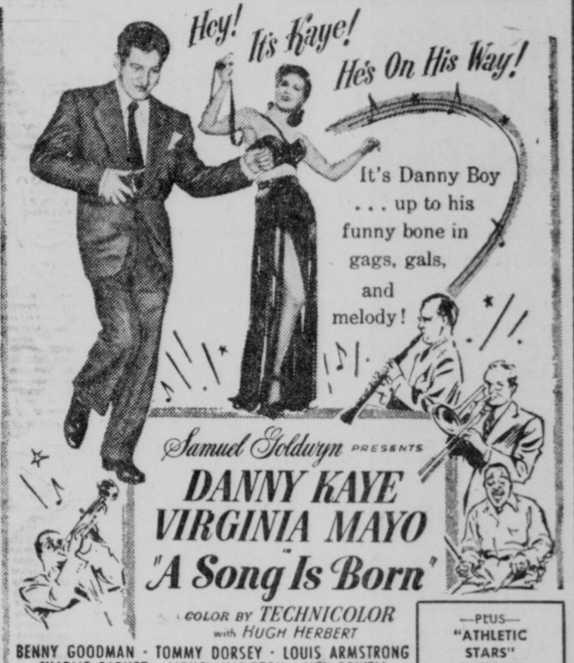

In the Old Colony House in Newport, R. I., built in 1739, Rhode Island declared her independence from England on May 4, 1776, two months to the day before it was voted by the other colonies.

Besides learning household arts, sightless girls from five to 76 years of age also try their hands at sculpture and literature in the New York Association for the Blind.

Haywood county, North Carolina, contains 72 mountain peaks more than 5,000 feet high.

George I, King of England for three years, could neither speak nor write the English language.

Russia Building Fear, Dr. Jessup Says; Backs Pact

DES MOINES, Feb. 18 (AP)—Dr. Philip C. Jessup, the new American ambassador-at-large, said tonight Russia is manufacturing fear behind the iron curtain while 52 other United Nations are openly building peace.

He defended the proposed North Atlantic pact as a device that would not conflict in any way with the aims of the United Nations or the letter of the United Nations Charter provisions for regional alliances.

These points were made in a speech prepared for delivery to the 11th annual National Farm Institute. It was devoted to discussion of the first and third points in President Truman's inaugural address: Support of the United Nations and strengthening of freedom-loving nations against dangers of aggression.

Jessup said Soviet tactics and refusal to cooperate with majorities in the United Nations had "neither poisoned our policy" nor succeeded in wrecking the United Nations.

"At the same time," he said, "I do not hesitate to say that the attitude of the Soviet Union is making it more difficult for the United Nations to do its job. x x x Behind its iron curtain it is manufacturing fear. Out in the open we along with 51 other countries are building peace."

Jessup was named by President Truman last week to sit in for the State Department on international conferences.

Jessup said any idea that the Atlantic pact would be inconsistent with American policy supporting the United Nations was incorrect. It does not by-pass, substitute for or weaken the United Nations, he said.

The ambassador-at-large said "great strides" are being made toward a European union and that the Atlantic links, rather than separates, America and Europe.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18—(INS)—My old friend, Hunt Stromberg, is the first to hit three entertainment mediums—movies, radio and television—with a single story.

Susan Hayward

When Hunt starts "Prowl Car" for United Artists release he will also shoot it television-on-film, plus launching it on the radio as a chiller-diller serial. As you can probably guess from the title, "Prowl Car," by Ray Buffam, is about the motor police who drive the dark and lonely streets at night.

I must say television is becoming a controversial subject in Hollywood. Louis B. Mayer, a few days ago, said that MGM would not let its stars appear in television until the company knew how they would look.

Deny it or not, the girl who at this writing has the best chance to star in "Born Yesterday" is Susan Hayward. With Walter Wanger at Columbia, there's every reason to believe that Susan will be signed before long. If Susan gets the role, it will be her greatest break. With Charles Vidor directing her, she will be on her way to becoming another Rita Hayworth.

●—●—●

Joan Fontaine, who was at dinner the other night at Joan Bennett's and Walter Wanger's house, told me she expects to accept Jesse Lasky's offer to star in "Trilby," which, she says, will be made in England.

While Joan was talking to me, she and Errol Flynn discussed "The King's General," which Joan was supposed to do.

"It's all off now," Joan said.

"That's too bad," said Errol, "because I would like to do it with you." They talked at length about what a good picture it might make. But, apparently, Alex Korda has decided against making it.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mrs. Jimmy Duggan, Jr. gave birth to an eight-pound baby boy at Las Vegas. The baby's grandfather was the late Jimmy Duggan, an MGM director.

Cara Williams, red hair and all, at Ciro's with Jimmy Smith, here in Hollywood to settle the estate of his father, Thomas Smith, head of Star Electrical company.

Peggy Cummins, back from Europe, is in New York, Elizabeth Taylor, ditto. After a brief stay in the big town they will return to Hollywood.

I had a long talk with Errol Flynn at the dinner Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger gave for the Gardner Cowles. Errol seems to be going out more these days. His friend, Stephen Raphael, promised to give me first news on Freddie McEvoy's marriage, if any, to Claude Stephane.

Both men admired Arlene Dahl, who is one of Hollywood's beauties. She is in Walter's picture, "Reign Of Terror." It was her tests for that, that gave her the chance to play the femme lead in Van Johnson's current movie at MGM.

Arthur Hornblow came with bubbles, who is in Palm Springs for a brief visit. He is going to Rome early in the summer, or maybe sooner, for "Quo Vadis."

I so seldom get a chance to go to a luncheon, that I thoroughly enjoyed the shower Mrs. Darryl Zanuck gave for Mrs. Reginald Gardiner in the Rodeo room of the Beverly Hills hotel.

Virginia thoughtfully provided gifts for Kay Williams Spreckles, Mrs. Sam Engel, and Mrs. Peter Godfrey, all expectant mothers.

Nadia received so many gifts (fortunately few of them were duplicated) that it took a truck to take them home. Reggie, who came to pick her up, wasn't neglected. He was given an apron, a present from Jack Bolton, to wear the night the baby arrives. There was a place for aspirin, cigarets, etc.

Gloria Romanoff said, "You know, I think I'll tell Mike we ought to have a bigger room for private luncheons." The more I see Gloria, the better I like her. She and Mike were also at the Walter Wanger dinner. When I complimented him on his bride, he said, "I never knew marriage could be so pleasant."

That's all today.

Nearly 8,000 persons are employed in lumbering in Idaho.

FOUR WAY BIRTHDAYS—This Denver, Colo. family has something of a birthday record. Mrs. Earl Fox, (left) has had four children in five years and all four were born on February 16. She is shown with her infant son and Nurse Helen Pritchard. Holding the home fort are, left to right, Ann 4; Tommy, 2; Pappa Fox and Paul 3. Mrs. Fox formerly was a nurse in the maternity ward of the hospital where her four youngsters were born.

In the Old Colony House in Newport, R. I., built in 1739, Rhode Island declared her independence from England on May 4, 1776, two months to the day before it was voted by the other colonies.

Besides learning household arts, sightless girls from five to 76 years of age also try their hands at sculpture and literature in the New York Association for the Blind.

Haywood county, North Carolina, contains 72 mountain peaks more than 5,000 feet high.

Kifer Returned To Keyser On Parole Count

Faces Sentence In Mineral Court

KEYSER, W. Va. — David Morrison Kifer, paroled in Mineral County Circuit Court in July, 1944, for five years after pleading guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and entering, was returned here yesterday for sentencing on a parole violation charge.

A two-year term ended yesterday at noon for Kifer at Maryland State Reformatory, Breathedsville. A warrant of detainer was filed by Prosecuting Attorney Don Hott and Sheriff F. G. Davis returned the youth to Keyser.

The indictment returned against Kifer in 1944 charged him with taking merchandise valued at $12.02 from the Buxton and Landstreet Company storehouse, Elk District. Kifer was sentenced to one to 10 years in the West Virginia State Penitentiary but the sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation.

According to Circuit Court records, Kifer was arrested in Rome, Ga., in 1945, for loitering; in 1945 in Cumberland on a charge of being drunk on a train, and in 1947 for burglary in Maryland, when he was given the reformatory term.

Hott indicated yesterday Kifer will be taken before Judge See within a few days for sentencing.

Money Gone With Wind; Most Returns

OAKLAND — Paper money was literally flying thick and fast Tuesday morning on Second Street and it wasn't long until three persons had recovered $102. The money finally got back into the hands of the rightful owners.

The sharp eyes of Lewis R. Jones spied a bill on the street between the West Maryland Power company and the Garrett National Bank buildings as he looked out of a window at The Republican office. As people walked by without noticing he picked it up. It was a ten dollar bill.

Then the wind whisked more of it across the street from in front of Rudy's and a woman, later identified as Mrs. Myrtle Beeman, Vindex, picked up several bills. Hers amounted to $76. Not to be outdone, George Hanst then joined in the search and retrieved $5.

By this time the owners had discovered their loss in the J. W. Jackson store nearby and upon relating to the finders who were searching for some claimant, that they had just had a check for $123.50 cashed at the William-James hotel before coming down street, the amount found was turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dupre, Salisbury, Md. Dupre is a state roads inspector and has been in the county a week or more.

The balance of the amount apparently was carried away by the wind.

Tucker County Fair Association Plans Program

Group Plans 1949 Livestock Show

PARSONS, W. Va. — Fifty residents of this county attended the meeting of the Tucker County Fair Association Wednesday night in the Court House in Parsons with Cecil M. Stalnaker, president, presiding.

The members voted to give the president authority to appoint the various committees for fair activities and the president appointed Paul Kelley, Robert Felton and Harry Eakin to investigate the securing of the Parsons Memorial Park as the site for the 1949 Fair.

The Institutional On the Job training veterans have also volunteered to assist in the erection of the pens.

A committee composed of William Smith, Otto Goodin, Henry Waybright, Elmer and Clyde Canfield, Elmer Mullenux Paul Kelley and Bernard Wilt was appointed in charge of the lumber.

Prizes will be offered for winners of livestock which includes beef and dairy cattle, chickens, pigs, sheep and other live products of the farm. Much interest is being shown by the veterans who are now enrolled in the farm training program and expect to have some outstanding displays at the fair which has the date set for September 26 to October 1.

The next meeting, to be held February 28, will be an important meeting at which time a committee is to be elected to secure and to have charge of the carnival activities. All interested persons are requested to attend this meeting.

Money Gone With Wind; Most Returns

OAKLAND — Paper money was literally flying thick and fast Tuesday morning on Second Street and it wasn't long until three persons had recovered $102. The money finally got back into the hands of the rightful owners.

The sharp eyes of Lewis R. Jones spied a bill on the street between the West Maryland Power company and the Garrett National Bank buildings as he looked out of a window at The Republican office. As people walked by without noticing he picked it up. It was a ten dollar bill.

Then the wind whisked more of it across the street from in front of Rudy's and a woman, later identified as Mrs. Myrtle Beeman, Vindex, picked up several bills. Hers amounted to $76. Not to be outdone, George Hanst then joined in the search and retrieved $5.

By this time the owners had discovered their loss in the J. W. Jackson store nearby and upon relating to the finders who were searching for some claimant, that they had just had a check for $123.50 cashed at the William-James hotel before coming down street, the amount found was turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dupre, Salisbury, Md. Dupre is a state roads inspector and has been in the county a week or more.

The balance of the amount apparently was carried away by the wind.

Millions Waiting For Missing Stockholders Of Chicago Firms

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (INS)—A New York company has announced it has been hired to look for 4,500 persons to whom two recently reorganized Chicago firms want to give $2,298,038.

Nicest part about the whole thing for the missing 4,500—if they're found—is that they don't know they have the money coming.

The potentially-lucky 4,500 are missing stockholders in the Midland Utilities Company and the Midland United Company, both of Chicago. The firm the companies have hired to find the stockholders is the Tracers Company of America, in New York.

The last known addresses of the missing persons are scattered in Alaska, Hawaii, 15 foreign countries and in 500 cities, towns and villages of America, including Paw Paw and Midland, Mich., Nectarine, Pa., and Broken Bow, Ohio.

The 15 foreign countries are: Argentina, Austria, Bermuda, Czechoslovakia, England, Finland, France, Germany, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Mexico, Norway, Palestine and Sweden.

Under a court order last year in the proceedings for reorganization of the Chicago companies, the court decreed that stockholders entitled to participate in the exchange of securities under the plan of reorganization must surrender their old securities before June 30, 1953. Otherwise they lose their rights to any securities or cash held for them.

The missing persons entitled to participate in the exchange, according to the Tracers Company, are holders of the following classes of securities of the Midland United Company and the Midland Utilities Company:

Midland United Company, $3 convertible preferred stock, series A.

Midland Utilities Company, series A six per cent debentures, seven per cent and six per cent series, prior lien stock.

Among a few stockholders already found by the Tracers Company, according to a statement, were:

"A threadbare gentleman living in a bombed out home in London."

"The heir of a deceased stockholder in Minnesota who is confined to a wheel chair because of paralysis contracted in infancy."

Wilburn Faces Charges In Woman's Death

Charges will be placed against John Wesley Wilburn in connection with the death Tuesday of Miss Myrtle Kathleen Moore, 38-year-old divorcee and native of Frostburg, at her home near Morgantown according to Monongalia, W. Va. authorities.

An autopsy revealed that the former Mrs. Earl O'Neal died of a ruptured bladder.

Prosecuting Attorney John V. Sanders said Wilburn has changed his story concerning bruises found on the woman's story. Yesterday he admitted orally to Morgantown authorities that he had struck the woman Friday night.

He had told Sgt. John Adams of the West Virginia State Police formerly, that he and Miss Moore had been intoxicated and had fallen several times while walking to a nearby farmhouse after his car had slipped from the road. He said this accounted for the bruises.

Police also announced they have received word from Ohio that Wilburn is wanted for violation of a parole imposed on a check forgery conviction. Federal authorities have also been investigating the 36-year-old Suncrest man for other parole violations on similar charges. Yesterday, the South High Motor Sales Company, Morgantown, obtained a warrant charging Wilburn with passing a "rubber" check, police reported.

The woman's body was brought to Frostburg yesterday for interment in Allegany Cemetery. Rev. Walter D. Mehrling, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, Frostburg, was in charge of the graveside service.

HAPPY REUNION—Arthur P. Abbott of Laureldale, a suburb of Reading, Pa., is shown holding his three-year-old son, Billy, a few minutes after the boy was found following a 21-hour search. Doctors at a Reading hospital said the boy was in "perfect health."

Reading's Babe-In-Woods Found Unharmed But "Terribly Scared"

READING, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP) — Weary searchers who hunted through the night found Reading's babe-in-the-woods today unharmed but "terribly scared."

Three-year-old Billy Abbott vanished at 4:30 p. m. yesterday. A thousand men, women and children pitched into the search. They found him lying in a clump of grass at 1:40 p. m. today.

Billy was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital and dismissed 10 minutes later after an examination disclosed no injury but that his temperature was low.

"It doesn't seem possible," one attendant said, "that he stayed outdoors throughout the night."

He was taken home in the official car of the assistant fire chief in his home town of Laureldale, a Reading suburb. All the fire sirens in Laureldale were turned loose hailing discovery of the boy.

His father, Arthur, who said earlier that Billy is "a very timid boy" and that "he never wandered off before," accompanied his son home in the fire car.

For a while, Billy said nothing. Then he reached into his father's coat and took out a cigarette lighter.

"I played with one of these last night," Billy said.

"Where?" his father asked him.

"At the house where I slept," Billy replied.

Further questioning failed to uncover any more details of how the little boy spent the night.

Wilkinson Opposes Kimble School Bill

Opposition to Senator Robert B. Kimble's bill concerning the relocation, abandonment and construction of schools was voiced in a statement yesterday by Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Wilkinson said he felt that a move to give the County Board authority to approve all such measures before the Board of Education could act upon them would place the educational system in the position of a "political football".

In his opinion, he went on, the Board of Education, dealing exclusively as it does, with the education of the younger generation, is more in a position to know the needs of the school system than any particular set of county commissioners.

Wilkinson went on record, however, as opposing the proposed abandonment of the high school part of the Barton School and consolidating it with the new school to be built in Lonaconing soon. He said that Barton was a large enough community to warrant having a school of its own.

Jury Grants Miner Full Compensation

The appeal of Lewis H. Biddle, 65-year-old coal miner, from a decision of the State Industrial Accident Commission, denying him compesation for total disability was granted by a Circuit Court jury Thursday.

Represented by Edward J. Ryan, the miner told the jury he suffered a back injury while at work in a mine operated by the Mill Run Coal Company, near Westernport, March 10, 1948.

The Commission awarded him partial compensation of $3,500, he said. The jury decided that Biddle had suffered permanent and total disabilities in the accident and the verdict gave him compensation of $7,500.

The state agency was represented by Philip McCusker, Baltimore, while Thomas B. Finan represented the mine owners, Wore M. Riley and Russell E. Ely.

Attorneys To Study State Judge Set-up

Ten attorneys will work with Attorney General Hall Hammond to study the advisability of a constitutional amendment to create a judgeship in each of the state's 23 counties. They were named by William C. Walsh, president of the Maryland Bar Association.

The five named from outside of Baltimore were Former Judge Walter C. Capper, Cumberland; William M. Storm, Frederick; T. Howard Duckett, Hyattsville; Frederick W. C. Webb, Salisbury, and Omar D. Crothers, Jr., Elkton.

School Funds May Be Invested

The investment of $2,000,000 obtained from the recent school bond issue for varying periods in order to draw interest until needed for the erection of three county schools was decided upon tentatively yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, who conferred with the board, said that under present plans, bids for one of the schools, the Mt. Savage building, will be asked in May. He added that he would confer with the school board in the matter, but it was certain members would agree to the proposal.

Under ordinary procedure the school board would probably not need more than $100,000 of the fund for any one month. The investment of $1,000,000 for a one-year period in either United States or other bonds would be practical, while $500,000 more could be invested on a six-month basis, according to Kopp. He said another $500,000 could be placed in an account with one or more local banks on call with 60 days notice providing a backlog for any eventuality.

City Bus Stops To Be Altered

Alterations of bus stops on the Potomac Edison Company Greene Street-Maryland Avenue route will begin Monday according to Chief of Police R. E. Flynn.

It was explained that stops will be changed from the near end of an intersection to the far end, thus eliminating cause for accidents resulting from obstruction of vision by the buses.

MIRROR of your MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Will knowing you love him kill a man's interest?

Answer: It may; and in that case you are "well rid of him," even though it may be hard to realize it at the moment. For the sort of man who loses interest in a girl whom he is "sure of" never really cared for her except as one more scalp for his belt, and would begin looking elsewhere anyhow as soon as she could no olnger "keep him guessing." But a normal man maybe scared off by knowing a girl loves him before he is sure he loves her, because this violates his masculine prerogative of taking the first step in courtship.

Can insecurity at home make a child hate school?

Answer: Yes, especially at the beginning of his schooldays. The child in the kindergarten or first grade who screams when his mother leaves him and will not play with the other children has a conscious or unconscious fear that mother will desert him altogether because at some time she has already seemed to do this. She may have been kept away from him for a long time by serious illness, or perhaps gone to a hospital to have another baby and seemed to "reject" him when she got back. Once he feels sure of her, he'll hate school no longer.

Should shock treatments be "routine"?

Answer: Never, insists Dr. Karl A. Menninger, chief of staff of the famous Menninger Clinic at Topeka, Kansas. Especially in the case of schizophrenics, "routine" shocks at stated intervals amount virtually to malpractice. Such treatments should be strategically "timed" to fit in with the patient's state of mind and stage of psychiatric progress. For what he needs above all is to believe that his environment is friendly and that he can trust the doctors, nurses, and attendants not to hurt or frighten him except to help him.

LOST BOY FOUND—After spending a night on a mountain near his home at Sylacauga, Fla., Rickey Dunn Tankersley, 2, is seen here resting. Rickey was alone on the mountain all night except for his two dogs. The nurse holding his hand is Mrs. Dwight Smelley.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE M. ADAMS

I was reading recently about the times of Shakespeare and the tough time that he had. I was informed that he spent much of his time in litigation, but it couldn't have worried him too much, for it was a Herculean task to write all those plays that he did. He had a few friends no doubt, but he understood human beings as no other writer. Wouldn't he gasp at the knowledge that his books had sold by the million, and that he was known and quoted all over the civilized world, should he suddenly drop in on us at this date?

I wonder what George Washington would think of his America if he should come back for a visit? Washington city and Radio City would undoubtedly give him something to think about. And I wonder what he would think of the Marshall Plan and of his successor, Mr. Truman? Certainly his Farewell Address would need to be revised to fit the present circumstances. But would he want to do it?

If Edgar Allan Poe should come back, I wonder what he would think of the poets who have succeeded him? And I wonder if people would treat him today as they did in his lifetime? Would he be so grossly misjudged as when he walked the streets of Baltimore and New York? Wouldn't he be surprised that his first little pamphlet publication of poems had been sold for $20,000? He — who could hardly scrape up the price of a meal at the time of publication.

What would Lincoln think of the Western foreign policy? We are sure that he would emphasize anew his statement of "malice toward none; charity for all." And moral rearmament would be his theme. He would be saddened at the world's war fever and the deadly means now invented for the killing of human beings. But his plea "that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth" would still thrill the world today as when he first uttered those immortal words.

These great of the earth can only come back to us in the record and deeds of their lives once lived. We are the custodians of their ideals. The world's heritage is what they were and did. If they could but speak today their message would simply be to — carry on!

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

This story must be told about a Scotch terrier. His mistress, off for a five-day vacation, gave the pooch five shiny pennies and said, "Now, Mac, take one of these pennies in your mouth every morning while I'm gone, trot down to the bakery, and buy yourself a nice hot bun."

Mac did no such thing, however. He took all five pennies in his mouth at the same time and got six buns for a nickel.

Definitions from a freshman's chemistry examination paper:

Chlorine—A dancer in a night club. Copper—A man who guards fire escapes at the girls' dormitory. Antimony—Fee collected by ex-wives smart enough to leave their husbands. Carbon—Storage place for streetcars. Catalyst—A western ranch owner. Boron—A person of low mentality. Electrolyte—A thing which when it is dark you turn on and it gets bright. Tension—An Army order. Miscible — Unhappy. Barium—What you do to dead people.

Prosecuting Attorney John V. Sanders said Wilburn has changed his story concerning bruises found on the woman's story. Yesterday he admitted orally to Morgantown authorities that he had struck the woman Friday night.

He had told Sgt. John Adams of the West Virginia State Police formerly, that he and Miss Moore had been intoxicated and had fallen several times while walking to a nearby farmhouse after his car had slipped from the road. He said this accounted for the bruises.

Police also announced they have received word from Ohio that Wilburn is wanted for violation of a parole imposed on a check forgery conviction. Federal authorities have also been investigating the 36-year-old Suncrest man for other parole violations on similar charges. Yesterday, the South High Motor Sales Company, Morgantown, obtained a warrant charging Wilburn with passing a "rubber" check, police reported.

The woman's body was brought to Frostburg yesterday for interment in Allegany Cemetery. Rev. Walter D. Mehrling, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, Frostburg, was in charge of the graveside service.

MIRROR of your MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Will knowing you love him kill a man's interest?

..Answer: It may; and in that case you are "well rid of him," even though it may be hard to realize it at the moment. For the sort of man who loses interest in a girl whom he is "sure of" never really cared for her except as one more scalp for his belt, and would begin looking elsewhere anyhow as soon as she could no olnger "keep him guessing." But a normal man maybe scared off by knowing a girl loves him before he is sure he loves her, because this violates his masculine prerogative of taking the first step in courtship.

Can insecurity at home make a child hate school?

Answer: Yes, especially at the beginning of his schooldays. The child in the kindergarten or first grade who screams when his mother leaves him and will not play with the other children has a conscious or unconscious fear that mother will desert him altogether because at some time she has already seemed to do this. She may have been kept away from him for a long time by serious illness, or perhaps gone to a hospital to have another baby and seemed to "reject" him when she got back. Once he feels sure of her, he'll hate school no longer.

Should 'shock treatments be "routine"?

Answer: Never, insists Dr. Karl A. Menninger, chief of staff of the famous Menninger Clinic at Topeka, Kansas. Especially in the case of schizophrenics, "routine shocks at stated intervals amount virtually to malpractice. Such treatments should be strategically "timed" to fit in with the patient's state of mind and stage of psychiatric progress. For what he needs above all is to believe that his environment is friendly and that he can trust the doctors, nurses, and attendants not to hurt or frighten him except to help him.

LOST BOY FOUND—After spending a night on a mountain near his home at Sylacauga, Fla., Rickey Dunn Tankersley, 2, is seen here resting. Rickey was alone on the mountain all night except for his two dogs. The nurse holding his hand is Mrs. Dwight Smelley.

HAPPY REUNION—Arthur P. Abbott of Laureldale, a suburb of Reading, Pa., is shown holding his three-year-old son, Billy, a few minutes after the boy was found following a 21-hour search. Doctors at a Reading hospital said the boy was in "perfect health."

Reading's Babe-In-Woods Found Unharmed But "Terribly Scared"

READING, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP) — Weary searchers who hunted through the night found Reading's babe-in-the-woods today unharmed but "terribly scared."

Three-year-old Billy Abbott vanished at 4:30 p. m. yesterday. A thousand men, women and children pitched into the search. They found him lying in a clump of grass at 1:40 p. m. today.

Billy was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital and dismissed 10 minutes later after an examination disclosed no injury but that his temperature was low.

"It doesn't seem possible," one attendant said, "that he stayed outdoors throughout the night."

He was taken home in the official car of the assistant fire chief in his home town of Laureldale, a Reading suburb. All the fire sirens in Laureldale were turned loose hailing discovery of the boy.

His father, Arthur, who said earlier that Billy is "a very timid boy" and that "he never wandered off before," accompanied his son home in the fire car.

For a while, Billy said nothing. Then he reached into his father's coat and took out a cigarette lighter.

"I played with one of these last night," Billy said.

"Where?" his father asked him.

"At the house where I slept," Billy replied.

Further questioning failed to uncover any more details of how the little boy spent the night.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE M. ADAMS

I was reading recently about the times of Shakespeare and the tough time that he had. I was informed that he spent much of his time in litigation, but it couldn't have worried him too much, for it was a Herculean task to write all those plays that he did. He had a few friends no doubt, but he understood human beings as no other writer. Wouldn't he gasp at the knowledge that his books had sold by the million, and that he was known and quoted all over the civilized world, should he suddenly drop in on us at this date?

I wonder what George Washington would thin' of his America if he should come back for a visit? Washington city and Radio City would undoubtedly give him something to think about. And I wonder what he would think of the Marshall Plan and of his successor, Mr. Truman? Certainly his Farewell Address would need to be revised to fit the present circumstances. But would he want to do it?

If Edgar Allan Poe should come back, I wonder what he would think of the poets who have succeeded him? And I wonder if people would treat him today as they did in his lifetime? Would he be so grossly misjudged as when he walked the streets of Baltimore and New York? Wouldn't he be surprised that his first little pamphlet publication of poems had been sold for $20,000? He — who could hardly scrape up the price of a meal at the time of publication.

What would Lincoln think of the Western foreign policy? We are sure that he would emphasize anew his statement of "malice toward none; charity for all." And moral rearmament would be his theme. He would be saddened at the world's war fever and the deadly means now invented for the killing of human beings. But his plea "that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth" would still thrill the world today as when he first uttered those immortal words.

These great of the earth can only come back to us in the record and deeds of their lives once lived. We are the custodians of their ideals. The world's heritage is what they were and did. If they could but speak today their message would simply be to — carry on!

Wilkinson Opposes Kimble School Bill

Opposition to Senator Robert B. Kimble's bill concerning the relocation, abandonment and construction of schools was voiced in a statement yesterday by Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Wilkinson said he felt that a move to give the County Board authority to approve all such measures before the Board of Education could act upon them would place the educational system in the position of a "political football".

In his opinion, he went on, the Board of Education, dealing exclusively as it does, with the education of the younger generation, is more in a position to know the needs of the school system than any particular set of county commissioners.

Wilkinson went on record, however, as opposing the proposed abandonment of the high school part of the Barton School and consolidating it with the new school to be built in Lonaconing soon. He said that Barton was a large enough community to warrant having a school of its own.

Jury Grants Miner Full Compensation

The appeal of Lewis H. Biddle, 65-year-old coal miner, from a decision of the State Industrial Accident Commission, denying him compesation for total disability was granted by a Circuit Court jury Thursday.

Represented by Edward J. Ryan, the miner told the jury he suffered a back injury while at work in a mine operated by the Mill Run Coal Company, near Westernport, March 10, 1948.

The Commission awarded him partial compensation of $3,500, he said. The jury decided that Biddle had suffered permanent and total disabilities in the accident and the verdict gave him compensation of $7,500.

The state agency was represented by Philip McCusker, Baltimore, while Thomas B. Finan represented the mine owners, Wore M. Riley and Russell E. Ely.

Attorneys To Study State Judge Set-up

Ten attorneys will work with Attorney General Hall Hammond to study the advisability of a constitutional amendment to create a judgeship in each of the state's 23 counties. They were named by William C. Walsh, president of the Maryland Bar Association.

The five named from outside of Baltimore were Former Judge Walter C. Capper, Cumberland; William M. Storm, Frederick; T. Howard Duckett, Hyattsville; Frederick W. C. Webb, Salisbury, and Omar D. Crothers, Jr., Elkton.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

This story must be told about a Scotch terrier. His mistress, off for a five-day vacation, gave the pooch five shiny pennies and said, "Now, Mac, take one of these pennies in your mouth every morning while I'm gone, trot down to the bakery, and buy yourself a nice hot bun."

Mac did no such thing, however. He took all five pennies in his mouth at the same time and got six buns for a nickel.

Definitions from a freshman's chemistry examination paper:

Chlorine—A dancer in a night club. Copper—A man who guards fire escapes at the girls' dormitory. Antimony—Fee collected by ex-wives smart enough to leave their husbands. Carbon—Storage place for streetcars. Catalyst—A western ranch owner. Boron—A person of low mentality. Electrolyte—A thing which when it is dark you turn on and it gets bright. Tension—An Army order. Miscible — Unhappy. Barium—What you do to dead people.

School Funds May Be Invested

The investment of $2,000,000 obtained from the recent school bond issue for varying periods in order to draw interest until needed for the erection of three county schools was decided upon tentatively yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, who conferred with the board, said that under present plans, bids for one of the schools, the Mt. Savage building, will be asked in May. He added that he would confer with the school board in the matter, but it was certain members would agree to the proposal.

Under ordinary procedure the school board would probably not need more than $100,000 of the fund for any one month. The investment of $1,000,000 for a one-year period in either United States or other bonds would be practical, while $500,000 more could be invested on a six-month basis, according to Kopp. He said another $500,000 could be placed in an account with one or more local banks on call with 60 days notice providing a backlog for any eventuality.

City Bus Stops To Be Altered

Alterations of bus stops on the Potomac Edison Company Greene Street-Maryland Avenue route will begin Monday according to Chief of Police R. E. Flynn.

It was explained that stops will be changed from the near end of an intersection to the far end, thus eliminating cause for accidents resulting from obstruction of vision by the buses.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Poorly ventilated closets get damp and musty during continued wet weather, and clothing hung in them may mildew. To dry the air, burn a small electric light continuously in the closet, or a larger one for a time until all dampness has disappeared.

LaSalle To Give Mystery

"The Missing Witness," a courtroom melodrama in three acts by James Reach, will be presented by the LaSalle players assisted by girls from Ursuline Academy, Catholic Girls Central High School and St. Mary's High School, tomorrow and Monday. It will be given in Carroll Hall beginning at 8:15.

The production is said to be based on an actual trial which took place in New York several years ago and which was the subject of sensational newspaper headlines. According to the LaSalle Players, it will be an elaborate production. The spectators will see represented on the stage the judge, jury, men and women of the press, prosecuting and defense attorneys, attendants, an authentic courtroom picture down to the last detail.

Leo H. Ley, director, who has been coaching plays and minstrels for many years in Cumberland and the Creek area, states, "this is going to be one of the most interesting and gripping plays yet produced by amateurs in this city."

The two casts include Robert Shuck and Fred Miltenberger as an attendant; Casper Taylor, Jr., and Pat DeMartino as the judge; John Billing and Richard Strong, Crandal; Thomas Rice, Thomas McDonough, Barkley; Thomas Connelley, O'Callahan; Josephine Esposito, Joanne Morehead, Helen; James Kelly, Henry; Gene Fair, Robert Shuck, Byrnes; Jean Wheeler, Elaine; Fred Miltenberger, John Billing, stenographer.

Mary Vanderhout, matron; Barbara Pellissier, Gert; Patricia Kirk, Patricia Koelker, Olga; Patricia Koelker, Patricia Kirk, Alice; Thomas Connor, Andy; Alfred Daugherty, gardner; Richard Strong, Gene Fair, Holm; Mary Vanderhout, Mrs. Jones; Joanne Morehead, Josephine Esposito, Peggy.

Pair Held Here In Tire Theft

Two Cumberland negroes arrested here last Saturday, were committed to Allegany County Jail yesterday in default of $500 bond each, after they were formerly charged with the theft of six tires from a local garage.

The pair was booked as Carl Morris Moxley, 28, 118 South Lee Street, and Kenneth Frank Holley, 26, 943 Glenwood Street. Both signed statements, police said.

Authorities said Moxley is also wanted in West Virginia in connection with the burglary of the Powers Service Station in Moorefield.

Home Rule

however. One of the members of the delegation, is a co-sponsor of a constitutional home rule bill which would enable us to have home rule. Numerous individuals of the delegation have lately privately expressed their approval of constitutional home rule bill. However, it is the opinion of many political observers that the constitutional home rule bill is doomed at the present legislature. It is our belief that our legislative delegation should have ready some other local substitute for state wide constitutional home rule basis if that proposal meets defeat.

The controversy illustrates the need for home rule itself. The legislative delegation is so pressed with work that it simply cannot devote enough time for adequate hearings. It is no doubt for this reason that our own letter of two years ago on various aspects of legislation was completely ignored by the delegation.

The legislative delegation lists three "fatal weaknesses" of the home rule portion of the Charter.

(1) Unconstitutionality, which is answered above. (2) As a second weakness, they claim it could possibly cause a running feud confusion by giving to the city a power to amend its charter, without taking this power away from the legislature.

Puzzling Observation

This is a very puzzling observation. Any statutory home rule, in the very nature of things depends upon the legislature giving the right of home rule to a city. What the legislature has given it can take away. As a practical matter, while both retain the power to act in the sphere of local government, the legislature in statutory home rule states rarely interfers with amendments enacted (as here provided), by public expression of a referendum. What statutory home rule do the legislators propose to substitute, to remove this difficulty?

(3) The third weakness is said to be that the city might claim itself able to enact local laws which would be in conflict with state-wide laws. Any home rule provision would require interpretation; limitations, definitions, boundaries and spheres of actions. Even constitutional home rule runs into this difficulty. This argument seems very strained.

To summarize it is the opinion of the Jaycee Board of Directors (1) That we should fight and attempt to obtain any portion of the Charter which the legislative delegation suffers to pass, (2) That home rule is desirable and necessary, (3) That the legislative delegation was hasty in killing home rule, (4) That the legislative delegation should be pressed to give to the citizens of Cumberland home rule, and if the method proposed by the Charter Commission is not appropriate, then they should substitute an appropriate method, (5) This organization should back the constitutional home rule bill.

TRIAL WITNESSES—Gunnar Drangsholt, Northwestern University student, (left) talks to James P. Caparella of New York, outside U. S. District Court, where they have testified in the treason trial of Mildred E. Gillars—the "Axis Sally"—of wartime German radio. Drangsholt yesterday shouted from the stand that Miss Gillars threatened Americans in a German prison camp in 1944. He was a defense witness.

22 Apply For Mail Hauling Contract

About 22 persons have obtained application forms for a contract for trucking service between the local, post office, Station A and the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland Railway stations, Acting Postmaster William C. McDermott said yesterday.

To the knowledge of postal officials, McDermott said, this is the largest number of persons ever to request forms for submitting contract proposals for the service.

Forms, he said, can still be obtained and proposals submitted, since the closing date is March 15. The contract period is four years, beginning July 1.

McDermott added that many requests for information regarding the contracts for hauling mail on star routes out of Cumberland.

He said, however, that the Post Office Department has not yet advised him when these contracts will be open for bids.

Insurance Benefits Above Last Year's

Maryland families received $25,441,000 in life insurance death benefit payments during 1948, the Institute of Life Insurance reported yesterday.

The total in 1947 was $23,144,000 and in 1946, $21,942,000, the Institute reported. The payments were made under 32,425 policies, compared with 31,451 in 1947 and 30,525 in 1946.

Of the total 1948 payments in the state, $17,026,000 was paid under 5,820 ordinary policies, $3,299,000 under 2,043 group life insurance policies, and $5,116,000 under 24,562 industrial insurance policies.

The national total of death benefits paid set a new record in spite of the lowest death rate among policy-holders ever experienced, the Institute reported.

The national total was $1,446,607,000, as compared with $1,339,390,000 in 1947 and $1,280,362,000 in 1946.

Death benefits nationally were 43 per cent greater than in prewar 1941 and the total amount of life insurance was 65 per cent greater.

The production is said to be based on an actual trial which took place in New York several years ago and which was the subject of sensational newspaper headlines. According to the LaSalle Players, it will be an elaborate production. The spectators will see represented on the stage the judge, jury, men and women of the press, prosecuting and defense attorneys, attendants, an authentic courtroom picture down to the last detail.

Leo H. Ley, director, who has been coaching plays and minstrels for many years in Cumberland and the Creek area, states, "this is going to be one of the most interesting and gripping plays yet produced by amateurs in this city."

The two casts include Robert Shuck and Fred Miltenberger as an attendant; Casper Taylor, Jr., and Pat DeMartino as the judge; John Billing and Richard Strong, Crandal; Thomas Rice, Thomas McDonough, Barkley; Thomas Connelley, O'Callahan; Josephine Esposito, Joanne Morehead, Helen; James Kelly, Henry; Gene Fair, Robert Shuck, Byrnes; Jean Wheeler, Elaine; Fred Miltenberger, John Billing, stenographer.

Pair Held Here In Tire Theft

Two Cumberland negroes arrested here last Saturday, were committed to Allegany County Jail yesterday in default of $500 bond each, after they were formerly charged with the theft of six tires from a local garage.

The pair was booked as Carl Morris Moxley, 28, 118 South Lee Street, and Kenneth Frank Holley, 26, 943 Glenwood Street. Both signed statements, police said.

Authorities said Moxley is also wanted in West Virginia in connection with the burglary of the Powers Service Station in Moorefield.

however. One of the members of the delegation, is a co-sponsor of a constitutional home rule bill which would enable us to have home rule. Numerous individuals of the delegation have lately privately expressed their approval of constitutional home rule bill. However, it is the opinion of many political observers that the constitutional home rule bill is doomed at the present legislature. It is our belief that our legislative delegation should have ready some other local substitute for state wide constitutional home rule basis if that proposal meets defeat.

The controversy illustrates the need for home rule itself. The legislative delegation is so pressed with work that it simply cannot devote enough time for adequate hearings. It is no doubt for this reason that our own letter of two years ago on various aspects of legislation was completely ignored by the delegation.

The legislative delegation lists three "fatal weaknesses" of the home rule portion of the Charter.

(1) Unconstitutionality, which is answered above. (2) As a second weakness, they claim it could possibly cause a running feud confusion by giving to the city a power to amend its charter, without taking this power away from the legislature.

Puzzling Observation

This is a very puzzling observation. Any statutory home rule, in the very nature of things depends upon the legislature giving the right of home rule to a city. What the legislature has given it can take away. As a practical matter, while both retain the power to act in the sphere of local government, the legislature in statutory home rule states rarely interfers with amendments enacted (as here provided), by public expression of a referendum. What statutory home rule do the legislators propose to substitute, to remove this difficulty?

(3) The third weakness is said to be that the city might claim itself able to enact local laws which would be in conflict with state-wide laws. Any home rule provision would require interpretation; limitations, definitions, boundaries and spheres of actions. Even constitutional home rule runs into this difficulty. This argument seems very strained.

To summarize it is the opinion of the Jaycee Board of Directors (1) That we should fight and attempt to obtain any portion of the Charter which the legislative delegation suffers to pass, (2) That home rule is desirable and necessary, (3) That the legislative delegation was hasty in killing home rule, (4) That the legislative delegation should be pressed to give to the citizens of Cumberland home rule, and if the method proposed by the Charter Commission is not appropriate, then they should substitute an appropriate method, (5) This organization should back the constitutional home rule bill.

TRIAL WITNESSES—Gunnar Drangsholt, Northwestern University student, (left) talks to James P. Caparella of New York, outside U. S. District Court, where they have testified in the treason trial of Mildred E. Gillars—the "Axis Sally"—of wartime German radio. Drangsholt yesterday shouted from the stand that Miss Gillars threatened Americans in a German prison camp in 1944. He was a defense witness.

22 Apply For Mail Hauling Contract

About 22 persons have obtained application forms for a contract for trucking service between the local, post office, Station A and the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland Railway stations, Acting Postmaster William C. McDermott said yesterday.

To the knowledge of postal officials, McDermott said, this is the largest number of persons ever to request forms for submitting contract proposals for the service.

Forms, he said, can still be obtained and proposals submitted, since the closing date is March 15. The contract period is four years, beginning July 1.

McDermott added that many requests for information regarding the contracts for hauling mail on star routes out of Cumberland.

He said, however, that the Post Office Department has not yet advised him when these contracts will be open for bids.

Insurance Benefits Above Last Year's

Maryland families received $25,441,000 in life insurance death benefit payments during 1948, the Institute of Life Insurance reported yesterday.

The total in 1947 was $23,144,000 and in 1946, $21,942,000, the Institute reported. The payments were made under 32,425 policies, compared with 31,451 in 1947 and 30,525 in 1946.

Of the total 1948 payments in the state, $17,026,000 was paid under 5,820 ordinary policies, $3,299,000 under 2,043 group life insurance policies, and $5,116,000 under 24,562 industrial insurance policies.

The national total of death benefits paid set a new record in spite of the lowest death rate among policy-holders ever experienced, the Institute reported.

The national total was $1,446,607,000, as compared with $1,339,390,000 in 1947 and $1,280,362,000 in 1946.

Death benefits nationally were 43 per cent greater than in prewar 1941 and the total amount of life insurance was 65 per cent greater.

The men, James V. Porter, Alden Lowery and Arthur Miller, said they were making the request now in view of plans by the Board of Education to erect a new school at Ellerslie. It was pointed out to the Ellerslie men that the new school would probably not be built for about a year.

Stock Market Declines For First Time Since Last Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—The stock market declined today for the first time this week.

Losses were small, though, and held only a small edge over gains. Buying interest faded away in the afternoon after the market had puttered along indecisively.

Among issues off a point or more were U. S. Steel at 71⅜, Chrysler 53⅜, Goodrich 59¼, Owens-Illinois 53, Continental Insurance 59¼, Divco Corp., 13, Liggett and Myers 85½.

Others down included Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Republic Aviation, American Smelting, Air Reduction, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, Radio Corp., Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Sinclair Oil, and Texas Co.

On the plus side were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Deere and Co., United Aircraft, American Telephone, International Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Kennecott Copper, American Can, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, American Woolen, and Standard Oil (NJ).

Progress by public utility issues kept the bond market out of the red today.

Long-term U. S. government bonds generally were unchanged in quiet over-the-counter trade. Only the partially tax exempt 2¾s made any progress—the 1960-55s moving ahead 3-32, the 1959-56s 2-32 and the 1963-58s 1-32.

The best gain on the corporate list was made by American Airlines 3s, which took a three point rise at 82 on one sale.

Others higher by fractions to more than a point included American Tobacco 3s of '69, Rock Island Income 4½s, Colorado Southern 4½s, Lautaro Nitrate Income bonds, Lehigh Valley Stamped 4s Pennsylvania Railroad 4½s of '84.

Baltimore and Ohio (Toledo Cincinnati division) 4s were the day's biggest loser, dropping 2½ points at 73½. Others down 1 to 2 points included Florida East Coast five per cent certificates, Gulf Mobile and Ohio "B" bonds, Illinois Central 4¼s, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico 5½s.

Stock Market Declines For First Time Since Last Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—The stock market declined today for the first time this week.

Losses were small, though, and held only a small edge over gains. Buying interest faded away in the afternoon after the market had puttered along indecisively.

Among issues off a point or more were U. S. Steel at 71⅜, Chrysler 53⅜, Goodrich 59¼, Owens-Illinois 53, Continental Insurance 59¼, Divco Corp., 13, Liggett and Myers 85½.

Others down included Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Republic Aviation, American Smelting, Air Reduction, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, Radio Corp., Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Sinclair Oil, and Texas Co.

On the plus side were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Deere and Co., United Aircraft, American Telephone, International Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Kennecott Copper, American Can, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, American Woolen, and Standard Oil (NJ).

Progress by public utility issues kept the bond market out of the red today.

Long-term U. S. government bonds generally were unchanged in quiet over-the-counter trade. Only the partially tax exempt 2¾s made any progress—the 1960-55s moving ahead 3-32, the 1959-56s 2-32 and the 1963-58s 1-32.

The best gain on the corporate list was made by American Airlines 3s, which took a three point rise at 82 on one sale.

Others higher by fractions to more than a point included American Tobacco 3s of '69, Rock Island Income 4½s, Colorado Southern 4½s, Lautaro Nitrate Income bonds, Lehigh Valley Stamped 4s Pennsylvania Railroad 4½s of '84.

Baltimore and Ohio (Toledo Cincinnati division) 4s were the day's biggest loser, dropping 2½ points at 73½. Others down 1 to 2 points included Florida East Coast five per cent certificates, Gulf Mobile and Ohio "B" bonds, Illinois Central 4¾s, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico 5½s.

Co-operation Is Urged In Stream Pollution Plans

Industries Asked To Treat Wastes

Co-operation between industries and municipalities in effecting control of pollution of the North Branch of the Potomac River Basin was recommended in a letter received yesterday by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners from the Water Pollution Control Commission.

The communication informed the commissioners that letters are being sent to all known industries in the area urging them to comply with a regulation of the Commission which became effective last August.

The regulation provides 10 requirements which must be met by any wastes emptied into Maryland rivers. They concern the amount of settleable solids, turbidity, oxygen consumption, color, dissolved solids, floating solids and liquids, odor, and toxicity of sewage.

Cities Must Aid

The communication pointed out that many industries discharge wastes into municipal sewage systems. This procedure gives the same result as emptying them directly into the waterway if the municipality has no adequate means of treatment, the commission declared.

Therefore, the Commission explained, industries located in the larger towns depend on the community to handle wastes at a treatment plant.

Full co-operation can be expected, the Commission said, only when municipalities do their part. The Commission urges serious thought and consideration of the matter by towns involved.

A survey by a qualified sanitary engineer is suggested to aid the industry or municipality in planning effective treatment for sewage. However, the Commission warned, the Department of Health must be notified before any actual construction can begin.

No Deadline Set

The letter points out that although no date or deadline has been set for compliance with the regulation mentioned above, industries are being notified of its requirements in order that they may study their sewage problems and take any necessary corrective steps.

Only acid-mine drainage is not affected by the regulation, the Commission declared. The letter explained that although the requirements of the regulation cannot be made more liberal, they can be made more strict if pollution conditions at any stream warrant it.

The staff of the Commission will aid when requested in conducting inspections, giving technical advice and analyzing samples of wastes, the letter stated.

Small Owners Oppose W. Va. Mine Measure

Resist Safety Feature In Bill

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 18 (AP) — An administration leader proposed today to remove from a mine safety bill features which operators of small mines contended would put them out of business.

The action came as a delegation of 75 of the "small operators" in a 13-car motor caravan descended on the capital to lobby for their objectives.

Chairman Stidham (D-Logan) of the House Mining Committee lost a move to keep the bill from being laid over until Monday, but he later told newsmen he had ready a batch of amendments which he thought would "tickle the little fellows to death."

Stidham's committee already had smoothed over two points which the small operators found objectionable.

The original bill would have required continuous operation of mine ventilating fans, and would have prohibited "solid blasting" of coal without first loosening the face by cutting machines or picks.

The committee amended it to require that fans be started three hours before a shift enters the mine, and to eliminate the section entirely about "solid blasting."

Stidham said his amendments would exempt mines employing 20 persons or less from provisions which require workers to wear electric cap lamps (with open flame barred), employ full-time fire bosses for safety inspections, and arbitrarily classify all mines as gassy.

The small operators had contended that regulations such as requiring continuous operation of fans, electric lamps and the like would impose prohibitive overhead expenses on mines which employed only a few workers.

Del. Tetrick (D-Harrison), a champion of the small operators, submitted an amendment which had the effect of completely rewriting the pending bill.

Mine Hearing Today

The committee named by Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., will receive suggestions to improve Maryland's mining laws at a public hearing today at 10 a. m. at City Hall.

The Weather

The Cumberland groundhog contingent must have a mass inferiority complex as they look over the weather which obstinately acts like spring. Yesterday was pretty enough for cotton dresses with the thermometer going up to 60 degrees. It was warm enough for those who didn't go out early enough to catch the 22 degree low, that is. The thermometer read 46 degrees at 9 p. m. and was slipping slightly toward midnight. It would be best to trade winter coat for raincoat to take care of today's mild, cloudy and maybe rainy weather.

Charter Measure Reading Deferred

Third reading of Cumberland's charter bill in the House of Delegates has been postponed until Monday night, according to Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Delegation.

The measure was the only bill due for a third reading at yesterday's session, which caused the postponement.

Dance Will Be Held Friday For Heart Fund

Event Planned At Clary Club

Arrangements are being made for a county-wide dance to be held next Friday, February 25, at Clary Club to climax the current Heart Fund drive.

Daniel L. D'Amicol, general chairman, said all proceeds will be turned over to the campaign. Use of the hall has been donated by Jack Lyons, proprietor.

Approximately 200 couples are expected to attend the semi-formal affair, which will be open to the public.

Dancing will be held from 9 to 1 with music furnished by Don Prichard's Silvertones.

Tickets may be obtained from D'Amicol or from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Loyal Order of Moose homes here.

Frank T. Powers, commander of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, Frostburg, is chairman of arrangements.

His committee includes Mrs. Edward J. Ryan, Mrs. Leah Yates, Mrs. Edna M. Engle, Mrs. Annie Laber, Mrs. Alvinia Cole, Mrs. Freda Spiker, Joseph Montana, Joseph Freeland, Joseph Lee Linn, Jesse Jacobs, Walter Mackay and Carmel Pinto.

Tickets will be distributed in communities throughout the Frostburg and Cumberland areas.

D'Amicol said the closing date of the drive has been moved up from February 28 to next Saturday, February 26.

A report meeting is scheduled Monday evening at 7:30 at the Cumberland Free Public Library.

The general chairman urged all persons interested in contributing to mail their donations to "Heart Drive," Box 1289, Cumberland Postoffice.

No house to house canvass is being made, but membership cards are being sold with the co-operation of local organizations.

Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, noted local heart specialist and president of the Allegany County Rheumatic Fever and Heart Association, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Association Monday night at 8 o'clock at the school.

County goal of the drive is $10,000. Funds will be used to set up a heart clinic here and to conduct an educational and treatment program throughout the area.

Missing Plane Found In Woods Near Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP)—Discovery of a wrecked air force training plane on Laurel Mountain today ended a three-day air search over parts of four states.

Three Pennsylvania soldiers were aboard the plane, lost en route to Pittsburgh from Washington, D. C. Pilots who flew low over the crash scene eight miles north of here saw no signs of life.

Army "air-sea" rescue searchers said wreckage was strewn over a wide area, about 100 feet from the mountain top. The plane cut a wide swath through second growth timber which was scorched. Pilots said the plane's fuel tank must have exploded.

Aboard the missing plane were Lt. William K. Simmers, 30, Bethlehem, and Lt. Merle Hagenbuch, 30, and Staff Sgt. Norman Bogert, 32, both of Allentown. They were on a training flight from Bolling Field.

As soon as the wreckage was located, two parachute jumpers were flown over the scene. They were ordered not to jump, however, after it was reported there was no sign of life and the terrain was extremely hazardous.

The plane was last heard from at 4:51 p. m. Tuesday. The search extended from Youngstown, O., to Cumberland, Md.

Habeas Corpus Petition Denied

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus by a prisoner seeking release from the House of Correction was denied in a hearing in Circuit Court yesterday by Associate Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr.

The petitioner, Leonard T. Ridgely, stated he was sentenced to three years in the Maryland State Reformatory for Males July 15, 1948 on a larceny count.

Ridgely said he was sentenced by Judge John T. Tucker of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City on a larceny count after being found not guilty. He was later transferred to the House of Correction.

At the hearing yesterday the Court was unable to find anything in the commitment papers to indicate Ridgely had been sentenced unjustly.

Court attaches, however, expressed the opinion Ridgely had been found not guilty on one count of a larceny indictment and had been found guilty and sentenced on the other.

In dismissing the petition Judge Bruce ordered Ridgely returned to the House of Correction and ordered the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to pay Ridgely's attorney fee.

Ridgley was represented at the hearing by William J. Gunter. Assistant State's Attorney Paul Fletcher represented the State.

Hobrock To Head Recruiting Office

Major Edward S. Dzura, officer in charge of the Maryland-Delaware U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting District, Baltimore, (right) reads the orders which will make Sgt. Richard E. Hobrock (center) NCO-in-charge of the local office. The change will take place February 28 when T. Sgt. Vernon B. Debnam, recruiter-in-charge of the local office for the past 23 months, is transferred to Second Marine Division, Camp LeJeune, N. C. Sgt. Hobrock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hobrock, 315 Holland Street, has been assistant recruiter here for the past 10 months. He has served with the Marine Corps for eight years. A veteran of 26 years with the Marines, Sgt. Debnam served for one year as NCO in charge of the Hagerstown office before coming to Cumberland.

Probe Of Wage Scale Promised By Legislators

Beall Asks Airing By Federal Group

Building Trades Council officials yesterday reported that lawmakers of this area have instituted an investigation of the wage scale for contracts on the million dollar Keyser-McCoole bridge.

Plans for the probe, they said, were made at a conference with Senator Harley Kilgore and Rep. Harley Staggers, of West Virginia, and Rep. J. Glenn Beall, of Maryland, in Senator Kilgore's office Thursday.

Representing the Allegany County labor group were George W. Lucas, president, C. E. Bramble, Dick Pownall and F. Patrick Allender.

Labor officials said the lawmakers promised to make a complete investigation to determine why three wage scales are being used in the area.

The wage rates referred to are those for the Savage River dam, set up by the Davis-Bacon Administration, and scales to be paid for the science building at Potomac State School and on the bridge project, set by the W. Va. Department of Labor.

The labor leaders said the legislators promised especially to probe the minimum wage scale on the bridge substructure contract.

Rep. Beall, they added, said he would ask the Federal Bureau of Public Roads to investigate and report back to him.

The Trades Council is protesting the difference in wage scales called for on the bridge job and asks that awarding of contracts be held up until the issue is settled on the basis of a "fair wage rate".

The Council will also seek a meeting with the Allegany County Delegation on the issue.

Conference Held On Pension Plan

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson conferred yesterday in Baltimore with John P. Mannion, director of the state employe retirement system, with regard to a proposed pension plan for city employes.

Gibson said clarification of technical data prepared for the city by a New York actuarial firm was secured at the conference.

If the plan is put into effect here, present city employes would be able to join on a voluntary basis, but the plan would be mandatory for those employed after it became effective.

The system, originally set up for state employes, was later extended to municipal employes.

Home Rule Question Analyzed By Jaycees

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following is the fourth and final section of a report on home rule which was submitted to membership of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce by the directors after it had been prepared and presented by a special committee on public affairs.

PART IV

A newspaper story carried the information that a joint meeting of the Charter Commission and the legislative delegation would be held on Saturday, January 29th, and indicated that only minor amendments would be discussed. At the meeting the question of constitutionality was only casually and briefly touched upon. Then at a later meeting of its own the legislative delegation declared the home rule portion of the bill unconstitutional and deleted it from the Charter. As an after-thought, one of the delegates later requested the Attorney-General for a corroborating opinion. Before the published opinion was made known to the public, the Charter bill was introduced without home rule.

1. The fact that the action was taken before the opinion was given to the public shows the mood of the delegation. However, even a corroboratory opinion would not be conclusive, for the office of the Attorney General of Maryland or the State Law Department is not the court of last resort of Maryland; in fact, it is not a court at all.

2. It has even been known to happen that the Court of Appeals of Maryland has not followed the opinion of the State Law Department; many cases in which the State Law Department appears are decided against the department viewpoint.

3. The integrity of the State Law Department is, in our opinion, above reproach and beyond question; nor do we think any "whitewash" is intended, but it is after all, made up of human beings, and we would believe it to be less than human if a subconscious pre-disposition to find in favor of unconstitutionality would not exist, since such a finding would relieve men they know, aid, work with, and associate with in official business, of the acute embarrassment of admitting a judgement rendered after the flimsiest pretext of a hearing on the point of constitutionality of statutory home rule.

Views On Constitutionality

The extreme diligence of search for unconstitutionality has not previously characterized our delegation. However, the importance of the Charter would justify that diligence and leave it entirely well-founded if it had not been for the fact that (a) The opportunity to be heard was not given both sides of the question, (b) the previous history of our legislative delegation set out above proves its reluctance to give up any powers, (c) a law is not unconstitutional until the Courts declare it so, for as Justice Holmes once phrased it, "the law is not a brooding omnipresence in the sky." It must be interpreted in the light of the living situation.

A bold note of relief must be sounded in favor of the Delegation,

City Will Recall Former Resident Tuesday---He's George Washington

George Washington once "slept here" and whether history records the fact or not, the city is going to celebrate his birthday Tuesday by halting most of its legal transactions for the day.

Local historians will seek a renewal of faith in the visit of the Father of Our Country by the annual opening at Riverside Park of the little log cabin that sheltered him from Allegany County's elements.

The Internal Revenue office, a bureau the soldier and statesman would undoubtedly show particular interest in if here were still making history, will take the day off from the usual routine of collecting taxes to support the nation that he helped mold.

The local office of the Maryland Employment Security Administration, a unit that Washington would have found little use for in his day, will also declare a holiday from the usual practice of seeking jobs for the unemployed.

The Maryland Veterans Commission, an organization that seeks to protect the interests of servicemen who served in United States Armies a little after the First President demobilized his, will also close for the day.

Trial Magistrates Courts, Police Court and most other legal dispensers of justice will pay respect to the man who set the wheels in motion for their existence, by declaring a holiday.

The Allegany County Court House that now occupies the site, where Washington as a youthful soldier did a bit of tactical studying on the best method for battle with the French, will dismiss its employes for the day also.

In fact just about all of the municipal, state, county and federal offices in this city will close on January 22 and let us hope that the history of Washington will be pondered and a few of the answers that he would have been capable of giving to the present world crisis can be found.

Nine Local Men Fought With Marines In Iwo Jima Landing Four Years Ago Today

At least nine local men remember vividly February 19 four years ago.

On this very day in 1945, Marines of the Fifth Amphibious Corps, composed of the Third, Fourth and Fifth Marine Divisions, landed on Iwo Jima.

Four days after the landing, Mount Suribachi was taken and Joe Rosenthal took the picture at left which is as familiar to American families as the memory of the Second Great War itself.

A costly battle, there were 20,000 casulties, more than 5,000 dead. But there are at least nine in Cumberland who lived to remember.

Two members of the instructor-inspector staff of Company D, Fifth Batallion, Marine Corps Reserve, were among those in that battle. Sgt. Jacob S. Bosley served with the Third Marine Division and Sgt. Paul A. Diviso was with the Fourth Division.

Others in the Fourth Division were Davis M. Caporale, 124 West Third Street; Richard W. Lashley, 315 Williams Street; Prentice M. Parsons, 515 Eastern Avenue; Robert J. Washabaugh, 617 Central Avenue, and Charles T. Simmons, 545 Center Street.

Among those serving with the Fifth Division were Walter J. Jenkins, 110 Reynolds Street, and Billy C. Megnes, 47 Lamont Street, who is a member of the local reserve unit.

Public Welfare Needs Increase During January

Cost Of Boarding Program Drops

A continuing increase in the number of cases assisted for Aid to Dependent Children and General Public Assostance marked the public assistance trend for January.

For Aid to Dependent Children the number of families assisted was 5453, an increase of 181 over the December figure. General Public Assistance showed an increase of 139 over the number of cases assisted for the preceding month. Although the increases in these two categories of assistance were considerable, they are less than those for the month of December.

A slight rise also took place in Public Assistance for the Needy Blind, four more individuals receiving assistance than in December. Old Age Assistance showed a slight decrease, with 5 fewer individuals receiving grants than in the preceding month. This decline reversed a trend that had reflected monthly increases since September.

January expenditures for the public welfare program totaled $1,204,337, an increase of $24,500, or 2.2 percent, over the amount spent in December. Most of this increase resulted from higher caseloads, with part of it attributable to a continued revision in average grants made possible through additional Federal funds which became available October 1, 1948.

The number of children for whom boarding home payments were made went up from 2138 to 2149. The average payment, however, decreased by $1.63 for each child, so that total expenditures for this program decreased by approximately $3,000.

Turnover in the caseload reveals that for Old Age Assistance the number of grants cancelled was almost the same as the number of new grants added, or approved. For Aid to Dependent Children 357 grants were added and 186 cancelled, and 320 were added and 183 cancelled for general Public Assistance.

Compared with December the number of grants added was slightly less in January for all types of assistance. The number cancelled showed increases for Old Age Assistance and Aid to Dependent Children, and slight decreases for Public Assistance to the Needy Blind and General Public Assistance.

Grants To Aged

In Allegany County, 742 persons received Old Age Assistance totaling $25,613.05 with the average grant $34.52.

Applications for such aid totaled 29, with eight grants made. The total load decreased, however, since 19 grants were cancelled.

In Garrett County, 292 persons received such aid totaling $9,710.65 with grants averaging $33.26. Five of the seven applicants received grants and three persons were taken from the rolls.

Aid to dependent children in Allegany County was granted to 760 children of 269 families for a cost of $21,993.75, for a cost of $81.76 per family and $28.94. per child. Sixteen of the 33 applicants received grants and 11 grants were cancelled.

Children Get Aid

In Garrett, 338 children of 113 families received $9,071.58 with an average cost of $80.28 per family and $26.84 per child. Half of the 14 applications were approved and four persons taken from the rolls.

Public assistance to the needy blind was granted to 26 persons in this county for a total cost of $827.10, or $31.81 per person. In Garrett, six persons were aided at a cost of $273.36, or $45.56 per person.

In Allegany, 211 persons received payments totaling $7,468.25 from General Public Assistance funds with grants averaging $35.39. Boarding home care was made for 62 children at a cost of $2,379.01, or $38.37 per child.

General Public Assistance funds were granted to 76 persons in Garrett at a cost of $2,425.49, with grants averaging $31.91. Boarding Home care for children totaled 22 persons for a total cost of $728.27, with costs averaging $33.10.

Rev. Winters To Be Guest Pastor At St. Mark's

Rev. George Raymond Winters, pastor of St. Paul's Reformed Church, Mahoney City, Pa., will be guest minister of St. Mark's Reformed Church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock worship service.

His sermon subject will be "Unashamed," based on St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, Chapter 1, Verse 16.

Rev. Winters, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Winters, 305 Paca Street, is spending a month's leave of absence granted by his congregation to recuperate from a recent illness. A son of St. Mark's congregation of this city, his first pastorate was the Hyndman-Wellersburg charge where he ministered for almost eight years. He served on the Olivet Charge at Butler, Pa., for two years before being called to his current pastorate in November, 1947.

A disastrous fire broke out in his church January 16, 1948, which caused damage estimated at $125,000.

The task of restoration under the supervision of Charles L. Bolton, Philadelphia, will be completed about May 1 at a cost of over $110,000.

A $10,000 pipe organ has already been purchased and a contractor for church furnishings has been awarded.

The membership of the congregation, in the heart of the anthracite region, is about 700.

The congregation also owns a 10 acre camp equipped with a swimming pool and four stone and frame cottages. It is largely maintained by the congregation's Boy Scout Troop.

Divorce Granted

Clara E. DuVall was granted an absolute divorce from Charles T. DuVall yesterday in Circuit Court.

Postoffice Averts Stamp Machine Crisis

One little problem brought on by the fluctuation in stamp prices has been solved at the Postoffice.

The five-cent air-mail slot in the stamp machine has been out of commission since the price went up one cent.

However, it has been fixed so that customers may get five two-cent stamps for a dime. Three of them may be used for the air mail letter, and the other two are good for unsealed envelopes, also more expensive of late.

Lions Hear Plan For Growth Of Fort Ashby Area

Incorporation and subsequent floating of a bond issue adequate to provide water and sanitation for the Fort Ashby, W. Va., community was recommended by Harold J. Snyder, Keyser, in an address before the Fort Ashby Lions Club this week.

Snyder, a member of the Keyser city council and, a member of the Blundon engineering firm there, said such action offers the most satisfactory solution to the problem.

He termed an adequate water supply and a satisfactory sewage disposal plan a "must" if communities such as Fort Ashby are to continue their growth.

Some 70 families and business establishments are located in the Fort Ashby community and at least 120 desirable locations are available for future growth, Lion officials said.

The club, at its meeting Wednesday night, advocated passage of West Virginia Bills 15 and 16, known as the Firemen's Dues Bills, which would allocate to fire fighters a portion of premiums paid for fire insurance within the state.

The Fort Ashby Lions, at the request of William Marker, a member of the club, will sponsor the Red Cross drive in that area.

March of Dimes collections made by the club totaled $20, members were told.

Forestry Board Holds Meeting

The Allegany County Forestry Board held a dinner-meeting at Ali-Ghan Country Club last night. Blair V. Welsh, vice chairman, was in charge.

Permission to cut timber on the farms of Wallace McGill, Pleasant Valley, and E. J. Bogner, near Barrelville, was requested by Thomas B. Finan, attorney for the farmers.

The board recommended that McGill follow previous recommendations of the Soil Conservation Service made when the Service made a plan for his farm. McGill had requested permission to cut within a seven-inch-diameter limit.

Bogner was advised to request the Soil Conservation Service to prepare a timber plan for his farm.

Two requests for clear-cutting permits were tabled until the Conservation Service can prepare plans for the farms.

A review of recent examinations of five sawmills indicated the operators are conforming to regulations.

Annual Maple Sugar Festival Plans Underway

Tri State Interest Evidenced In Fete

Somerset County, Pa., will celebrate the end of its 1949 maple sugar season March 25 with festivities in Meyersdale that already are scheduled to include a morning pageant and a late afternoon parade.

The annual festival will pay tribute to the maple syrup industry in the Pennsylvania county area and will open at 11 a. m. with the crowning of Queen Maple II at a pageant that will pay particular attention to the industrial aspect of the program.

Eight county girls are competing in the popularity contest for the title of Queen Maple and Frank Beamer, general chairman of the pageant said, the queen will receive a specially designed diamond ring.

Princesses will be selected from 13 county high schools to serve in the court and Grantsville High School, Garrett County, Md., has already selected Miss Helen Orendorf as princess from that area. She is a high school senior.

Contestants for the title of Queen Maple include Miss Patty Murray, 17, Meyersdale high school senior, who is presently leading in the contest with 6,221 votes; Miss Barbara Frain, 17, Meyersdale High, who is second with 5,430 votes; Miss Patricia Maust, Salisbury; Miss Thelma Hersch, Miss Thelma Hutzel, Miss Della Tressler, Miss Donna Miller and Miss Margaret Stairs, all of Meyersdale.

Following the cornation pageant a banquet will be served for the guests which already included the lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania and several state officials.

The parade which offers a total of $500 in cash prizes to musical organizations will be held in the late afternoon after a tour of maple sugar camps has been made by visitors.

Beamer said several Tri-State musical organizations have been invited to participate in the parade and added the committee is now preparing for a division of floats to add to the parade attraction.

Queen Maple II will be the honored guest at the night-time dance which will feature a name band, not yet announced. The dance will be open to the throng of visitors expected to visit Meyersdale for the annual affair.

The festival was started in 1948 and maple syrup producers expect to add to the attraction each year. The industry is one of the chief businesses in the Garrett County-Salisbury County area.

Co-operation Is Urged In Stream Pollution Plans

Industries Asked To Treat Wastes

Co-operation between industries and municipalities in effecting control of pollution of the North Branch of the Potomac River Basin was recommended in a letter received yesterday by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners from the Water Pollution Control Commission.

The communication informed the commissioners that letters are being sent to all known industries in the area urging them to comply with a regulation of the Commission which became effective last August.

The regulation provides 10 requirements which must be met by any wastes emptied into Maryland rivers. They concern the amount of settleable solids, turbidity, oxygen consumption, color, dissolved solids, floating solids and liquids, odor, and toxicity of sewage.

Cities Must Aid

The communication pointed out that many industries discharge wastes into municipal sewage systems. This procedure gives the same result as emptying them directly into the waterway if the municipality has no adequate means of treatment, the commission declared.

Therefore, the Commission explained, industries located in the larger towns depend on the community to handle wastes at a treatment plant.

Full co-operation can be expected, the Commission said, only when municipalities do their part. The Commission urges serious thought and consideration of the matter by towns involved.

A survey by a qualified sanitary engineer is suggested to aid the industry or municipality in planning effective treatment for sewage. However, the Commission warned, the Department of Health must be notified before any actual construction can begin.

No Deadline Set

The letter points out that although no date or deadline has been set for compliance with the regulation mentioned above, industries are being notified of its requirements in order that they may study their sewage problems and take any necessary corrective steps.

Only acid-mine drainage is not affected by the regulation, the Commission declared. The letter explained that although the requirements of the regulation cannot be made more liberal, they can be made more strict if pollution conditions at any stream warrant it.

The staff of the Commission will aid when requested in conducting inspections, giving technical advice and analyzing samples of wastes, the letter stated.

Small Owners Oppose W. Va. Mine Measure

Resist Safety Feature In Bill

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 18 (AP) — An administration leader proposed today to remove from a mine safety bill features which operators of small mines contended would put them out of business.

The action came as a delegation of 75 of the "small operators" in a 13-car motor caravan descended on the capital to lobby for their objectives.

Chairman Stidham (D-Logan) of the House Mining Committee lost a move to keep the bill from being laid over until Monday, but he later told newsmen he had ready a batch of amendments which he thought would "tickle the little fellows to death."

Stidham's committee already had smoothed over two points which the small operators found objectionable.

The original bill would have required continuous operation of mine ventilating fans, and would have prohibited "solid blasting" of coal without first loosening the face by cutting machines or picks.

The committee amended it to require that fans be started three hours before a shift enters the mine, and to eliminate the section entirely about "solid blasting."

Stidham said his amendments would exempt mines employing 20 persons or less from provisions which require workers to wear electric cap lamps (with open flame barred), employ full-time fire bosses for safety inspections, and arbitrarily classify all mines as gassy.

The small operators had contended that regulations such as requiring continuous operation of fans, electric lamps and the like would impose prohibitive overhead expenses on mines which employed only a few workers.

Del. Tetrick (D-Harrison), a champion of the small operators, submitted an amendment which had the effect of completely rewriting the pending bill.

Mine Hearing Today

The committee named by Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., will receive suggestions to improve Maryland's mining laws at a public hearing today at 10 a. m. at City Hall.

The Weather

The Cumberland groundhog contingent must have a mass inferiority complex as they look over the weather which obstinately acts like spring. Yesterday was pretty enough for cotton dresses with the thermometer going up to 60 degrees. It was warm enough for those who didn't go out early enough to catch the 22 degree low, that is. The thermometer read 46 degrees at 9 p. m. and was slipping slightly toward midnight. It would be best to trade winter coat for raincoat to take care of today's mild, cloudy and maybe rainy weather.

Charter Measure Reading Deferred

Third reading of Cumberland's charter bill in the House of Delegates has been postponed until Monday night, according to Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Delegation.

The measure was the only bill due for a third reading at yesterday's session, which caused the postponement.

Dance Will Be Held Friday For Heart Fund

Event Planned At Clary Club

Arrangements are being made for a county-wide dance to be held next Friday, February 25, at Clary Club to climax the current Heart Fund drive.

Daniel L. D'Amicol, general chairman, said all proceeds will be turned over to the campaign. Use of the hall has been donated by Jack Lyons, proprietor.

Approximately 200 couples are expected to attend the semi-formal affair, which will be open to the public.

Dancing will be held from 9 to 1 with music furnished by Don Prichard's Silvertones.

Tickets may be obtained from D'Amicol or from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Loyal Order of Moose homes here.

Frank T. Powers, commander of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, Frostburg, is chairman of arrangements.

His committee includes Mrs. Edward J. Ryan, Mrs. Leah Yates, Mrs. Edna M. Engle, Mrs. Annie Laber, Mrs. Alvinia Cole, Mrs. Freda Spiker, Joseph Montana, Joseph Freeland, Joseph Lee Linn, Jesse Jacobs, Walter Mackay and Carmel Pinto.

Tickets will be distributed in communities throughout the Frostburg and Cumberland areas.

D'Amicol said the closing date of the drive has been moved up from February 28 to next Saturday, February 26.

A report meeting is scheduled Monday evening at 7:30 at the Cumberland Free Public Library.

The general chairman urged all persons interested in contributing to mail their donations to "Heart Drive," Box 1289, Cumberland Postoffice.

No house to house canvass is being made, but membership cards are being sold with the co-operation of local organizations.

Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, noted local heart specialist and president of the Allegany County Rheumatic Fever and Heart Association, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Association Monday night at 8 o'clock at the school.

County goal of the drive is $10,000. Funds will be used to set up a heart clinic here and to conduct an educational and treatment program throughout the area.

Missing Plane Found In Woods Near Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP)—Discovery of a wrecked air force training plane on Laurel Mountain today ended a three-day air search over parts of four states.

Three Pennsylvania soldiers were aboard the plane, lost en route to Pittsburgh from Washington, D. C. Pilots who flew low over the crash scene eight miles north of here saw no signs of life.

Army "air-sea" rescue searchers said wreckage was strewn over a wide area, about 100 feet from the mountain top. The plane cut a wide swath through second growth timber which was scorched. Pilots said the plane's fuel tank must have exploded.

Aboard the missing plane were Lt. William K. Simmers, 30, Bethlehem, and Lt. Merle Hagenbuch, 30, and Staff Sgt. Norman Bogert, 32, both of Allentown. They were on a training flight from Bolling Field.

As soon as the wreckage was located, two parachute jumpers were flown over the scene. They were ordered not to jump, however, after it was reported there was no sign of life and the terrain was extremely hazardous.

The plane was last heard from at 4:51 p. m. Tuesday. The search extended from Youngstown, O., to Cumberland, Md.

Habeas Corpus Petition Denied

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus by a prisoner seeking release from the House of Correction was denied in a hearing in Circuit Court yesterday by Associate Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr.

The petitioner, Leonard T. Ridgely, stated he was sentenced to three years in the Maryland State Reformatory for Males July 15, 1948 on a larceny count.

Ridgely said he was sentenced by Judge John T. Tucker of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City on a larceny count after being found not guilty. He was later transferred to the House of Correction.

At the hearing yesterday the Court was unable to find anything in the commitment papers to indicate Ridgely had been sentenced unjustly.

Court attaches, however, expressed the opinion Ridgely had been found not guilty on one count of a larceny indictment and had been found guilty and sentenced on the other.

In dismissing the petition Judge Bruce ordered Ridgely returned to the House of Correction and ordered the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to pay Ridgely's attorney fee.

Ridgley was represented at the hearing by William J. Gunter. Assistant State's Attorney Paul Fletcher represented the State.

Hobrock To Head Recruiting Office

Major Edward S. Dzura, officer in charge of the Maryland-Delaware U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting District, Baltimore, (right) reads the orders which will make Sgt. Richard E. Hobrock (center) NCO-in-charge of the local office. The change will take place February 28 when T. Sgt. Vernon B. Debnam, recruiter-in-charge of the local office for the past 23 months, is transferred to Second Marine Division, Camp LeJeune, N. C. Sgt. Hobrock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hobrock, 315 Holland Street, has been assistant recruiter here for the past 10 months. He has served with the Marine Corps for eight years. A veteran of 26 years with the Marines, Sgt. Debnam served for one year as NCO in charge of the Hagerstown office before coming to Cumberland.

Probe Of Wage Scale Promised By Legislators

Beall Asks Airing By Federal Group

Building Trades Council officials yesterday reported that lawmakers of this area have instituted an investigation of the wage scale for contracts on the million dollar Keyser-McCoole bridge.

Plans for the probe, they said, were made at a conference with Senator Harley Kilgore and Rep. Harley Staggers, of West Virginia, and Rep. J. Glenn Beall, of Maryland, in Senator Kilgore's office Thursday.

Representing the Allegany County labor group were George W. Lucas, president, C. E. Bramble, Dick Pownall and F. Patrick Allender.

Labor officials said the lawmakers promised to make a complete investigation to determine why three wage scales are being used in the area.

The wage rates referred to are those for the Savage River dam, set up by the Davis-Bacon Administration, and scales to be paid for the science building at Potomac State School and on the bridge project, set by the W. Va. Department of Labor.

The labor leaders said the legislators promised especially to probe the minimum wage scale on the bridge substructure contract.

Rep. Beall, they added, said he would ask the Federal Bureau of Public Roads to investigate and report back to him.

The Trades Council is protesting the difference in wage scales called for on the bridge job and asks that awarding of contracts be held up until the issue is settled on the basis of a "fair wage rate".

The Council will also seek a meeting with the Allegany County Delegation on the issue.

Conference Held On Pension Plan

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson conferred yesterday in Baltimore with John P. Mannion, director of the state employe retirement system, with regard to a proposed pension plan for city employes.

Gibson said clarification of technical data prepared for the city by a New York actuarial firm was secured at the conference.

If the plan is put into effect here, present city employes would be able to join on a voluntary basis, but the plan would be mandatory for those employed after it became effective.

The system, originally set up for state employes, was later extended to municipal employes.

Home Rule Question Analyzed By Jaycees

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following is the fourth and final section of a report on home rule which was submitted to membership of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce by the directors after it had been prepared and presented by a special committee on public affairs.

PART IV

A newspaper story carried the information that a joint meeting of the Charter Commission and the legislative delegation would be held on Saturday, January 29th, and indicated that only minor amendments would be discussed. At the meeting the question of constitutionality was only casually and briefly touched upon. Then at a later meeting of its own the legislative delegation declared the home rule portion of the bill unconstitutional and deleted it from the Charter. As an after-thought, one of the delegates later requested the Attorney-General for a corroborating opinion. Before the published opinion was made known to the public, the Charter bill was introduced without home rule.

1. The fact that the action was taken before the opinion was given to the public shows the mood of the delegation. However, even a corroboratory opinion would not be conclusive, for the office of the Attorney General of Maryland or the State Law Department is not the court of last resort of Maryland; in fact, it is not a court at all.

2. It has even been known to happen that the Court of Appeals of Maryland has not followed the opinion of the State Law Department; many cases in which the State Law Department appears are decided against the department viewpoint.

3. The integrity of the State Law Department is, in our opinion, above reproach and beyond question; nor do we think any "whitewash" is intended, but it is after all, made up of human beings, and we would believe it to be less than human if a subconscious pre-disposition to find in favor of unconstitutionality would not exist, since such a finding would relieve men they know, aid, work with, and associate with in official business, of the acute embarrassment of admitting a judgement rendered after the flimsiest pretext of a hearing on the point of constitutionality of statutory home rule.

Views On Constitutionality

The extreme diligence of search for unconstitutionality has not previously characterized our delegation. However, the importance of the Charter would justify that diligence and leave it entirely well-founded if it had not been for the fact that (a) The opportunity to be heard was not given both sides of the question, (b) the previous history of our legislative delegation set out above proves its reluctance to give up any powers, (c) a law is not unconstitutional until the Courts declare it so, for as Justice Holmes once phrased it, "the law is not a brooding omnipresence in the sky." It must be interpreted in the light of the living situation.

A bold note of relief must be sounded in favor of the Delegation,

City Will Recall Former Resident Tuesday---He's George Washington

George Washington once "slept here" and whether history records the fact or not, the city is going to celebrate his birthday Tuesday by halting most of its legal transactions for the day.

Local historians will seek a renewal of faith in the visit of the Father of Our Country by the annual opening at Riverside Park of the little log cabin that sheltered him from Allegany County's elements.

The Internal Revenue office, a bureau the soldier and statesman would undoubtedly show particular interest in if here were still making history, will take the day off from the usual routine of collecting taxes to support the nation that he helped mold.

The local office of the Maryland Employment Security Administration, a unit that Washington would have found little use for in his day, will also declare a holiday from the usual practice of seeking jobs for the unemployed.

The Maryland Veterans Commission, an organization that seeks to protect the interests of servicemen who served in United States Armies a little after the First President demobilized his, will also close for the day.

Trial Magistrates Courts, Police Court and most other legal dispensers of justice will pay respect to the man who set the wheels in motion for their existence, by declaring a holiday.

The Allegany County Court House that now occupies the site, where Washington as a youthful soldier did a bit of tactical studying on the best method for battle with the French, will dismiss its employes for the day also.

In fact just about all of the municipal, state, county and federal offices in this city will close on January 22 and let us hope that the history of Washington will be pondered and a few of the answers that he would have been capable of giving to the present world crisis can be found.

Nine Local Men Fought With Marines In Iwo Jima Landing Four Years Ago Today

At least nine local men remember vividly February 19 four years ago.

On this very day in 1945, Marines of the Fifth Amphibious Corps, composed of the Third, Fourth and Fifth Marine Divisions, landed on Iwo Jima.

Four days after the landing, Mount Suribachi was taken and Joe Rosenthal took the picture at left which is as familiar to American families as the memory of the Second Great War itself.

A costly battle, there were 20,000 casulties, more than 5,000 dead. But there are at least nine in Cumberland who lived to remember.

Two members of the instructor-inspector staff of Company D, Fifth Batallion, Marine Corps Reserve, were among those in that battle. Sgt. Jacob S. Bosley served with the Third Marine Division and Sgt. Paul A. Diviso was with the Fourth Division.

Others in the Fourth Division were Davis M. Caporale, 124 West Third Street; Richard W. Lashley, 315 Williams Street; Prentice M. Parsons, 515 Eastern Avenue; Robert J. Washabaugh, 617 Central Avenue, and Charles T. Simmons, 545 Center Street.

Among those serving with the Fifth Division were Walter J. Jenkins, 110 Reynolds Street, and Billy C. Megnes, 47 Lamont Street, who is a member of the local reserve unit.

Public Welfare Needs Increase During January

Cost Of Boarding Program Drops

A continuing increase in the number of cases assisted for Aid to Dependent Children and General Public Assostance marked the public assistance trend for January.

For Aid to Dependent Children the number of families assisted was 5453, an increase of 181 over the December figure. General Public Assistance showed an increase of 139 over the number of cases assisted for the preceding month. Although the increases in these two categories of assistance were considerable, they are less than those for the month of December.

A slight rise also took place in Public Assistance for the Needy Blind, four more individuals receiving assistance than in December. Old Age Assistance showed a slight decrease, with 5 fewer individuals receiving grants than in the preceding month. This decline reversed a trend that had reflected monthly increases since September.

January expenditures for the public welfare program totaled $1,204,337, an increase of $24,500, or 2.2 percent, over the amount spent in December. Most of this increase resulted from higher caseloads, with part of it attributable to a continued revision in average grants made possible through additional Federal funds which became available October 1, 1948.

The number of children for whom boarding home payments were made went up from 2138 to 2149. The average payment, however, decreased by $1.63 for each child, so that total expenditures for this program decreased by approximately $3,000.

Turnover in the caseload reveals that for Old Age Assistance the number of grants cancelled was almost the same as the number of new grants added, or approved. For Aid to Dependent Children 357 grants were added and 186 cancelled, and 320 were added and 183 cancelled for general Public Assistance.

Compared with December the number of grants added was slightly less in January for all types of assistance. The number cancelled showed increases for Old Age Assistance and Aid to Dependent Children, and slight decreases for Public Assistance to the Needy Blind and General Public Assistance.

Grants To Aged

In Allegany County, 742 persons received Old Age Assistance totaling $25,613.05 with the average grant $34.52.

Applications for such aid totaled 29, with eight grants made. The total load decreased, however, since 19 grants were cancelled.

In Garrett County, 292 persons received such aid totaling $9,710.65 with grants averaging $33.26. Five of the seven applicants received grants and three persons were taken from the rolls.

Aid to dependent children in Allegany County was granted to 760 children of 269 families for a cost of $21,993.75, for a cost of $81.76 per family and $28.94. per child. Sixteen of the 33 applicants received grants and 11 grants were cancelled.

Children Get Aid

In Garrett, 338 children of 113 families received $9,071.58 with an average cost of $80.28 per family and $26.84 per child. Half of the 14 applications were approved and four persons taken from the rolls.

Public assistance to the needy blind was granted to 26 persons in this county for a total cost of $827.10, or $31.81 per person. In Garrett, six persons were aided at a cost of $273.36, or $45.56 per person.

In Allegany, 211 persons received payments totaling $7,468.25 from General Public Assistance funds with grants averaging $35.39. Boarding home care was made for 62 children at a cost of $2,379.01, or $38.37 per child.

General Public Assistance funds were granted to 76 persons in Garrett at a cost of $2,425.49, with grants averaging $31.91. Boarding Home care for children totaled 22 persons for a total cost of $728.27, with costs averaging $33.10.

Rev. Winters To Be Guest Pastor At St. Mark's

Rev. George Raymond Winters, pastor of St. Paul's Reformed Church, Mahoney City, Pa., will be guest minister of St. Mark's Reformed Church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock worship service.

His sermon subject will be "Unashamed," based on St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, Chapter 1, Verse 16.

Rev. Winters, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Winters, 305 Paca Street, is spending a month's leave of absence granted by his congregation to recuperate from a recent illness. A son of St. Mark's congregation of this city, his first pastorate was the Hyndman-Wellersburg charge where he ministered for almost eight years. He served on the Olivet Charge at Butler, Pa., for two years before being called to his current pastorate in November, 1947.

A disastrous fire broke out in his church January 16, 1948, which caused damage estimated at $125,000.

The task of restoration under the supervision of Charles L. Bolton, Philadelphia, will be completed about May 1 at a cost of over $110,000.

A $10,000 pipe organ has already been purchased and a contractor for church furnishings has been awarded.

The membership of the congregation, in the heart of the anthracite region, is about 700.

The congregation also owns a 10 acre camp equipped with a swimming pool and four stone and frame cottages. It is largely maintained by the congregation's Boy Scout Troop.

Divorce Granted

Clara E. DuVall was granted an absolute divorce from Charles T. DuVall yesterday in Circuit Court.

Postoffice Averts Stamp Machine Crisis

One little problem brought on by the fluctuation in stamp prices has been solved at the Postoffice.

The five-cent air-mail slot in the stamp machine has been out of commission since the price went up one cent.

However, it has been fixed so that customers may get five two-cent stamps for a dime. Three of them may be used for the air mail letter, and the other two are good for unsealed envelopes, also more expensive of late.

Lions Hear Plan For Growth Of Fort Ashby Area

Incorporation and subsequent floating of a bond issue adequate to provide water and sanitation for the Fort Ashby, W. Va., community was recommended by Harold J. Snyder, Keyser, in an address before the Fort Ashby Lions Club this week.

Snyder, a member of the Keyser city council and, a member of the Blundon engineering firm there, said such action offers the most satisfactory solution to the problem.

He termed an adequate water supply and a satisfactory sewage disposal plan a "must" if communities such as Fort Ashby are to continue their growth.

Some 70 families and business establishments are located in the Fort Ashby community and at least 120 desirable locations are available for future growth, Lion officials said.

The club, at its meeting Wednesday night, advocated passage of West Virginia Bills 15 and 16, known as the Firemen's Dues Bills, which would allocate to fire fighters a portion of premiums paid for fire insurance within the state.

The Fort Ashby Lions, at the request of William Marker, a member of the club, will sponsor the Red Cross drive in that area.

Forestry Board Holds Meeting

The Allegany County Forestry Board held a dinner-meeting at Alighan Country Club last night. Blair V. Welsh, vice chairman, was in charge.

Permission to cut timber on the farms of Wallace McGill, Pleasant Valley, and E. J. Bogner, near Barrelville, was requested by Thomas B. Finan, attorney for the farmers.

The board recommended that McGill follow previous recommendations of the Soil Conservation Service made when the Service made a plan for his farm. McGill had requested permission to cut within a seven-inch-diameter limit.

Bogner was advised to request the Soil Conservation Service to prepare a timber plan for his farm.

Two requests for clear-cutting permits were tabled until the Conservation Service can prepare plans for the farms.

Rifle Wound Is Fatal To Pa. Man

A 62-year-old Mann's Choice man was found dead from a rifle shot wound in the back yard of his home five miles west of Bedford, Pa., Wednesday. Police identified him as John Sciranko.

Bedford County coroner Vernon Geisel said the wound was inflicted by a .32 caliber rifle and gave a verdict of suicide. Sciranko was a native of Austria and is survived by 10 children and his wife.

Authorities quoted the family as saying he had been in ill health since suffering injuries in an automobile accident about a year ago.

Annual Maple Sugar Festival Plans Underway

Tri State Interest Evidenced In Fete

Somerset County, Pa., will celebrate the end of its 1949 maple sugar season March 25 with festivities in Meyersdale that already are scheduled to include a morning pageant and a late afternoon parade.

The annual festival will pay tribute to the maple syrup industry in the Pennsylvania county area and will open at 11 a. m. with the crowning of Queen Maple II at a pageant that will pay particular attention to the industrial aspect of the program.

Eight county girls are competing in the popularity contest for the title of Queen Maple and Frank Beamer, general chairman of the pageant said, the queen will receive a specially designed diamond ring.

Princesses will be selected from 13 county high schools to serve in the court and Grantsville High School, Garrett County, Md., has already selected Miss Helen Orendorf as princess from that area. She is a high school senior.

Contestants for the title of Queen Maple include Miss Patty Murray, 17, Meyersdale high school senior, who is presently leading in the contest with 6,221 votes; Miss Barbara Frain, 17, Meyersdale High, who is second with 5,430 votes; Miss Patricia Maust, Salisbury; Miss Thelma Hersch, Miss Thelma Hutzel, Miss Della Tressler, Miss Donna Miller and Miss Margaret Stairs, all of Meyersdale.

Following the cornation pageant a banquet will be served for the guests which already included the lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania and several state officials.

The parade which offers a total of $500 in cash prizes to musical organizations will be held in the late afternoon after a tour of maple sugar camps has been made by visitors.

Beamer said several Tri-State musical organizations have been invited to participate in the parade and added the committee is now preparing for a division of floats to add to the parade attraction.

Queen Maple II will be the honored guest at the night-time dance which will feature a name band, not yet announced. The dance will be open to the throng of visitors expected to visit Meyersdale for the annual affair.

The festival was started in 1948 and maple syrup producers expect to add to the attraction each year. The industry is one of the chief businesses in the Garrett County-Salisbury County area.
